Klooster travels on the road to China

BY AUDREY DIEBEL COLLINS

When the Chinese take their ducks to market, the birds are bound by the feet and hung by the dozens from the handlebars of the farmer's bicycle. Their beaks clatter in the dust as the bicycle threads its way through the ox carts, cars, trucks and pedestrians sharing the narrow, rutted two-track roads that are typical throughout the country.

Roads in China hold special interest for Conrad Klooster. The Charlevoix man is presently visiting China as part of an economic development exchange between the State of Michigan Department of Transportation, and Michigan's sister, the Szechwan Province. Klooster represents his own company, Klooster Equipment, Inc., of Atwood, on the three-week tour.

"I'm going to try to convince them to buy equipment to build roads," Klooster says of his mission to Szechwan. "The province is the breadbasket of China. They grow 70 percent of the nation's food, and 90 percent of its citrus, but last year they lost 40 percent of their citrus crop because there are no roads to get to the markets in the coastal towns."

Roadbuilding in China in the 80s is probably comparable to U.S. methods of the 1930s, Klooster says.

"There are so many people, and labor is so cheap, they are pretty negative about buying equipment," he adds. "The trouble is, they can't build the roads as fast as they need to and with essentially hand labor, the roads they do build only last two or three years."

Klooster says stone for roadbeds is broken by hand and hauled manually, in baskets, to the construction site. This information he learned from orientation sessions and his own independent reading, but while in China, he will visit a number of constructionrsites to observe work in progress.

The Michigan entourage will spend time in Beijing, Chengdu, Chongqing, Guangzhou and Hong Kong, inspecting auto factories, irrigation systems, rail transportation facilities, and other Chinese industries and businesses that are potential consumers of Michigan products.

Also part of the tour will be an endless round of diplomatic banquets with representatives from the Ministry of Communication, which is headed by a woman with a tight-fisted reputation.

"We'll be negotiating with people who have no control over money," Klooster says. "We have to convince them, and they have to go sell her on the idea."

Pointers on how to negotiate with the Chinese were discussed during orientation sessions prior to the trip. Klooster learned the diplomatic banquets are generally three-hour affairs during which everybody is toasted. He admits the potential menus were enough to scare him to death; common dishes include blackbirds roasted with their heads on, eggs that have been buried for years, birds' nests, lily pads and chrysenthemum leaves. His rule on tour, he says, would be to eat first and ask later.

His rule in negotiating will be "honesty first."

"If you cheat them, they will never do business with you again," he notes. China, for example, will not import heavy equipment from Japan because Japan did not provide the training for operation and maintenance the machinery requires. A basic mistrust has grown up between the countries, he says.

Even with the slide presentation of American roadbuilding Klooster is taking with him, training will be an issue for whatever the Chinese may decide to purchase. Financing is another issue, one that will involve the World Bank.

"We have to start out up front and tell them this is private enterprise," Klooster says. "Whatever they buy, they have to pay for."

"The goal of the trip is to increase technical exchange and commercial activity with Michigan firms," says Klooster, who is financing his own travels. "It might take three of four years until we sell something. But even if nothing works out, it will be worth the trip to go."

Klooster has spent little time in cities like those of China, with populations in the millions and tens of millions, and admits that neither he nor the others on the excursion know quite what to expect from vast crowds of, non-English speaking people.

On their side trips to the Great Wall and the emperor's tombs, the 6-foot-6 Klooster says he's just going to stay with the group.

"I won't be hard to spot. I'll wear a bright shirt," he laughs.

Writers like Michigan

by PEG OHLE

Many of the best tourist sites in the country are located within easy driving distance of Charlevoix, many travel experts believe.

Last September, Michigan was host to 250 members of the Society of American Travel Writers. They began their meeting at Grand Traverse Resort Village in Acme and ended it at Renaissance Center in Detroit. In between, they traveled all over the state, including the northern area (even Charlevoix County).

Following the meeting, they were asked to fill out a questionnaire indicating how they liked Michigan and its many attractions. Their answers, which should make northern Michigan proud, included the following ratings:

Five best natural attractions: Sleeping Bear Dunes, Mackinac Island, West Michigan beaches from the Leland area to Saugatuck, Isle Royale, and the Leelanau Peninsula.

Among other natural attractions mentioned were the view from Hidden Valley Resort, Hartwick Pines, and Lake Charlevoix.

Five best man-made attractions: Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum, Grand Hotel, Big Mac Bridge, Interlochen, and Detroit's Renaissance Center.

Among other man-made attractions they liked the most were Old Fort Mackinac and Fort Michilmackinac; Jack Nicklaus' golf course, The Bear, at Grand Traverse Resort; the Soo Locks, Traverse City Opera House; and dinner at Tapawingo in Ellsworth.

The travel writers were also asked to rate Michigan's food. Most often mentioned delicacies were fresh water lake fish, particularly whitefish and perch; and the food served at "the gourmet restaurants between Traverse City and Mackinaw City". Specially mentioned in the latter group were chocolate-covered raspberries, fresh fruit, peanut butter pie on Mackinac Island, flapjacks at Big Paw, morels, St. Ignace Galley Restaurant's whitefish livers, fudge, ethnic foods, and food served at the Brookside Inn in Beulah.

Answers to the question, "What single thing impressed you most?" were varied: Michiganians' friendliness, the state's natural beauty, good food, Grand Hotel, cleanliness, variety of things to do, positive attitude of people, the big lakes, excellent roadside rest areas, and the vitality and enthusiasm of the people.

One great impression was "that a bottle bill can work, which is why your roadsides and parks are so clean".

A complete report on how the travel writers rate Michigan appears in the April issue of Michigan Living, the publication of the Automobile Club of Michigan.

Senior meal program shows steady growth

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging noon meal program at the new Senior Center in the VFW Hall is growing slowly but surely, the Commission's March report shows.

During the month, 336 meals were served, bringing the total for the fiscal year up to 1,459.

The Senior Center was opened late last year, providing a special place for serving the meals. Previously they had been served in the cafeteria of the Charlevoix High School.

County-wide, 11,638 meals have been served so far this year. The meal sites in East Jordan and Boyne City have been established for a longer period of time, therefore they serve more people than the newly established Charlevoix site.

The meal program is only one of several services provided by the Commission on Aging, but it was voted most popular of all services at a recent Senior Citizens Forum held in East Jordan. Besides the congregate meals (served at meal sites), other popular services were home-delivered meals, homemaker program, health screening, home health aide, and information and referral services. The county bus system, which is operated by another agency and serves the entire community rather than just senior citizens, also rated high among senior citizens.

The Commission on Aging county budget for the fiscal year includes: $91,408 for the meal program; $8,090 for the homemaker program; $2,315 for health screening; $4,180 for home health aides; and $7,231 for information and referral services.

As with most federal and state programs, funds for senior citizen services are being cut. Those attending the Forum in East Jordan were asked to tell which of several suggested methods should be used to make up for the cuts in funding. Their answers suggested a lack of understanding of financing:

They did not want a local millage levied for senior citizens services but they did approve increasing county general funds for services. (They apparently do not know that the general fund is derived from millage).

They did not want an increase in the state sales tax to pay for their services, but they did approve increasing state general funds for services.

They did not believe that private individuals or businesses should be asked for funding, but they did not believe that services should be reduced.

They thought that additional operating funds could come from the lottery and from taxes on liquor and cigarettes.

And before senior citizens services are cut, they suggested that aid to dependent children and welfare be cut.

How to continue serving senior citizens is a matter of concern to public officials at all levels of government.

Traffic study endorsed

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc. met Saturday, April 19, and unanimously recommended that the city ask the state Department of Transportation to do a study of the traffic situation in downtown Charlevoix.

The group also suggested the city employ a traffic policeman during the busiest periods of the year.

KCB also reviewed the recent plan of the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) but did not reach a consensus on it. It was recommended that individual members of KCB contact their councilmen to express their views on the plan.

The KCB board also approved the recent action by the group's executive committee to host the mediation of the various parties involved in the Water's Edge dispute.

Downtown plan a good start

The Downtown Development Authority recently unveiled an ambitious new plan for the downtown Charlevoix.

We think it is an exciting plan with a great many good ideas. If given serious consideration by the community, it could be a springboard to a substantial improvement in the look of Charlevoix's central business district.

There is, unfortunately, a large cloud over the basis for much of the DDA funding, namely, the tax increment financing authority. The state attorney general has ruled against this funding source and there are various court challenges to it pending.

If tax increment financing survives, the downtown plan could prove a boon to Charlevoix. Of course, the downtown area is not deteriorating like central areas of large cities. But the area could be substantially improved to make Charlevoix a more comfortable place to visit and live.

The highest priority of the plan is parking, and it provides significant relief to this problem with the development of several areas off Bridge Street. Also considered are several changes in the traffic flow on Bridge, including left-turn lanes for northbound traffic. A recently approved state Department of Transportation study should give further guidance to this effort by the end of summer.

The plan also gives some interesting answers to foot traffic in Charlevoix, including the development of alleys off Bridge Street into pedestrian walkways.

A subtle, but extremely important, change would be the integration of the various parks and green spaces from Memorial Park on the south to Hoffman Park on the north. Charlevoix has an abundance of beautiful waterfront and these plans enhance it and make it more accessible.

We have some reservations about a few specifics of the plan, including the boat piers in Round Lake and the fountain in East Park, and undoubtedly other concerns will be raised and alterations made.

But the heart of the plan is well thought out and if implemented will prove a plus for city residents and tourists alike.

Clockwise

Charter boats

By Bob Clock

I stand corrected.

In a recent column I mentioned the vagaries of state boundaries, including the fact that if you followed the 46th parallel due east of Petoskey you would hit Wisconsin, then Michigan, then Wisconsin — until you reached the Mississippi River.

Wrong. You wouldn't hit the Mississippi River until you were deep into Minnesota and about 75 miles north of Minneapolis.

Instead you would cross the Wisconsin-Minnesota border at the St. Croix River, the dividing line between the two states north of Hastings, Minn.

My problem is that my Michigan map didn't cover enough territory.

The error was spotted by two readers — Rev. Ray Giffin of Charlevoix and Bill Briggs of Novi, who are better students of geography than I.

My only contact with that area was during the Korean War when I had basic training at Camp McCoy, Wis., about 30 miles east of La-Crosse, Wis., on the Mississippi River. Camp McCoy was so cold that I have a mental image of most Wisconsin landmarks being a lot further north than they actually are.

LaCrosse, for example, is about on the same parallel as Bad Axe. But when the temperature hits 53 degrees below zero — as it did one January morning when I was in basic training — you'd swear you were north of the Arctic Circle.

CHARTER BOAT fishing has sort of snuck up on us in recent years. But it has turned into a very important Michigan industry, according to Michigan State University.

A recent press from the Agriculture and Natural Resources Information Services reports that charter boats had a $21 million economic impact on coastal communities in the state in 1985.

A quarter of a million people went charter fishing on the Great Lakes aboard state-licensed boats last year, according to a study by Edward M. Mahoney, MSU assistant professor and Extension specialist. These fishermen spent $59 million on their trips, including $13 million in charter boat fees. The balance was spent on lodging, restaurants, groceries, gas, entertainment and other expenses at the charter site or before they left home.

Captains of charter boats also boosted Michigan's economy with their investments in boats, gear, slip space and supplies.

The study concluded that coastal communities — and that includes Charlevoix — should pay more attention to the additional income generated by the local charter captains.

It recommended that state agencies and local governments consider this impact when making decisions about providing such things as publicly funded facilties for charter operations.

Charter fishing is one of the fastest growing segments of the tourism industry, according to Mahoney. Last year, Michigan had 1,000 licensed charter boat captains, compared to 100 a scant decade ago.

The study reported that the average charter captain has $28,000 invested in a boat, in addition to equipment and fishing gear. He collects approximately $15,000 a year in fees alone, some of which is spent for supplies, Mahoney said.

Operating charter boats is big business. And apparently it is getting bigger every year.

Letters to the Editor:

Don't give in to boycotters

Dear Editor,

Hold tight Courier. Please don't give in to what appears to be a boycott by the local real estate self serving group. Integrity of our only real local source of news must not be swayed by advertising bucks.

I am ashamed of the townies that withdrew the necessary support a weekly newspaper must have to survive. The Courier will be supported other ways by the readers. To the boycotters, who the h— do you think you are to dictate? You have the same avenue to vent your feelings via letters to the editor.

No complaints when the Courier gave rave reviews to the million dollar sales and pictures of the real estate group. Doug Truax calls the shots as they come to the news desk and that is the way a good newspaper operates. Hope you boycotters read the piece by Jan McKay 4-9-86. Father Casey you must be proud.

Get off our backs, Gov.

Dear Editor:

I personally am becoming increasingly irritated by Gov. Blanchard using Charlevoix's past water problem as a political football. Everyone who has aspirations of maintaining or improving their position, be it political or financial, comes to see Charlevoix as a whipping boy to further their own ambitions.

First it was Charlevoix's previous City Manager who exploited the TCE affair to gain recognition by which he could promote himself into a better job. Now it is the Governor who is trying to convince the voters of Michigan that he will go to any lengths to protect their lake waters by spending millions of dollars to purge the Charlevoix TCE source (located at middle school), rather than allow the TCE to gradually seep into Lake Michigan.

Of course, in his eagerness to convince the voters that he is the protector of lake waters, he forgets that the majority of voters are literate and that intelligent voters put forth the question, "Doesn't the State have better and more beneficial projects on which to spend millions of taxpayers' monies?" - instead of trying to stop a small amount of TCE from entering with billions of gallons of constantly moving lake waters.

The Governor's proposed action in this instance is totally ludicrous considering the following: First, it is presumed that upon approval, no price and rate that an individual using water in which there is an infinitesimal amount (x-parts per billion) of TCE could possible contract cancer in approximately 69-70 years. The amount of TCE which over a period of years would enter lake water from Charlevoix is not and can not be definitely defined. However, what ever small amount should reach the lake would be so completely diluted as to be unmeasureable.

Now is the time for Governor Blanchard to start convincing the voters, through responsible actions, that he is worthy of being their Governor. Charlevoix has had enough adverse publicity during the past three years with TCE and now PCE.

PLEASE, Governor - get off our city's back!

Big stick diplomacy

It seems our military use Nicaragua and Libya for target practice to prove Mr. Reagan's big stick diplomacy. Now playing cock of the rock and tall in the saddle, claiming this as an American patriotic duty to move the world for the benefit of international bankers and Wall Street gamblers. He would kill the Nicaraguan form of government for the benefit of land owning money hungry chiselers that work their cheap labor tricks to compete against American working people.

The might of Reagan's million dollar military investment to support the Contras is forcing Nicaragua to adopt a military policy to protect itself. All countries at war are in a state of dictatorship, including the U.S. There are violent revolutions in countries that outlaw the need to adjust economics by political action. The capitalistic monetary crisis of 1929 brought on such economic needs as a Public Works Administration. Later on we have social security, employment insurance, subsidized farming, and, to protect the rich, federal bank insurance plus tax exempt bonds.

All of the above and more has our government involved in capitalistic prosperity. In the beginning of these changes, there was a lot of name calling, and charges of Marxist socialism by conservative politicians. So what do we have on today's red herring draggers?

Nothing, except they should know the facts even if they are incapable of recognizing the truth. What good is the $30 million invasion in the Gulf of Sierra for the U.S.; since the disputed water space wasn't used or needed by any international shipping?

Where was the need for such action, when this could have been a strong point on our side in any U.S. dispute. Labeling Mr. Kadafy king of organized terrorists gives inspiration to many religious fanatics.

They now have their looking glass hero and champion. This will precipitate more violence.

Most people are unaware that Mexico has a Marxist government.

In 1919, a constitution was formulated giving the Government control and ownership over all resources. Now they are having population problems partly caused by people seeking better living conditions from all over South America.

This also became our problem by the invasion of people through Mexico. There is no solution by allowing people to create a problem by moving. We could help them solve their problem by their own political action wherever they are.

Too many condos now

Dear Editor:

I am not a property owner in the Charlevoix area but I am a regular vacationer in that beautiful town. It has been brought to my attention that a builder is asking permission to construct 16 condominiums on the North Point lakefront. Can this make sense to anyone except the very few who are going to make the big bucks...There are too many condos in Charlevoix now. How can we possibly allow any more of this beautiful country to be cluttered?

Please, oh, please, if you have any say so at all, don't let this happen. If I want beach front condos I will go to Miami or Honolulu they have plenty and all of the rest of the mess that goes along with it.

James Peake
Toledo, Ohio

The North Point proposal, from the late Jeff DeGayner, was for 120 condos at North Point. Editor

Gas prices too high

Dear Editor:

Have you noticed? Some of the prices for No-lead gasoline around our area are: East Jordan - $.98 a gallon, Petoskey - $.939 a gallon, Boyne City - $.89 a gallon. Boyne Falls - $.88 a gallon. Some places downstate have prices in the $.70 and $.60 range and Charlevoix - $1.039.

I have stopped buying gas in Charlevoix. I like to support my hometown, but I see no need to allow myself to be exploited.

Another thing I would like to mention. What is going to happen once they finish building all these hundreds of condos in Charlevoix and then can't sell them? They haven'g been able to sell the ones we already have. People who live in Charlevoix year around can't afford them. Take a look at downtown Detroit and you will see what happens.

One last comment. Why is it so difficult to find a place to eat in Charlevoix where you don't have to breathe other peoples cigarette smoke. If a non-smoking area is provided, it is too small to make any difference because they are smoking in the next booth.

The other night we had to wait 45 minutes in a local restaurant for a non-smoking booth because they only had one. We had to stand by the smoking area to wait! I am allergic to cigarette smoke and would like to be able to go out to dinner and not be exposed to something that is not only bad for my health but others also.

I have been to one particular restaurant (not in Charlevoix) that has a very large non-smoking area that is totally separate from smokers and is usually packed. Sometimes it has more people in the non-smoking area than it does in the smoking area. Do we have to wait to be forced by law to do something about this?

Thank you for your time.

Editorial was thoughtful

Dear Editor:

It was saddening to read (April 9, 1986 Courier) that "Business Groups Boycott Courier Ads to Protest Paper's Editorial Stance." I have read and re-read the editorial in question. I get the same reaction each time.

It is serious, thoughtful and shows real concern for the area as a viable community intent on keeping the qualities intact which have made it so desirable. It does not lock out growth. It asks only for restraint against headlong over-growth.

The editorial is sensitive, intelligent and well written. Newspapers in larger cities have editors who take stands on all issues of particular interest even to the point of editorializing about their political choice. Advertisers with opposing views do not stop advertising because of a difference of opinion.

Have the "business groups" of Charlevoix considered what could happen to them if they were boycotted because of their views?

What has happened?

You are all, in your own fields of endeavor, trying to make a living in a community you love. There will always be differences of opinion, I hope. Otherwise the alternative is stagnation. The differences open up new avenues of thought and actually bring about greater understanding in a lively atmosphere.

Why not say... "Vive la difference!" Shake hands and agree to disagree in friendship.

Globe trotting students return from Europe

Two weeks in Spain remembered

by FRAN MARTIN

Ten Charlevoix High School students returned from two weeks in Spain with not only souvenirs but memories, exciting stories and the knowledge of a different culture.

The group arrived in Madrid early the morning of March 31 and met briefly with students from Colorado, Ohio and Minnesota who were also on the trip.

Then it was out on the streets of Madrid to practice speaking Spanish with real Spaniards, Laura Reibel wrote of the recent tour. Their first trip was to the bank to exchange money and then to a cafeteria.

"That afternoon we toured that National Palace where high level meetings and receptions are held," Reibel wrote. "We visited only 25 of the nearly 3,000 rooms."

In the evening the students were treated to a tour of the Plaza Mayor by the brother of Maria Birlanga, a Spanish exchange student in Charlevoix, and his friend, Carlos. They explained that the Plaza Mayor is a popular gathering place and the site of important festivals. Nearby is the famous Calle Cuchillero, a narrow winding street lined with mesones, historical taverns which offer delicous tapas; a variety of local dishes.

The next day the students took the subway to the Prado Museum to view paintings by Spanish artists such as Velasquez, Goya and El Greco. They then split into two groups, one to shop at the huge department store, Corte Ingles, and the other to visit another museum where Picasso's famous mural "Guernica" is on exhibit.

After a stroll through the beautiful Retiro Park, they returned to dress for a special dinner of paella, a saffron rice dish stocked with shrimp, crabs and scallops.

Then it was on to Toledo to see a magnificent cathedral and to shop for crafts native to this ancient city...damascene jewelry and famous Toledo swords.

Cordoba in the south of Spain was next-where their hotel was next door to the Mesauita, a Moorish palace. During the two-day stay there was plenty of time to explore the friendly city which had been occupied at various times by Romans, Visigoths, Christoians, Jews and Moors.

On day four there was more exploration of Cordoba; a visit to the Alcazar, a fortress used by both Moorish and Christian kings where Columbus met with Ferdinand and Isabella to request permission for his expedition; a trip to a movie theatre to see "Spies Like Us" with dubbed-in Spanish, and shopping.

On day five the students went to Malaga for the terrifying experience of leaving the group and going to a Spanish home with a newly adopted Spanish family.

"The whole trip to Spain was great but the best part was the family stay!" Michelle Seibert said of this experience. "I was really nervous when I went to meet them but as soon as I got to their house they made me feel like one of the family. There were six kids in the family, five girls and one boy. I went to school with the two older girls which was really exciting because it gave me a chance to meet all their friends and see what the Spanish schools were like. I had a lot of fun with my family and hated to say good-bye. However, I am planning to return to Spain to visit them again."

The fone of other students was similar. Kathy Washburn added that "the families in Spain seemed to be really loose and generations gaps are almost non-existent."

Sandy Brosofske liked going to school with her Spanish sister and said "All the kids accepted me right away. They seemed really open and friendly and didn't form cliques."

Alison Clock said she was terrified the first day she spent with her family and could hardly understand anything they said. "After a few days I felt a part of the family and could understand the language much better."

There were sad goodbyes and tears on day 12. No one wanted to

by FRAN MARTIN

"The culture, the atmosphere, just speaking the language and hearing it spoken by French people, seeing buildings that were constructed before our country was born... just being there" sums up the comments of 19 French students from Charlevoix High School on their recent week-long trip to France.

Accompanied by their French teacher, Madame Yvonne Wendt, and her husband, Richard, the students departed Charlevoix April 2 for what most consider the trip of their young lives.

Four of the 19 students who made the trip, Scott Stephan, Mike Horton, Carol Ritsema and Michelle Louiselle gave their impressions of the trip in an interview last week.

For Louiselle, it was a repeat trip. "We had seen many of places last year so this year I returned for another visit to the places I liked the most and, of course, had time to visit others I had missed."

All agreed that everything is much more meaningful to them now that they have seen the places they had studied about. The opportunity to be able to speak French in France was also a big plus for all the students.

The Loire Valley and the chateaus, the size and construction of the castles fascinated them all. The Chinonceaux Chateau, constructed over a river, so the owner, a woman, could look out over the water was one they mentioned. Another which featured formal gardens in a moat and where deer grazed was of interest to others.

The trip to Mont St. Michel, a monastary in Brittany, was also of interest to them. Horton described it as "about the size of Mackinac Island, constructed on three levels, where the tide comes in at the rate of 45 miles an hour and when the tide is out, it is surrounded by quicksand. A real fortress reached only by a causeway."

The gardens at Versailles, the Pompidou Center of modern art, Notre Dame Cathedral, the Pere Lachaise Cemetery outside Paris where Jim Morrison, a member of the rock group the "Doors" is buried which has become a shrine for rock fans from around the world.

They also laughed about items listed on menus. For instance, one ordered ice cream and got apple pie; another pizza without cheese; another ordered what he thought was a hamburger and French fries and received a piece of hamburg with fried egg on top.

Despite the international situation, the students said that except at airports they saw no soldiers with weapons and never felt threatened.

The others who made the trip were Curt McCandless, Dan Staublin, Val Barnes, Jennifer Bean, Amy Antaya, Matt Dixon, Gary Frye, Tim Wieland, Lori Gleason, Linda Jolliffe, Dirk VanKuiken, Wendy Volsin, Amy McKinney, Rochelle Miller and Jennifer Sell.

Motorcycle course offered

MOUNT PLEASANT - A new Central Michigan University program will offer motorcycle rider education courses in 16 northwestern Lower Michigan counties this summer.

Courses will be available to residents of Antrim Benzie, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Lake, Leelanau, Manistee, Mason, Mecosta, Missaukee, Newaygo, Oceana, Osceola and Wexford counties.

The program is funded by a Michigan Department of Education grant, said Keith Allen, director of traffic safety education at CMU.

"We are pleased to have received the grant and are looking forward to providing this potentially life-saving program for the citizens of northwestern Michigan," said Allen.

State law requires successful completion of the 20-hour course by all 16- and 17-year-old motorcycle operators before they make application for an original motorcycle endorsement on their operator's license.

Jon Twork of Scottville and Dan Petterson of Ludington, both Motorcycle Safety Foundation certified instructors, will co-direct the project. Courses will run two to three days each and are scheduled at various sites, from May through August. Cost is $25, and enrollment is limited to 16 for each class.

For the complete summer schedule, or for more information, call CMU Continuing Education and Community Services, (517) 774-7141.

Softball meeting scheduled

Men's and women's softball teams planning to participate in the Charlevoix Recreation Department leagues during the coming months will meet at the city hall at 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 29, Dwight Boss, recreation director, has announced.

At the same meeting, plans will be made for the construction of dugouts at the softball field. Teams will assist with the construction. Any team not participating will be assessed a fee, Boss said.

All team managers, sponsors and team members are asked to attend the organizational meeting.

State hosts lakes conference

Governor James J. Blanchard will host over 500 scientists, public officials and business and civic leaders from over 40 countries – including Japan and the Soviet Union – at the 1986 World Conference on Large Lakes May 18-21, on Mackinac Island.

This year's conference, only the second of its kind, will focus on one of the greatest threats to the world's freshwater large lakes – toxic contamination. The conference participants will gather to identify, explore and promote the international, cooperative effort toward the study, control and management of toxic chemicals in the large lakes of the world.

"As Governor of Michigan, a state surrounded by four of the largest lakes in the world, I am honored to host the 1986 World Conference on Large Lakes," said Governor Blanchard. "This conference is part of a continuing effort to bring world experts together to exchange information and work cooperatively to protect the quality of the world's major lakes."

Conference sessions will include discussions on the sources and chronic effects of toxic pollution, fisheries management and social, legal and economic factors related to the control of toxic contamination. In addition, conference participants will recommend steps which are needed to assure the protection of large lakes and, consequently, the future of the nations who depend upon them.

The conference will be co-hosted by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Environment Canada, the International Joint Commission, Council of Great Lakes Governors, General Motors, the Michigan Sea Grant College Program, Dow Chemical and Great Lakes United.

The first World Conference on the Large Lakes Environment was held in 1984 in Shiga, Japan, Michigan's sister state.

Trout tournament dinner a big success

The second annual benefit dinner for the Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament was called a big success by its organizers.

Held Saturday, April 12, the dinner netted over $3,200 for the trout tournament.

A sellout crowd of over 200 people enjoyed an all-you-can-eat beef and chicken dinner and heard the wit and wisdom of after-dinner speaker Leo Meyers, manager of the Le Havre condominiums.

Those attending had a chance at more than $4,700 in cash and prizes donated by area merchants. "Last year we had over $1,000 in prizes donated by merchants and we thought that was generous," Jim Withers, tournament director, said with satisfaction.

The grand prize – a 2 h.p. Yamaha outboard motor donated by Irish Boat Shop – was won by Ron Knight of Charlevoix.

Several people had to be turned away because of the popularity of the dinner, and the tournament directors are looking for a larger facility for future dinners.

The directors met recently and said plans for the trout tournament, scheduled for May 16, 17 and 18 in East Park, are on schedule.

The 1986 tournament will feature some $25,000 in cash and prizes. Registration forms are available at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

The tournament directors also note that a few $100 tickets remain for the drawing on a $13,500 19-foot Wellcraft boat and trailer.

The trout tournament directors wish to thank all of the many merchants for their generous donations to the benefit dinner, Withers added.

The next trout tournament meeting will be Tuesday, April 29, at 7 p.m. in the Village Inn Pizza restaurant. Persons interested in helping on this year's tournament are urged to attend.

Garden Club elects officers

The East Jordan Garden Club recently elected officers for the coming year. The new officers are Mrs. D. Kaley Sewell, president; Mrs. Martha Anpear, vice-president; Mrs. F. Gladys Sattler, secretary; and Mrs. H. Evelyn Gidley, treasurer.

The next meeting of the Club will be Monday, April 21, at 1:30 in the education building of the Presbyterian Church. Mary Glenn Malpass will take the club on a tour around the world in slides and talk. Hostesses for the meeting will be Norma Thorsen and Phyllis Malpass.

All women of the community interested in protecting and maintaining the beauties of nature, trees, wild flowers, and birds are welcome to attend.

Area Boy Scout leaders honored

Several Charlevoix residents were honored when boy scout leaders from the Northern District held their annual recognition dinner April 12, at Zion Lethern Church in Petoskey. Criteria for the award are length and quality of service, personal dedication, and amount of time spent in helping youth.

Scout leaders recognized from Charlevoix were: Shirley Jinsky, den leader, Dave Novotny, unit committee member and Jim Manson, district committee member. Leaders from Petoskey receiving the area president's award were Dr. Beverly Zelt, Dick Brown, and Brian Granger. Others were Kenneth Misner, Harbor Springs, unit committee member; Roger Clark, Alanson, scoutmaster and Mario Kaminski, Harbor Springs, special recognition.

Manson and Clark both received the scouter's key, which is a training award.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifeck
Executive Director

As you know, the Chamber is working with the Market Management Program at North Central Michigan College to develop a retail market survey.

The retail market of Charlevoix's business sector represents about 125 businesses, approximately 200,000 square feet of space and over 600 employees. Perhaps the most interesting fact, however, is that the retailers in Charlevoix create almost 25 percent of the city's total budgeted revenue for the general fund.

Fifty-two percent of the city's property taxes are paid for by retailers and over $119,000 a year is collected in sales tax, a state shared revenue.

What all this adds up to is the fact that the retailers in Charlevoix contribute to the health of our economy more than you may have thought. Interesting stuff, huh.

Anyway, the retail market survey will be mailed to over 1,500 local residents. If you should receive one in the mail, we ask that you please take the time to respond. Your cooperation will determine how successful the results of the survey will be. Thank you.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

First Baptist Church

God has identified himself with the hungry, the sick, the naked, the homeless; hunger not only for bread, but for love, for care, to be somebody to someone; nakedness, not of clothing only, but nakedness of that compassion that very few people give to the unknown; homelessness, not only just for a shelter made of stone, but that homelessness that comes from having no one to call your own.

Let each of us, as we have resolved to become a true child of God, a carrier of God's love, let us love others as God has loved each one of us, for Jesus has said love one another as I have loved you.

The spiritual poverty of the western world is much greater than the physical poverty of our people. You in the West have millions of people who suffer such terrible loneliness and emptiness. They feel unloved and unwanted.

These people are not hungry in the physical sense but they are in another way. They know they need something more than money, yet they don't know what it is. What they are missing really is a living relationship with God.

Today the poor are hungry for bread and rice—and for love and the living world of God.

The poor are thirsty—for water and for peace, truth and justice.

The poor—are homeless—for a shelter made of bricks, and for a joyful heart that understands, covers, loves.

The poor are naked—for clothes, for human dignity and compassion for the naked sinner.

They are sick—for medical care, and for that gentle touch and a warm smile.

The "shut-in," the unwanted, the unloved, the alcoholics, the dying destitutes, the abandoned and the lonely, the outcasts and the untouchables, the leprosy sufferers—all those who are a burden to human society—who have lost all hope and faith in life—who have forgotten how to smile—who have lost the sensibility of the warm hand-touch of love and friendship—they look to us for comfort. If we turn our back on them, we turn it on Christ, and at the hour of our death we shall be judged if we have recognized Christ in them, and on what we have done for and to them. There will be only two ways, "come" or "go."

Therefore, I appeal to every one of you—poor and rich, young and old—to give your own hands to serve Christ in his poor and you hearts to love him in them. They may be far or near, materially poor or spiritually poor, hungry for love and friendship, ignorant of the riches of the love of God for them, homeless for want of a home made of love in your heart; and since love begins at home maybe Christ is hungry, naked, sick or homeless in your own heart, in your family, in your neighbors, in the country you live in, in the world.

Teen contest entered

Jayne Schaenbrock, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Schaenbrock of Charlevoix, has been selected to compete in the 1986 Miss TEEN Pageant to be held at the Kalamazoo Hilton, Kalamazoo, Michigan the 4th of July weekend.

The Pageant is based on scholastic achievements, volunteer service, poise and personality, formal presentation and speech or talent.

Jayne's interests are cheerleading, running, biking, weight lifting and playing the piano.

She is being sponsored by The Clothing Company, Medusa Cement, McKeown Ford, Trademark Clothiers, Shear Happiness Beauty Salon, Chamber of Commerce, Kit Carson Lumber Co. and David Strawbridge D.D.S., all of Charlevoix.

Building permits up

The Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection issued 29 permits in March, nine more than in February.

Ten of the permits were for additions to or remodelling of residences, and six were for new residences.

Four new residences will be built on Pleasure Township on Beaver Island and two will be built in Charlevoix Township.

In the commercial category, one permit was issued for a new building in Charlevoix and another for a new building in Boyne City.

The other two permits were for miscellaneous.

Total construction costs of the work covered by the 29 permits are estimated at $1,697,850 (excluding electrical, plumbing, and mechanical work).

Students return from Spain

leave. Nevertheless, the troop traveled on to Seville and more shopping at Cabo Ingles.

They traveled to the sun coast Costa del Sol the next day. It was cool and rainy, but warm enough to wade in the Mediterranean and sunbathe when the sun was out. Several of the families came to visit at the hotel.

Susan Miller wrapped it all up when she said, "Spain is beautiful and the people there polite and caring, especially during our family stays."

Miller said they were met with no animosity though some of the students said they were harassed for being American if found in small groups. At one point they saw the carriers Yorktown and Coral Sea and saw American Marines on liberty. The security at airports everywhere was tight - with dogs, bomb squads and police everywhere.

Ted Miller, Spanish teacher who was taken other tours to Spain, said this was by far the most successful and rewarding experience for the students.

Free food distribution

Free cheese, flour, honey and butter will be distributed at the Charlevoix Courier on Wednesday, April 30 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. or until all the food is gone.

The food will be distributed at the normal distribution sites, including the VFW Hall in Charlevoix and the Civic Center in East Jordan.

Charlevoix House must find new location

The little frame house on Belvedere Avenue known as the "Charlevoix House", which has been home to many young adults during the last 10 years, has been sold and will no longer be operated as the "Charlevoix House".

It has been run by the Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services Board to provide shelter for a maximum, at one time, of six persons who have slight mental disabilities. Residents are supervised at home by a trained counselor and most of them attend the Bergmann Center Workshop.

Such shelters are replacing large institutions for the care of individuals who need only minimum supervision.

Harold Kaufman, director of Mental Health Services, indicated that the owner of the property had been more than fair in his rental charges, which only recently had been as high as $270 a month. He said he did not know what the property, which is part of a larger parcel, would now be used for, although the house is scheduled to be torn down.

To replace Charlevoix House, Mental Health Services is now in the process of trying to acquire another house in Charlevoix. The present price of real estate and the stringent rules and regulations pertaining to the physical layout of such public-operated shelters is making negotiations difficult, according to Kaufman.

Instrumentalists score well

Charlevoix Middle School, instrumentalists received eight I ratings and three II ratings in the Junior High Solo and Ensemble Festival held Saturday at Gaylord. A total of 17 students appeared in 11 events director, Terry Isenbarger reports.

Soloists receiving I ratings were: Amy Shupert, flute; Tina Kraft, flute; Matt Stargardt, trumpet; Jamis Leadabrand, trombone; and Kathy Pease, piano.

Ensembles that received the coveted I ratings were: Heather Cummings, Kathy Pease and Amy Tunison, flute trio; Dan Boss, Dan Hoadley and Carey Field, sax trio; and Jena Webster, Edith Pair and Mariah Brown, flute trio.

Receiving II ratings were Angela Levengood; clarinet solo; Sue Melke, clarinet solo, and Judy Kluczynski and Kendra Olinger, flute duet.

School to join suit

The Charlevoix Board of Education adopted a resolution asking the State of Michigan to underwrite certain mandated special education programs at its meeting Monday night. The school district will join with the Char-Em School District in sueing the state for the funds to underwrite the mandated programs.

Monday, June 9, was set as the date of the annual school election in a resolution adopted.

At the same time, the board voted to place the renewal of two millage issues on the ballot. The first was 15.2 mills for one year for operational purposes and the second the renewal of 1.25 mills for one year to underwrite the cost of the renovation of the athletic facilities at the high school.

In a motion approved by the board, Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren and Vincent Olach, business manager, and their staff were authorized by the secretary to assist in the election preparation.

The Rev. Duane Nelson, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, addressed the board, seeking the cooperation of the school in conducting a Walk for CROP in September to raise funds for world hunger. The program is sponsored by the Church World Service. He was assured of the school's cooperation.

Barbara Cook, homemaking teacher at the Charlevoix Middle School, made a slide presentation asking that the board return the homemaking program to the high school curriculum. The program was dropped from the curriculum several years ago. She advised that there was interest to fill four classes.

The Charlevoix Community Children's Choirs are working hard in preparation for their spring concert at the Congregational Church on Wednesday, May 21, at 7:30 p.m.

Students with 100% rating honored

The 31 students in the fourth, seventh and 10th grades in the Charlevoix Public Schools who received 100 percent scores in reading and math in the Michigan Assessment tests will be among the 184 in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District to be honored at a special recognition program Friday, April 25.

To be known as the Michigan Educational Assessment Program Achievement Recognition Day, the event will be held at the Petoskey Middle School auditorium at 7:15 p.m.

A reception for the students and their parents, board of education members and others from the eigth school districts in the Char-Em District will be held in the cafeteria at 6:30 p.m. The awards ceremony will follow.

The purpose of this ceremony is to acknowledge outstanding performance of students and school districts. In addition, the elementary, middle and high schools will be honored for having more than 75 percent of their students attain better than 75 percent of the objectives on both tests.

At the awards ceremony, Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren and Max Novak, president of the board of education will present certificates to the 31 Charlevoix students being honored.

This program will highlight exceptional student performance and the dedication of board members, administrators and teachers to quality education.

The names of Charlevoix students and their grade in school follow:

Obituaries

Paul J. Olsen

Funeral services for Paul J. Olsen, 59, president and chairman of the board of Weathershield Sports Equipment, Inc., were held Thursday, April 17 at the First Congregational Church. The Rev. Philip G. Schairbuam officiated.

Mr. Olsen died Tuesday, April 15, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital following a massive heart attack.

Born in Marinette, Wisc., July 3, 1926, Mr. Olsen moved to Grand Rapids with his family as a youth. He graduated from East Grand Rapids High School in 1942. During World War II he served with the U.S. Naval Reserve. He attended Washburn College in Topeka, Kansas, 1947-50, graduating with B.A. and B.S. degrees. In 1950 he joined the family business, the Olsen Knife Company in Howard City as sales manager, purchased the former Paul-Reed company in 1967. Olsen changed the name of the company in 1978 to Weathershield Sports Equipment, Inc., manufacturer of various sports-related equipment. In 1981 he added hunting and sports clothing, following the purchase of American Field. Both lines were sold throughout the world. He was president and chairman of the board of directors of the company.

He was a member of Charlevoix Lodge No. 282, F. & A.M., and the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rites Consistor and Saladin Temple in Grand Rapids and an honorary member of Ducks Unlimited. He was an avid hunter.

He is survived by his wife, the former Erika Myething; a daughter, Gretchen L. Olsen of Petoskey; two sons, Joseph A.J. Olsen of Chicago and C. Darcy Olsen of Davis, Calif.; one grandson; a brother, Lee Olsen, Jr. of Grand Rapids and a sister, Mrs. James (Donna) Seigfreid of Shawnee Mission, Kans.

Cremation followed.

The family suggests memorials to the American Heart Association.

Gas prices come down

Following last week's Letter to the Editor, in which a reader complained about the high cost of gasoline in Charlevoix (over $1 a gallon for self-serve unleaded), we made some phone calls to gas stations and found that things have changed.

Everyone we talked to said that prices had been lowered at the beginning of the week, down to 93.9 cents at two stations and a little higher at others.

When we asked what determined the pump prices, we were told by five persons, "competition".

When we asked if prices would go lower, we were told that they might for a while but would probably start up again in July.

One station operator whose prices were somewhat higher than others said he could not sell for less and stay in business. "I have no control over the price the distributor charges", he said, "and we operate on a very narrow profit".

Forensic students qualify for state

The Charlevoix High School Forensic group qualified five individual events for state competition during regional competition at Ferris State College Friday, coach Connie Ford reports.

"We had 10 events entered. Everyone did a good job. However, as you advance, the competition gets stiffer and it was really tough Friday. I was proud of all the kids. They had all worked very hard," Ford said.

The Charlevoix group took two first, two seconds and one third to advance to the state finals at Ann Arbor, May 3.

Placing first were the open duo of Becca Wallace and Kathleen Buday doing "I Never Saw Another Butterfly" and the multiple, "The Cult that Died," the story of Jim Jones in Guyana. The multiple cast included Marvin Witthoeft, John Grooters, Mike Horton, Jeff Arnold, Ember Spencer, Lori Gleason and Betsy Haggard. All are underclassmen.

Capturing second places in the competition were Tara McLelland in the serious division and the multiple which presented "Sybil". This cast includes Karl Erber, Jennifer Bonar, Kristen McLelland, Val Barnes, Carol Ormsby, Kim Hand and Lori Raymond.

Rusty Coolman placed third in story-telling with his presentation of "Knats of Knotty Pine."

Others who participated were Nick Swanson in the radio division; a 9-10 duo of Kerri McKeown and Barbara McClanaghan; Meagan Johnson, oratory; the open duo of John Gray and Jennifer Sell and Laurie Moore in the service category.

Heather Dietrick in the informative division and the 9-10 duo of Bob Sell and David Salmonson had qualified as alternates but were not called to participate.

The old image of the 9 to 5 secretary is fast disappearing into the sunrise of high technology. Beyond typing and shorthand, all the way to micro-computers and sophisticated equipment, she remains, as always the mainstay of the office staff.

Expected to have information at her fingertips, a pleasant front-office personality and polished telephone finesse, she is also required to be organized for everyone, to type, copy, report, file, to keep books, appointments and schedules, and to open mail so that the letters are still intact for the employer.

It's a frequently-taken-for-granted job well attended to by secretaries throughout the area. Hats off and flowers forward it's National Secretaries Week!

Charlevoix House site sparks adverse reaction

by PEG OHLE

Residents of the 200 block of East Garfield Street and surrounding areas will have a chance Wednesday evening, May 7, to air their feelings about a home for developmentally impaired adults proposed for 209 E. Garfield St.

Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services is planning to move its Charlevoix House, residents from 225 Belvedere Avenue to the Garfield St. address because the former property has been sold and will be razed.

Charlevoix House has been operating for 10 years servicing a maximum of six persons at a time. They are supervised by a married couple who have two children thus giving the residents a home living atmosphere.

Such homes provide shelter and training for persons who would otherwise be kept in large institutions.

At a meeting of the Northern Michigan Mental Health Services Board last week, a petition with 20 signatures was presented by neighbors of the Garfield street address. They objected to the house being used as a shelter home, saying such use would reduce property values and also pointing out that for years the Bergmann Center Workshop was located in the same block.

Condit Drury, a nearby resident wrote "These neighbors have had their share of frustrations with city and state projects in the area." (Charlevoix High School is located across the street.)

Harold Kaufman, director of Northern Michigan Mental Health Services, told the Courier that the house in question is owned by Paul Osterberg, whose asking price is $80,000. Because of strict physical layout regulations for such houses, it will cost about $20,000 to remodel this house, Kaufmann added.

By law residential shelters cannot be denied the right to operate in any area. Since they are considered single family residences, no special zoning permit is required.

The public hearing will be held Wednesday, May 7, at 7 p.m. in the Charlevoix City Hall.

Substance-free party planned

There will be a substance-free party Friday, May 2, for all high school students (9-12 grades) sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

It begins at 8 p.m. and continues until midnight at the Community Reformed Church. There will be concert videos, games, food and snacks, a "wildest shorts" contest, a "knobby knees" contest and a "fudgie look-alike" contest.

The Reformed Church is located on Petoskey Avenue at the corner of Meech Street.

The Chamber of Commerce, working with Jan Boss, Leslie Cunningham and a six-person committee of students from the Charlevoix High School has planned this party which is the result of a growing awareness of special problems of today's youth, a spokesperson for the sponsors said.

Concerned persons in the community have joined together in an effort to meet the needs of the youth by offering an evening of entertainment and fun to which all high-school age students are invited.

County equalization grows slowly

by PEG OHLE

As it turned out, it would not have been such a hot investment, anyway.

Last year about this time we ran a mythical classified ad offering Charlevoix County, its land and everything on it, for $843,563,287, the true cash value as determined by the County Equalization Department.

Last week, the Equalization Department reported that the county was now worth $879,626,208, an increase of only slightly more than four percent for the year. And if a mythical buyer had responded to the mythical ad, he would have been billed $17,860,564 in taxes.

Since nobody "bought" Charlevoix County last year, this year's Equalization Department report indicates it is divided into 21,802 parcels of real property and 803 pieces of personal property.

The real property is divided into 17,280 residential parcels valued at $588,956,508; 1,242 agricultural parcels valued at $48,012,892; 1,096 timber-cutover parcels valued at $17,725,433; 802 commercial parcels valued at $74,405,285; and 134 industrial parcels valued at $78,616,210. Parcels exempt from taxation for one reason or another number 1,248.

As noted above, the valuation of Charlevoix County increased by slightly more than four percent from 1985 to 1986. By political unit, the assessed valuation increased (or decreased) as follows:

Bay Township, 4.69 percent; Boyne Valley Township, 3.16 percent; Chandler Township, 1.74 percent; Charlevoix Township, 3.07 percent; Evangeline Township, 2.56 percent; Eveline Township, 5.04 percent; Hayes Township, 9.08 percent; Hudson Township, 2.37 percent; Marion Township, -1.85 percent; Melrose Township, .31 percent; Norwood Township, 2.64 percent; South Arm Township, 1.29 percent; Wilson Township, 5.64 percent; Boyne City, 5.59 percent; Charlevoix, 5.26 percent; and East Jordan, 5.57 percent.

Since the largest part of property taxes (which are based on assessed valuation) are paid to school districts, the increases (or decreases) in school district properties are noted:

Boyne City School District, 4.41 percent; Charlevoix School District,

Construction work progresses

Work is speeding up on several construction projects around Charlevoix now that the warm weather has arrived. The Edgewater Inn (above) on Round Lake is taking shape and Phase I of the project -- 30 condominium units -- is scheduled for a summer opening. On Lake Michigan, the walls are going up on the city's new water treatment plant (shown at right).

County paid out $2.5 million to treat abuse patients in 1985

by PEG OHLE

Northern Michigan Substance Abuse Services provided treatment for 260 Charlevoix County residents during 1985.

This figure is included in the organization's recently released report, which lists types and costs of services rendered residents of 22 counties in northern Michigan.

The number of Charlevoix County residents treated was the fourth highest of all 23 counties, exceeded only by Grand Traverse, Wexford, and Emmet Counties.

During the year, Substance Abuse Services spent $2,499,722 treating 4,728 patients area-wide, an average of $529 per patient. These funds came from the State Office of Substance Abuse Services, from fees paid by patients, from local units of government, from federal sources, and from a small number of "other" places.

The largest portion of the money--$854,966--was spent for outpatient treatment; next was residential treatment--$609,340; followed by prevention--$518,637; and casefinding--$204,872. The remainder of the budget was spent for administration and operating costs--a total of $281,969.

The primary abuse problem of those treated was alcohol. There were 3,998 admissions, or 84.6 percent of the total, admissions for this problem. While this may seem like a very high percentage, it should be remembered that most people being treated for alcoholism are doing so as part of a court sentence for drunk driving. The "court referral program" reported in connection with these cases refers to services rendered by Northern Michigan Substance Abuse.

The remainder of the admissions were for other drugs of all kinds. The report indicates a substantial increase in cocaine cases and a smaller increase in marijuana-hashish cases.

Admission statistics also show a shift toward a somewhat older population, reversing the pattern of a lowering age of admission for the past three years. Over one-quarter, 28.5 percent, of those treated were between the ages of 30 and 35.

Males far outnumber females in the substance abuse program. In 1985, the figures were 86 percent and 20 percent.

Northern Michigan Substance Abuse Services was set up under Public Act 368, known as the "Public Health Act" to develop comprehensive plans for substance abuse treatment and rehabilitation and prevention services. It operates with a governing board of directors made up of persons appointed by each of the 23 boards of counties served by the program, and an advisory council also appointed by the county boards.

Band wins top rating

The 70-member Charlevoix High School Symphonic Band, under the direction of Terry Isenbarger was awarded its second I rating in three years at the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Festival held in Holt Saturday.

The Charlevoix band was one of three among the 13 Class C bands in the state festival to receive the coveted I rating Isenbarger said.

In winning the I rating, the band received two I's and a II rating in concert and a II in sight reading Isenbarger said.

Isenbarger said the competition was very difficult and that the sight reading division was very hard.

This marks the second I rating the band has received under Isenbarger in the 5½ years he has been in Charlevoix. The first was in 1984. In 1985 the band received a II rating.

"I'm very proud of the band. It's a young group with lots of ninth and tenth grade students. They did a good job" Isenbarger said of the band's performance.

The band spent Saturday night at the Sheraton Inn, returning home Sunday.

Dudley Stevens prepares a 10-speed for the upcoming bicycle season.

Expert offers tune-up tips as bicycle season approaches

by AUDREY DIEBEL COLLINS

It's still early in the season, but come June, Dudley Stevens expects to be a very busy man.

That's when the bicycles get dusted off and cyclists swing into high gear. From Memorial Day through Labor Day, Stevens will be up to his chin in chains, spokes, sprockets, cables and wrenches as Charlevoix pedal pushers seek out his expertise in the bike shop at Bridge Street Hardware.

"We'll do 13 or 14 bikes a day in the summertime," Stevens says. "It keeps one person busy 40 hours a week, plus."

The advent of high-tech bikes with multiple gears, hand brakes and delicate, lightweight racing wheels has transformed the art of bicycle repair into something more sophisticated than many backyard mechanics are prepared to tackle.

"An old single speed bike, anybody can keep them going," says Stevens, who got his start exactly that way – working on minor repairs for simple bikes back in his high school days. During the past five years, however, he has advanced with the state of the art to the point where he now trains the high school students who work as his apprentices.

Store owner Dave Hund, who has been at the helm of the hardware for the past ten of the business's 70 years, says that's how most of his present employees broke into the business.

"We all fix bicycles," Hand says, adding that during the peak of summer, all store employees are called on to aid Stevens from time to time, with both repairs and sales of new bikes and accessories.

"The biggest thing with the ten speeds are the gears, which go out of adjustment pretty easy if the owner doesn't know how to use them," Stevens says. "When we sell a bike, we show the owner how to go through the gears. It helps them understand how to use them properly."

Stevens also tells cyclists that the best way to keep their wheels out of the repair shop is to use them – a lot.

"If the bike is used, the lubrication gets around the cables and keeps them working," Stevens says. "That keeps everything free. Otherwise the cables freeze up and rust."

He warns that the days of greasy, wet oil lubricants are over; ten speeds call for dry lubricants, such as graphite, to keep the intricate works clean and un-clogged.

More tips from the repair shop: Watch curbs and potholes, just as you do with your car. A hit can bend the rim, and if the wheel isn't perfectly aligned, the brakes won't connect properly.

For annual maintenance, Stevens says getting a wheel tune-up is a top priority. Proper spoke tension keeps tire rotation true.

"As you spin the wheel, 'play' the spokes," he says. "They'll all sound the same if they're tight."

He also recommends keeping a bike clean and dry. Window cleaner works well on frames and wheel rims, but a stiff stream of plain tap water on the chain is the best remedy there, with use of a wire brush on stubborn dirt. The chain should be dried immediately and freshly lubricated with graphite to prevent rust.

Long distance bikers usually learn to be their own mechanics out of the necessity of the road, but Stevens says it's a good idea for all riders to learn the rudiments of repair so they don't have to walk home.

The basics require a few simple tools that are easy to carry: a spare tube, a universal cable, spoke wrench and tire tools. An adjustable wrench is also important, but bikers must take care that the wrench is made to fit the axle nuts of their particular brand of bike.

"Having the right tools makes all

Yvonne Wendt named Educator of Year

With the response "C'est magnifique!" Yvonne Wendt accepted the award from Delta Kappa Gamma Society naming her the "Woman Educator of the Year" in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

The presentation was made at the close of a banquet at 218 Bridge Street Restaurant Thursday by Anne Koontz of Harbor Springs chairperson of the nominating committee.

Some 60 members of Beta Omega chapter of the international education society and Charlevoix administrators and teachers attended the event.

Mrs. Wendt was nominated for the honor by Charlevoix school administrators with support from the Charlevoix Education Association.

In introducing Wendt, Koontz said that Wendt's fellow teachers describe her as a "dynamo on wheels, a teacher who ends the day as energetically as she begins it." She also mentioned the "happy atmosphere" that exists in her classroom with frequent changes of pace to keep students interested.

A 1963 graduate of Marygrove College, Wendt came to Charlevoix in 1974 as a sixth-grade teacher and, in 1976, took over the French department. She also has taught English, history, science and psychology, in high school and middle school in addition to French which she taught in junior college and in adult education programs. She has 60 graduate hours in French.

Wendt's four year French program involves 36 percent of the high school's enrollment.

"Seventy-five percent of Charlevoix's students take a foreign language by graduation," Koontz said. Wendt's fourth year students often work with the younger students in the gifted program and she has established a strong and active French club.

"Her premise that students in her class can and will succeed in learning may be her biggest asset," Koontz said.

Wendt also believes in hands-on cultural and language experiences. She had made several trips both to France and to Canada's French-speaking province of Quebec. Only recently she made a trip to Paris with 19 students.

David J. Smith, high school principal, said Wendt is "probably the biggest reason for the growth in our French program. She is the kind of teacher who cares about the little details, one of the things that attract students to her classes. There's a lot of student involvement and participation in her classes."

He noted that Wendt seldom addresses her students, in or out of the classroom, in anything but French.

In addition to classwork, Wendt is involved in numerous professional activities including four years as a member of the curriculum committee and three years on the negotiating committee. She also has served as building representative and sponsor of the national Honor Society and is a member of many professional and community groups.

Wendt thanked members of the society for the award but said the school's administration is mainly responsible for the growth of the language program.

"And, of course the students! I love every one of them," she said.

She also thanked her husband, Richard, for putting up with late suppers because of her busy schedule.

Yvonne Wendt, right, received the Educator of the Year award at a special dinner held Friday. Making the presentation was Anne Koontz.

Letters to the Editor:

Water's Edge sewer assessment defended

Dear Editor,

I was disturbed with Mr. Weber's recent letter re Water's Edge being unfair in paying for only 32 hookups to the Charlevoix Township sewer when they planned a larger development. He felt this was unfair to the others hooking up. I am sure any businessman can see the justification in paying for only enough for the first phase of the development. They would pay for more as the second phase was started. Certainly they could not hook-up without paying. This is only good business.

What a disaster had they paid for 208 and then not been allowed to build that many due to the present conflict! Am sure they could not have received a refund the way the system is set up. Mr. Weber was concerned about his ground being all torn up and uprooting trees, and that Water's Edge would be the same with the sewer installation.

Of course they have to dig to install the sewer, but much restoration has already been made to Mr. Weber's property, and it will all be restored to pre-sewer days, and likewise with Water's Edge. All must be restored as closely as possible to normalcy. Glad he admitted he needed the sewer.

Much has been said by "concerned citizens" and their concern for the "wetlands" at Water's Edge, the lake, and concern for the township. My first husband worked at American Mold when the cottages were built at Water's Edge by the then owner, Mr. Quarnstrom. I remember his talking about digging the pond there – it is not a natural "wetland" as ALERT and WATCH would have you believe.

True, some parts are swampy, and you could not build there, but the pond was actually man-made, not a natural environmental wetland. Am sure Mr. Goldstick and Mr. Plum could tell you more about that. I appreciated Mrs. Maxine Plum's letter about "who watched Charlevoix before WATCH." She knew Mr. Neilson then, too!

As for their concern about the township – the hall was nearly filled at the last township meeting with "concerned" citizens curious to know if the Board would vote for the re-zoning. As soon as it was made known that the vote would be tabled, these "concerned citizens" didn't even have the courtesy to stay for the balance of the meeting, but most of them just got up and left. Concerned about township affairs – or only their own special interests?

We would especially like to thank the participating businesses, Ricciardi's Inn of Charlevoix, Townhouse Bar, Grey Gables Inn, Nanny's Olde Place, and the Flight Deck Bar. Old Glory deserves respect

Dear Editor:

We have had the privilege of living outside these United States as resident aliens. Our time in Montreal, Quebec, Canada was generally a very good time, but there were several things about being "foreigners" which brought us up short: not being able to vote or sing our national anthem, limited access to citizen's services, and living under another flag. The culture was very different from our heritage, and we were enlarged greatly in our perspective of world living, but it wasn't home!

We arrived in Charlevoix just a few weeks before the Venetian Festival and were thrilled to see the American flag on parade, and tears filled our eyes as both the Stars and Stripes and the Maple Leaf passed by on Bridge Street.

We know what it is to not have access to our flag, and it continues to cause me consternation when I see Old Glory not being treated with the respect of our tradition, and our law. It grieves me to see government buildings, businesses, and even private residences flying the flag in all kinds of weather, day and night, without the honor due it.

I think everyone ought to live away from these United States for a time — a new respect and love for our flag would rise up from within each one as it has in us. God's blessings upon our nation.

Indignation on North Point

Dear Editor:

After hearing of the North Point proposal, I contacted a friend, one of your summer people for 40 odd years, who furnished all the details.

I was filled with righteous indignation, which can be a selfish emotion. Selfish, because I've had the privilege of visiting North Point several times and I feel it should be left unspoiled as I remember it. Selfish, because I believe the quiet beauty of North Point belongs to me, though I seldom have the opportunity to enjoy the rapture.

Economic development is, of course, necessary, but pouring concrete housing does not create many permanent jobs. It's great for the developer, the landowner and the construction industry, but it's not much for the longtime summer people whose Xanadu will fall under the shadow of the condo.

In an earlier letter to the editor, Jeanne Gainer of Charlevoix summed it up beautifully. "Encourage small, clean industry to create permanent jobs for the future, and put the condos in the hills, not on the shore."

As an outsider, a selfish one at that, I encourage the voters of Charlevoix to contact their elected representatives and apprise them of your feelings in this matter.

Hats off to OM

Dear Editor:

Having just returned from the unique experience of accompanying Charlevoix's two teams to the Olympics of the Mind at Central Michigan University, we would like to express our appreciation to those who made it possible. Not only was it a worthy investment of time, effort and money on the part of many, but it made a pleasurable, memorable learning event possible for 13 kindergarten through fifth grade pupils and assorted coaches, chaperones and judges.

Charlevoix can be proud of its young representatives. One team placed second in the state-wide meet, "Great Art Lives" division, while the other team gave a commendable presentation of "History the Way It Was." Competition was keen among the 238 teams vying for places in long-term and spontaneous categories, but the patience, skill and dedication of the volunteer parent coaches and the talent, commitment and exemplary behavior of the youngsters paid off and they are to be complimented.

To the many civic and business organizations, the K-3 school administrative staff, and to Kathy Martinchek, Olympics of the Mind State Director, and her assistants who made it all happen and afforded us the privilege of serving as judges, we offer our sincere thanks.

Green thumb bargain

By Bob Clock

I stopped at city hall last week to reserve my city garden plot for the coming season and was surprised to learn that I was only the third person to sign up so far this spring.

Of course, a lot of the regulars will be checking in — particularly with the present spate of hot weather.

But it appears that a number of plots will lie fallow, as they did last year, unless more city residents decide to exercise their green thumbs.

A plot measuring approximately 25 by 25 feet costs a mere $5 for the summer and the price includes tilling and water.

It's the best bargain in town. We are still eating potatoes we grew last summer, thanks to a cool fruit cellar. And there are still several quarts of canned tomatoes in the "cold bedroom."

Furthermore, the gardens provide healthful outdoor recreation and the camaraderie of down-to-earth folks who enjoy helping Mother Nature provide her annual bounty for the dinner table.

Of course, you don't have to grow fruits and vegetables. The fertile soil of the city gardens is fine for many varieties of flowering plants.

AFTER TWO DAYS of 80-degree plus weather, the Gocks were surprised driving through Boyne Falls Sunday evening that there is still snow on Boyne Mountain.

Sort of tells you what kind of a winter we had — in case you have forgotten.

Weather buffs are having fun with the fact that it was almost 10 degrees warmer in Northern Michigan Sunday than it was in Florida.

But wait until next Sunday. We'll probably have a blizzard.

NOW A FASHION note.

If you're preparing a wardrobe for summer, mimic the apparel of Don Johnson on the TV drama "Miami Vice" and you'll be right in step with the times.

We spent the weekend at Livonia West, a Holiday Inn outside Detroit, and were surprised to find that so much Don Johnson-type apparel is in vogue — for both men and women.

You know the kind: Baggy white or light-colored trousers and "Italian waiter" jackets a couple sizes too big. If everything is wrinkled, so much the better.

Furthermore, you don't have to shave every day. In fact, a dark stubble is high fashion if you want to look like Don Johnson. Some women may have a little trouble in this department — but not all.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifeck
Executive Director

The growing awareness of the special problems of today's youth has become a focus for many in the community. Interested groups have formed to discuss the problems the young people of today are faced with.

Working in cooperation with Jan Boss, Leslie Cunningham and a six-person committee of students, the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a substance-free youth night for all area senior high youth – grades 9-12 – on Friday, May 2, at the Community Reformed Church.

The fun goes from 8 p.m. to midnight. Activities will include concert videos, games, food and snacks, a "wildest shorts" contest, a "knobby knees" contest, and the "fudgie look-alike" contest. Admission is $1 which will go toward future activities. For more information, contact the Chamber.

Also the Chamber of Commerce office has a new face! Jackie Krutsch will assume Nancy Kaufmann's responsibilities as office manager at the Chamber office on May 20th. For the next few weeks, she will be getting acclimated to her new duties. If you get a chance, come on in and say hello.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

I hope you have noticed how much the things of this world are like the things of heaven. How often we see things that remind us of the church and Christians. Take, for example, the humble pinecone.

Pinecones are very much like Christians. They, like Christians, are all alike in that each one carries within the seed of life, but beyond that they are every one unique.

Some are long, others short, fat or narrow; there are small ones, large ones, rough ones, smooth ones, spined, twisted, curved or scaly cones. The scales (containing few to several seeds) may be: fleshy, hard, thin, thick, rounded, spiked, prickly, sharp or spined. Colors vary from dull brown, to brown to red to purplish-green to bluish hues.

Scales' cones hang down from the limb, others stand straight up; some are tightly closed, others are open. Some mature in one year, others in two years, and yet others several years. The seeds are used for food for wildlife (some for human consumption), and all seeds are able to bring new life and growth of each kind. Some cones are used for decoration, some for torches, and most for campfires.

There are a lot of similarities between pine cones and Christians, aren't there? There is at least one more fact which is important in our consideration — some varieties of pine cones are only opened by fire. Fire allows for the cone to open and release the seeds which will bring new life and growth to burned-over areas.

John the Baptist stated something like this about the coming of Jesus, "The One coming will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and with fire." (Matthew 3:11, Lake 3:16).

Sen. Irwin to sponsor Elder Aid program

When senior citizens from all over Michigan gather in Lansing on May 13 for Senior Power Day, they will hear about a proposed new program called "Elder Aid".

State Senator Mitch Irwin, a member of the State's Joint Committee on Aging and author of the Older Michiganians Act, has been involved in the preparation of the Elder Aid program and will sponsor and work for its passage.

Explaining the program, Irwin said, "Increasingly, senior citizens are choosing to live in their own homes, rather than accept placement into nursing homes. As the elderly struggle to cope with their strong desire to live independently and productively at home, they are finding limited home health care and few home assistance services. (The most generally available program is the meal program).

Elder Aid will strive to adequately fund in-home programs to serve the home care needs of the growing senior citizen population, and at the same time prevent the growth of costly nursing homes.

The need for assistance to seniors living at home was highlighted in a 1985 survey of 1,224 persons 60 years of age or older by the State Office of Services to the Aging. The need for home health care is shown in the statistic that senior citizens have a one in four chance of spending a portion of their life in a nursing home, pointing to the fact that if there is no alternative to institutionalization, about half of them will face poverty after paying the costs of 13 weeks in a nursing home.

The survey also revealed that 78.3 percent of those sampled were very satisfied with their current housing, while only 1.5 percent were very dissatisfied. Also, 77.3 percent said they would not think of moving.

However, 35 percent of those responding said they lived alone; more than 50 percent have difficulty performing normal home maintenance tasks like mowing the lawn, shoveling snow, and making minor repairs; and more than 20 percent had been hospitalized within the last year, and most were discharged with no follow-up care.

These needs and concerns reflect a specific trend of an older population trying to live independently and productively in their own homes with only limited home health care and other assistance available.

Elder Aid will be promoted to meet these needs.

Spring Carnival entertains youth at elementary again

Simple fun - and lots of it - is what's in store for the entire family when they attend the annual Spring Carnival at the Charlevoix Elementary School, Friday, May 2.

The event is being sponsored by the Parents Advisory Council of the school as a fundraiser. Pat Leadabrand, Council president, said in announcing the carnival.

Beginning at 5:30 p.m. and continuing until 8 p.m. Friday, there'll be all kinds of entertainment and many fun things to do. She continued listing such activities as Spray the Flower - squirting water at a person's head; Wheel of Fortune, a duck pond, a gold fish game and putt-putt golf to name a few.

In addition there will be food—hot dogs, chips and cotton candy plus special cookies that kids can decorate.

A "Body Shop" operated by high school students will offer paint jobs on faces and hands.

Jewelry engraving will also be a feature of the carnival for the first time.

A giant raffle will be one of the main features of the carnival with a 10-speed bicycle and a $50 savings bond as the top prizes plus 27 other prizes donated by local businesses.

Proceeds from the carnival will be used to purchase a new VCR for the school.

The Charlevoix Rayder softball team dropped games to Central Lake Wednesday by scores of 7-1 and 13-3 coach Ron Cox reports.

Central Lake's Treater Johnson, the winning pitcher, allowed one hit in the sixth inning of the first game, a single by Amy Antaya which scored Lara Stargardt who had walked.

The losing pitcher, Michelle Gagnon, allowed six hits on which their hosts scored one run in the third and six in the fifth inning.

Chalking up hits for Central Lake were Lundy with a double, Blamer with a single, Ruth with two singles and Simonson with a single and double.

Netters open season with impressive wins

The Charlevoix High School tennis team added another win to its growing string of victories Friday. This one over the Harbor Springs Rams, defending champions in the tennis conference.

"They're definitely a strong team, I knew that when we went against them," coach Eric Lundteigen said of the meet which, like the earlier one with Petoskey, went down to the last match of the day.

"It was our No. 3 doubles of Quint Walker and Wes Cumberland who played the rubber match in this meet, finally chalking up a 6-3, 7-5 win over Paul Overett and Tom Ranney to win the meet for us. It was as close a meet as we had anticipated," Lundteigen added.

"I was happy with the result, but I know that every team will improve so we must continue to work hard to stay on top," he continued.

The Rayders opened the meet by dropping the first two singles matches. Mike Chew (Cx) lost to Doug Dickinson 6-2, 6-1 and Ty Wagner (Cx) dropped his match to Curtis Johnson, 6-3, 6-3 before Marty Joy (Cx) defeated Rick Shepherd 6-3, 6-1 and Jon Eakes (Cx) evened the score by defeating Sherry Phillips 6-0, 6-1.

In the doubles, Jason Brindel and Jim Ciuk (Cx) downed Matt Guswiler and Tom Overett 6-2, 6-1 only to have Brian O'Neill and Skip Girardin take the second doubles match 6-3, 7-6 leaving Walker and Cumberland to break the tie.

In the seven exhibition matches, Sue Miller (Cx) beat James Walker 8-5; Charlie Witthoeft (Cx) defeated Heather Dickinson 8-1; Dan Bickerstedt (Cx) lost to Larry Clare 8-3; J.D. Boydston (Cx) defeated Bill Shepler 11-9; Matt Dixon and Scott Kelly (Cx) defeated Heather Dickinson and Jim Bernhardt 8-5; Dave Warth (Cx) defeated Bob Casper 8-5; Tara McLelland and Lauren Pace (Cx) lost to Dickinson and Berhardt 8-0.

"Playing in the exhibition matches is a good experience for the younger players. It prepares them for team play," Lundteigen said of the single games that were played.

Charlevoix will be at Boyne City Thursday and will host Petoskey at 4 p.m. the following Monday, May 5.

Tennis history was made by the Charlevoix Rayder netters Wednesday as the Rayders defeated Petoskey 4-3.

"We came close during the years but never quite made it as a team against the Northmen," coach Erik Lundteigen reports. "It was the first time since tennis was introduced as a club sport in 1973 and as a varsity sport in '74 that we've been on the winning end of the score with Petoskey. It's a great victory for our kids," an elated Lundteigen, a member of those first varisty teams, said.

Charlevoix dropped three of four singles matches but came on strong in the doubles division with the No. 1 doubles pair of Jason Brindel and Jim Ciuk winning in three sets against Brian Gietzen and Ken Butcher, 6-3, 7-6, 7-5.

In the singles division, Mike Chew (Cx) lost to Mike Snyder 6-0, 6-0; Ty Wagner (Cx) lost to Mark Heffman 6-0, 6-1; Jon Eakes (Cx) was defeated by Ryan Knoll 6-3, 6-4 and Marty Joy (Cx) downed Dan Cormanican 6-2, 6-2.

In the No. 2 doubles, Wes Cumberland and Quint Walker (Cx) defeated Kevin Gietzen and Bill Meengs 6-3, 7-5 and Dan Staublin and Rusty Coolman (Cx) beat Pete Hill and Steve Hellmer, 6-1, 6-3.

In exhibition match, J.D. Boydston and Charlie Witthoeft won 8-7.

Charlevoix will be at Traverse City St. Francis Wednesday, will host Petoskey Monday and play Harbor Springs Wednesday.

Buday plans satellite seminar

Ed Buday, president of Buday's NCE Inc. announces a Satellite Information Seminar to be held Friday evening, May 2 from 6-10 p.m. at Buday's NCE Inc., 1520 US 31 South across from the Charlevoix airport.

The seminar will discuss current information on scrambling, the latest technological innovations of the satellite industry, consumer concerns about this new technology, and the financing of satellite systems.

According to Doug Buday, satellite manager, there are over 100 unscrambled channels currently aired. Premium channels will be available to consumers for a fee.

Doug and Ed Buday have just recently returned from the Space-STTI show in Las Vegas plus a seminar sponsored by Sat Receiver Ltd. in Green Bay, Wisconsin.

Henry Block, president of Michigan Microwave in Mt. Pleasant, will be the guest speaker at the satellite seminar and will have the latest available facts on the satellite industry. He will be coming directly from hearings on scrambling being held in Adrian, Michigan.

"This seminar is being conducted for all to learn about satellite television and anyone seeking more knowledge and current information, says Ed Buday.

"There are many areas that will never be able to receive cable and these citizens are now able to receive more channels-choices with a satellite dish than currently available to a cable customer."

He says there is one new movie channel scheduled to air May 15 for satellite dish owners only and not available to the cable services. More such channels are anticipated in the future.

Lions evening club organizes in Charlevoix

Recent efforts to organize an evening Lions Club in Charlevoix are progressing nicely, organizers say. The new club will be in addition to the Monday noon club.

Lions Club International is the world's largest service organization with clubs in 160 countries.

The new evening club will provide an opportunity to belong for men in the community who cannot associate with the noon club because of work commitments or other considerations.

Lions Club is a communnity service organization whose sole purpose is to benefit those less fortunate in their own area, or state projects such as Leader Dog or the Michigan Eye Bank and Research Center.

If anyone wishes to find out more about the organization they can contact: Gary Zeitler 547-2201 (work), or 547-6485 (home).

"I feel good when I finish fixing six bikes," he says. "It's nice to know I've accomplished something concrete, instead of picking away at something that is never finished."

Stevens is also a bike rider; owner of a fancy 18-speed job he rides to work every day when it's not raining. But the bike expert has a confession to make.

Hayes seeks grant for park

Hayes Township has applied to the Department of Natural Resources for a Land and Water Conservation Fund grant to be applied against the purchase price of property for a community park.

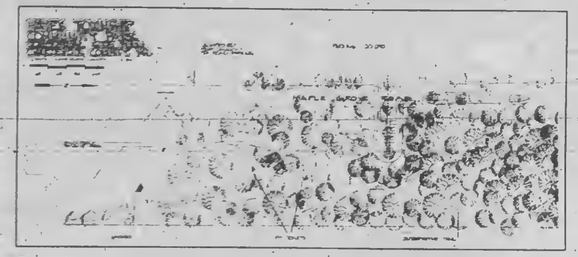
The township would like to purchase two parcels of land consisting of eight acres, bordering on the east side of Maple Grove Road between Lake Charlevoix and the Charlevoix-Boyne City Road, from Clarence H. and Blanche Smith for a price of $250,000.

The township would pay half of the cost and the Conservation Fund the other half.

According to Supervisor Paul Hoadley, Hayes Township has been trying for some time to acquire property on both Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix for recreational purposes. At its annual meeting on April 7, the township set aside $55,000 to purchase such land if, and when it became available.

There is already a public access to Lake Charlevoix at the end of Maple Grove Road, although it has never been improved for swimming or boating uses. There is also a public access site for fishing on Susan Lake in Hayes Township, as well as public access at the end of Townline Road on Lake Michigan, neither of which has a park area.

County Recreation Director Michael B. Davis wrote the grant application and prepared the plans for the proposed Maple Grove Road project. The plans call for a sand beach swimming area, a boat launching ramp, an interpretive trail, a gazebo, pit toilets, and parking areas.



School art students work displayed

The annual Spring Art Show featuring art work done by the students at the Charlevoix Public Schools will be presented at the library of the Charlevoix Elementary School on Division Avenue on Thursday, May 8.

The show will feature multi-media exhibits including three-dimensional work, drawing, painting, sculpture, pottery and jewelry. Mary Beth McGraw, K-5 art instructor and exhibit host, said. There will also be demonstrations of pottery and paint making.

The show will be open to the public from 7-9 p.m., Thursday, May 8, and daily on Friday, May 9, and Monday and Tuesday, May 11 and 12, from 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. for the benefit of those unable to attend the opening show.

Included in the exhibit will be the art work done at the high school under Marti Mathers, the middle school under Roxie Loding and the K-5 school under Miss McGraw.

Also being exhibited for the first time will be the Susan VanWieren Collection which features two pieces from each building which were selected from the 1985 show.

The artwork has been framed and will be part of a permanent collection to be exhibited at the three schools. The collection will be continued with a panel of judges selecting "best in show" pieces to be added annually.

In announcing the show, McGraw said, "Art is an important part of every day living. Like music, it is something to be enjoyed for a lifetime. As art instructors, it is our goal to acquaint our students with the various art media and to instill in them an appreciation of art as well as to develop their own talents.

"We think you will be surprised at the accomplishments of the students, many of whom show great talent," she added.

Performers plan annual dinner theatre

By FRAN MARTIN

A dinner theatre will be presented by the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts students, under the direction of Connie Ford, on Saturday, May 17. The dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

The event will be held at the high school gymnasium which will be transformed into a grand restaurant for the occasion and where the costumed students will serve a delightful menu featuring roast beef as the entree. The meal will also include soup, salad with a choice of dressing, baked potato, vegetables, rolls, dessert and a choice of beverage. The dinner is being prepared under the direction of Doug Buday.

The theme of the theatre show, which promises to be serious as well as funny, is "Fame". It will depict the students from their first day in class until they, too, gain fame as they receive a state award for their production of "Fiddler on the Roof" and special technical recognition.

The Performing Arts Parent support group will chair the general committee for the event with the students assisting. Sue Erber and Joan Buday are co-chairpersons. Sheila McLelland will be in charge of decorations and setup. Jan Wiser heads the telephone committee and Diane Coolman has 200 tickets for sale.

Tickets are $10 each and are available from the students or any parent.

It is being suggested that you give Mom a ticket to the dinner theatre for Mother's Day. It will be an entertaining evening and time away from the stove.

A NEW ... AND BETTER
format for display advertising

On Wednesday, May 7, The Charlevoix Courier will have a "New Look" for its Display Advertisers ... A wider column. For some time we've had wide news columns and now advertisers will be able to utilize the wider, easier to read columns. The new page will be the same as you are reading now, but instead of nine columns, there will be six. Each of the six columns will be 2-1/16 inches wide x 21-1/2 inches deep for a total of 129 inches. Currently our page has 193-1/2 column inches.

New 6 Column

Why Change To A New 6 Column Format?

The change was recommended by The American Newspaper Publishers Association, Advertising Agencies and other industry organizations so newspapers throughout the country could standardize the size of the advertising pages and column width. The 6 column format makes your advertising message more effective. The 6 column format is considered the "optimum format" for readability.

Advertising Costs Will Remain The Same

All ad sizes that fit well our 9 column format can easily be revised to fit the new 6 column format and for the most part at the same cost.

For example: if you normally ran a 3 column by 2 inch ad and your rate per column inch was $2.50, that's 2A" x $2.50 = $60.00. In the new 6 column format that same size ad would fit into 2 columns by 3, the per inch rate would change to $3.75. That's 16" x $3.75 = $60.00. Both ads would be the same size and have the same page dominance under either format.

Column Widths

1 Column	2-1/16 inches
2 Column	4-1/4 inches
3 Column	6-7/16 inches
4 Column	8-5/18 inches
5 Column	10-13/16 inches
6 Column	13 Inches

Water's Edge agreement okayed, WATCH says numbers still high

by DOUG TRUAX

Parties representing the contucting interest groups involved in the Water's Edge condo dispute reached a mediated settlement on Wednesday, April 23, but the agreement was voted down 9-3 by the WATCH board of directors at a special meeting called to ratify the agreement.

WATCH board member Howard Neilson was to meet Wednesday, May 7, with developer Ed Oelschlaeger, president of First Centrum Corp. to negotiate WATCH's objections to the settlement.

Among the key provisions of the agreement were:

– A maximum of 125 condominium units. The developer had originally proposed 208 and most recently 162 units.

– A 100-foot residential setback from the high water mark and a 35-foot greenbelt.

– Density of 2.65 units per acre. Ten acres owned by John McGoff, a partner in the proposed development, would be added to the 41 acres in the Water's Edge project.

– A maximum of 45 condo units on the waterfront.

– Water's Edge Inc., would dismiss the lawsuit against Charlevoix Township.

THE AGREEMENT also calls for Charlevoix Township to develop a statement of policy on lakefront zoning, provide for 100-foot setbacks and 35-foot greenbelts for residential developments, limit lakefront density to a maximum of three units per acre, design anti-funneling language in its ordinance, and adopt lakefront zoning classifications for planned residential and planned unit developments.

The non-lakefront property in the township designated planned residential development would be allowed 15 units per acre, as it was prior to the Water's Edge dispute.

PARTIES TO THE agreement included Oscar Stroud, Charlevoix Township supervisor; Rose Bergmann, township trustee; Mike

Fishing tourney returns to Charlevoix

by DOUG TRUAX

There will soon be a brown trout worth $3,000 swimming the waters of Lake Charlevoix.

More important, perhaps, there will be some 600 fishermen in hot pursuit.

The tagged fish is part of the over $25,000 in cash and prizes that fishermen in the second annual Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament will be vying for May 16, 17, and 18.

Although the tournament is still in its infancy, it is growing mightily. This year's tournament offers nearly double the prize money of the inaugural event. The number prizes will triple.

Tournament organizers also expect around 150 boats to enter the tournament, 50 more than last year. They point out that it will have a healthy effect on the economy as some 30 percent in 1985 came far over 50 miles away to fish the tourney.

Fish can be entered in four divisions: brown trout, lake trout, steelhead and salmon. There will be 15 prize winners in the brown trout category and five places in each of the others.

Fishing boats will also compete for prizes in the "tournament within a tournament" where the top award goes to the boat with the greatest weight for its top 10 fish.

Top prizes this year include 25 and 15 h.p. Yamaha motors from Irish Boat Shop, a $4,599 Hobie power skiff from Walstrom Marine, $3,500 worth of electronic equipment from Fairport Marine Electronics, electronic downriggers from Big Jon and $1,500 in lures from Stinger Lures.

This year activities in East Park will take place under a single 40 x 120-foot tent. Activities in the park will include a chicken bar-b-que at 3 p.m on Saturday, a fish boil by the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club on Sunday at 1 p.m.

On Friday at 6 p.m. there will be a drawing for the $3,500, 19-foot Wellcraft boat and trailer. Tickets for the drawing – $100 each, limited to 200 tickets – are still available.

The tournament will also repeat the popular children's fishing pond in East park on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on Sunday beginning at 9 a.m.

Fishermen can register up to noon Friday when the tournament begins. It continues through 3 p.m. Sunday. An awards ceremony will follow as soon as results are tabulated. Preparing the final statistics should be a lot easier this time around, thanks to a mini-computer donated by the DNR and a program written for the tabulation by Gerald Rakoczy, fisheries biologist at the Great Lakes Fisheries Research Station.

Judges for the tournament will include acting Department of Natural Resources head, Gordon Guyer; Steve Swan, fisheries biologist; Myri Keller, head of the DNR fisheries station in Charlevoix; Jim Champion, head of the Michigan Steelheaders; Mayor Hal Hill; and Ottie Snyder, editor of Great Lakes Fisherman magazine.

Entry fees are $15 for the main tournament and $25 per boat for the tournament within a tournament.

Students form SADD chapter

A group of students concerned with problem of drunk drivers has begun efforts to for a chapter of Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD) at Charlevoix High School.

Under the direction of faculty advisor Ken Pfuhl, a group of some 36 students attended an organizing session and viewed a CBS film on the SADD program.

"The whole goal is to stop kids from driving when drinking," one of the organizers said. "We're trying to get this as being started by kids. A lot of kids don't want their fun being taken away, but I don't see any problem with trying to save a few lives."

Four Charlevoix students recently attended a seminar in Gaylord in which the SADD program was explained to high school students from throughout northern Michigan. Attending were Terry Bonar, Tom Ochs, Ember Spencer and Rusty Coolman.

SADD lists four goals including: to help eliminate the drunk driver and save lives, to alert high school students to the dangers of drinking and driving, to conduct community alcohol awareness programs and to organize peer counseling programs.

The local chapter said it hopes to promote the SADD "Contract for Life" which is agreed to by teenagers and their parents. The teen agrees to "call you for advice and or transportation at any hour, from any place, if I am ever in a situation where I have been drinking or a friend or date who is driving me has been drinking."

The parent, in turn, agrees to "come and get you at any hour, any place, no questions asked and no argument at that time, or I will pay for a taxi to bring you home safely."

The parent also agrees to seek "safe, sober transportation home" if he or she has had too much to drink or a friend who is driving has had too much. Both parties sign the agreement.

SADD emphasizes sober transportation as the key issue, but says it does not condone drinking by those below the legal drinking age.

Charlevoix High School will sponsor an assembly on SADD on Tuesday, May 13.

Big Rock plans mock exercise

by DOUG TRUAX

The timing was purely coincidental. But Big Rock Point's annual press briefing took on an air of importance and immediacy Monday as officials explained the procedures to be followed in the event of a nuclear emergency.

The briefing was just one week after the world learned of the meltdown at the Chernobyl nuclear reactor in the Soviet Union.

Big Rock also announced that it will have its own nuclear emergency – this one a mock incident designed to test the plant's emergency preparedness plans – on Tuesday, May 20.

The news briefing on Monday was held at the Holiday Inn at Petoskey which has been designated the Joint Public Information Center (JPIC) for any nuclear emergency.

The center would serve as a unified media contact point for state, federal and company officials dealing with an emergency.

Consumers Power also used the annual briefing to show its new plume tracking computer. Theresa Hancock, nuclear engineer at Big Rock, said the IBM PC minicomputer has been programmed to assess the radiation doses emitted by a breach of the reactor's containment while factoring in all the necessary meteorological data.

The program provides a graphic display of the radioactive plume and can be used to plot the plume and its expected direction and effect for a 30

Group wants state to close nuclear plants

by DOUG TRUAX

The Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix have called on Gov. James Blanchard to shut down the three nuclear power plants in Michigan, including Consumer's Big Rock Point, in light of the nuclear disaster in Chernobyl, Russia.

Christa-Maria, spokesman for the group which acted as an intervenor in Big Rock's hearings several years ago on expansion of the spent fuel pool, said the Soviet experience shows the risks are too great.

In an official statement she said: "We, the Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix, are joining the Great Lakes Energy Alliance and SECOM (Safe Energy Coalition of Michigan) by asking for the governor for an immediate shutdown of all nuclear power plants in Michigan. We are asking for an immediate shutdown of the Big Rock plant for it does not have U.S. required standard concrete containment shielding. A review of Big Rock's shielding is timely and should be started immediately."

Charles MacInnis, public affairs director at Big Rock, said the group was "grasping at straws, capitalizing on the tragedy in the Soviet Union."

He said, "There is no basis for their charge. Nothing else has worked and now they are using whatever they can find in the newspapers," he added.

Christa-Maria said Big Rock's 4-inch boiler plate containment shield was inadequate. Big Rock is one of two older plants in the United States – the Atomic Yankee plant in Rowe, Mass. is the other – which do not have concrete containment.

"Concrete would be one more line of defense," Christa-Maria said.

She added that we cannot assume we are perfect even though the people at Big Rock are trying to do a good job."

MacInnis said the steel is perfectly adequate to contain the radioactive material at Big Rock. Concrete, he said, "doesn't make any difference as far as the public is concerned." The value of concrete containment, MacInnis said, was strictly to shield workers within the plant from gamma rays.

Water's Edge parties reach settlement

Bonar, Marion Township supervisor; Steve Andreae, Northern Michigan Development Council; John Deery, Water's Edge, Inc.; Oeschlaeger; Jerry Puhl, WATCH president; Marcia Trimper, ALERT; Bunnie Goss, Lake Charlevoix Association.

The mediation was conducted by Lynn Stedman and David Fershee, Petoskey attorneys.

Puhl said the rejection of the agreement by the WATCH board of directors was due primarily to the high number of units still allowed.

"If they got the numbers down, it would do a lot to get the board to go along with it," Puhl said. "There were a lot of things the board agreed with, they just couldn't go along with the 135."

Neilson said he and Oelschlaeger "agreed to meet May 7 to discuss the WATCH concerns regarding the rejection of the mediation proposal. We are both optimistic we can work something out."

MANY OF THOSE in the mediation process expressed skepticism it would work. "While I was skeptical at first regarding the mediation process," Oelschlaeger said, 'it did work. The agreement that was reached does benefit all parties and the community as a whole."

Puhl said he, too, was surprised at the results. "I went into it with an attitude that I would listen to what they would say. But I didn't think there was a very good possibility we could come to an agreement."

IN A PREPARED statement following the mediation, the various groups said that "two important issues were resolved: 1) recommendations for lakefront zoning for Charlevoix Township and 2) approval of the revised site plan of the Water's Edge development.

"The unanimous agreement of both issues was reached in a spirit of conciliation in an effort to pull the community together."

The mediation process was begun by Bruce MacArthur, president of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc., who spent many hours on the phone and in person trying to convince the various contenting parties to mediate the dispute.

MacArthur convinced the KCB executive committee to host the mediation and to establish a special fund for the purpose. The fund, called COOLET (Committee Organized to Oppose Litigation and Encourage Talking) was used to get things started. The lawyers fees for the mediation, $120 per hour for the two lawyers, will be paid for by the three major parties involved. Any balance in the COOLET funds will be transferred to the Chamber of Commerce to host future meetings between various contenting groups.

The details of the mediated settlement were worked out in two evening sessions on April 22 and April 23. An earlier meeting, on April 14 prior to the Charlevoix Township Board meeting, was used to set up the guidelines for the mediation.

The groups estimate they spent 18 hours negotiating the final plan.

THE EXACT STATE of the proposed settlement is uncertain pending negotiations between WATCH and the developer, First Centrum Corp. At the last meeting of the township board, First Centrum asked for a delay in its proposal for a planned unit development (PUD) with 162 condo units.

The township board is scheduled to meet again Monday, May 12. Rose Bergmann said the PUD rezoning will reconsidered then. "I will present a motion to the township board to authorize the rezoning of Water's Edge to PUD," she said. "If authorization is obtained the next step is for Water's Edge to seek wetlands permits from the DNR and other permits from other jurisdictions."

Bergmann said "the zoning board must then provide specific site plan guidelines for Water's Edge. They will be asked to consider the recommendations of the mediation group.

"The zoning board will also be asked to incorporate into the ordinance the lakefront zoning recommendations as presented by the mediation group," Bergmann added.

Charlevoix Township is in the process of forming a new zoning and planning board and will dissolve the current zoning board which has considered the previous Water's Edge proposals.

The new board will be expanded in size and given greater authority. It is assumed that the mediated settlement will be considered by the new board.

New magazine launched by former Central Lake resident

by PEG OHLE

"No, I'm not going to retire in northern Michigan like so many men who grew up here and went to the city to work. That's only because I'm not ever going to retire, however".

So speaks Robert A. "Bob" Eckhardt, but perhaps Bob has a better idea.

Two years ago, this former farm boy from the Central Lake area bought The Torch, the Central Lake newspaper, and last fall he started a slick four-county regional magazine, also called The Torch. Owning these publications gives Bob a valid excuse for leaving his other business interests in Lansing and commuting to Central Lake for long weekends year around.

With two degrees in political science from Wayne State University and his own tax appraisal business, it may seem strange that Bob would return to his hometown to enter into an entirely different field, but he has an answer.

"I bought the newspaper because I like to write", he told the Courier. "When I was at Wayne State, I took one course in journalism and liked it so much that I talked to a Free Press editor about getting a newspaper job. He told me my best bet would be to go back to my hometown and gain experience on a small paper. That wasn't my idea of newspapering then, so I didn't take his advice", Bob recalls.

Until he bought The Torch he had limited his editorial efforts to a staff newspaper he started when he was chairman of the State Tax Commission, and to The Michigan Assessor which he edited, and which won a national award.

Now the later-in-life newspaperman has two publications in which to display his writing talents in both prose and poetry. The editorial page at the newspaper is his responsibility and he writes other articles when needed. However it is The Torch Magazine that gives him an opportunity to write the kind of story he likes to write.

The third issue, the Spring issue, of the magazine came out last week. The first story is by Bob Eckhart. Titled "R and R in Northern Michigan or from the Robin to the Resorter", it records his remembrances of spring on the farm, an all-too-short period of the year beginning with the appearance of the first robin and ending with the coming of resorters.

"All too soon came Memorial Day. Shortly thereafter, the lilacs began to fade, school closed for the summer and for the student living on the farm, work began in earnest. Spring also was fading. Soon the summer residents would arrive. The natives usually called them resorters. When they started appearing in significant numbers, we knew we had said goodbye to the last vestiges of spring".

This story is a good example of the point and purpose of The Torch Magazine.

"Our intent is to keep historical in nature but we will see other stories stray into other areas at times.

However, they will all be about local subjects", Bob explained.

Why did he start a magazine of this type, we asked. Bob told us:

"I have travelled extensively. I've been to almost every part of this country, and I believe that the area from Traverse City to Petoskey is one of the best. I wanted a magazine that would cover that area".

The cover of the Spring issue of The Torch Magazine is a pen and ink drawing by Jane Bock of the Ironton Ferry. Framed in spring green. The story about the ferry, by Eloise Rossiter of East Jordan, recreates its life from birth as a rowboat to the present diesel-powered vessel.

All of the other stories have similar local and-or historical backdrops.

"Memory and Legend", by Deborah Dale Heath of Petoskey, is a tale of fishing on the Crooked River and remembering a special man and his cruiser.

"Glen Sheppard", by Audrey Diebel Collins of Walloon Lake, is a personal profile of this blunt Charlevoix conservationist who once edited the Courier and here puts out his own publication, The North Woods Call, in which he talks to both anyone who would despoil his beloved outdoors.

Barbara Christensen, former East Jordan resident now living in Lansing, writes about "Forgotten Summer Resorts and Estate of Little Traverse Bay. Pictures include the Hotel Perry, Oriental Hotel, Imperial Hotel, and Cushman House in Petoskey, and many other lodging places which once housed visitors to Harbor Springs, Walloon Lake, and towns on the Inland Water Route.

Torch Lake resident Mary Kay McDuffie tells about "The Spring Logging Drive in Antrim County", with pictures of log jams in Bellaire and other places.

"The Deceiving 'Specks'", by Terry Donaldson of Central Lake, an avid fisherman, tells about fishing for brook trout in a small stream near his home when he was a child.

Rick Baetsen, a fisheries biologist who lives near Walloon Lake, writes about "Lake Trout in the Jordan River Valley", telling about the Jordan River National Fish Hatchery near Alba.

"Temple Beth El - Full Circle", by Kathleen Prentice of Traverse City, is a look into the lives of early Jewish settlers in Elk Rapids and the founding of the first temple in northern Michigan.

Kay Hughes of Harbor Springs relates the activities of northern Michigan muzzle-loaders and their participation in Memorial Day and Fourth of July ceremonies at Fort Michilimackinac and other places.

Photographer Bill Hallford of Petoskey presents two pages of pictures of barred owls ranging in age from one week to adult. They seem to be peering right at the reader and saying, "Who-o-o".

Cross Village writer and photographer Kathy Mendoza presents a story of children and spring flowers, accompanied by pictures of trillium, hepatica, meadow pinks, and Juneberry blossoms.

So it's all there as Bob Eckhart planned it—historical research, nostalgic recollections, and enough of what's going on in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego Counties in 1986 to tie it all together.

"Our magazine is for those who read for pleasure and learn from reading". Bob concluded this interview, while giving top credit to his Central Lake staff:

Associate Editor Priscilla Rice, a former school teacher; Assistant Editor Sherry Matz, who lines up writers and photographers for specified stories; General Manager Terry Donaldson, who keeps the whole thing running; Photograph Editor Lynn Carson; Circulation Manager Cherie Hogan; Public Relations Director Katherine Johnson; and Office Manager Joyce Prause.

They know the kind of magazine their boss wants, and they produce it, much to the delight of all who are really interested in this small part of Michigan, United States of America.

Roundup looks at student readiness

The annual Charlevoix Elementary School roundup, held each year to screen kindergarten students who will enter school for the first time in the fall, took on a new look last week.

While recent roundups have been limited to a health review, the program organized by counselor Gayle Gennett had a variety of in-depth evaluations. Included in the session were a Brigance readiness test, evaluations by occupational therapists of fine and gross motor skills, an evaluation by a speech therapist, and a visit by the parent with the school nurse, Gerry Brady.

Parents also gave Gennett a short family history and were able to discuss various issues including the bus run and school residency with principal Vane Smith.

The kindergarten teachers – Dorothy Miller and Diane Priess – also observed the children in a group play situation.

The new roundup program is designed to give parents some sense of where their child stands in relation to others entering the kindergarten, Gennett said. It will also point out things that parents may wish to work on with their child over the summer. "We want parents and the child to feel comfortable about their first school experience," she said.

Evaluations will be mailed out to the parents of incoming kindergartners this week. Over 90 parents participated in the roundup.

Working on the program were 12 parent volunteers. Also helping were personnel from the Char-Em Intermediate School District including Kathy Heckendorn and Jeanie Gorkiewicz, occupational therapists; Laurie Manker, speech therapist; and Bill Maybew, preschool consultant.

Two forensic entries reach finals

Two of the five Charlevoix High School entries in the Individual Events of the State Forensics finals at Ann Arbor last weekend reached finals their coach, Connie Ford, has announced.

Final results regarding the school's standing in its class were not available after scoring equipment broke down, Ford said.

Rusty Coolman, in the storytelling category, placed in fourth, fifth or sixth place in the final standings.

The multiple, "The Cult that Died" with a cast of Marvin Witcheft, John Grooters, Mike Horton, Jeff Arnold, Ember Spencer, Lori Gleason and Betsy Haggard reached the finals. Again, the group's final standing was not made available.

Three others did not advance past the preliminaries Mrs. Ford said.

A limited number of tickets are still available for the dinner theatre being hosted by the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts Group, Ford said. The event will be presented at the high school gymnasium Saturday, May 17.

Tickets are available from Performing Arts students or their adult support group.

The seating is limited and ticket sales are limited.

New format

by Doug Truax

This week's pages of the Charlevoix Courier will look a little different. We are initiating a new size for our ad formats – going from a nine-column page to a six column one.

The new size will not affect advertising rates, but will bring our paper in line with the standard advertising unit (SAU) used by papers thoughout the country.

The new format is supposed to provide the optimum readability its standardization makes it easier to use national advertisements and ads from other sources.

Actually, we changed the news part of our paper to this new six column size just one year ago. Many people commented on the increased readability of the type. We hope this change will do the same thing for the advertising space.

The only disadvantage to running our news material in one size and the advertisements in another has been some weird little white spaces and "holes" on the printed page. Now that we are all on the same system, we expect the paper will have a neater appearance.

Let us know if you notice a difference.

SPEAKING OF ADVERTISERS I is good to have some of our regulars back in print. Most of those who were boycotting us are advertising again and we are pleased about that.

The support we have received over the last few weeks has been very gratifying. In addition to all of the letters which have appeared in print, we have had many people stop by the office or call.

I think what has been most appreciated are those people who gave us their support even though they said they disagreed with our editorials. The larger issue of freedom of the press and the right of a paper to express an opinion is certainly not lost on most of our citizens.

This is especially important, as I have said before, in a small, close-knit community where people on differing sides of an issue are often close acquaintances or friends.

I expect to be writing a good many more editorials that get people's hackles up. If I didn't, I would not be doing my job. But I hope they will provoke thought and discussion and not rancor.

One of the worst sins an editor can commit is boring his readers to sleep. Here's to interesting times ahead.

Clockwise

Class of '46

By Bob Clock

Jill Stewart and Quintin Walker are among those arranging the 30th anniversary celebration the Charlevoix High School class of 1956.

But they have run into a stone wall trying to find the whereabouts of eight class members so they can inform them of the festivities on Aug. 9.

The missing members are Brenda Brown, James Bump, Kathleen Foster, Barbara Joseph, Camilla Maltby, Karen Thrusher, George Farmer and Judy Merica.

If you know where they can be reached, contact Jill at 547-9443 or Quintin at 547-4366.

It would be a pity if they missed the big celebration.

MY OWN graduation from Northwestern High School in Detroit took place 40 years ago this June, but I haven't heard of any festivities to mark the occasion. To the best of my knowledge, the class of 1946 held only one anniversary celebration — No. 10 — and I missed it. Which is just as well. I understand it got so rowdy the police were called.

My class, numbering more than 400, was just too large to be very cohesive. In fact, our high school auditorium was too small to hold the graduates, parents, grandparents and well-wishers, so we had to move downtown to Cass Technical High School which had more commodious quarters.

The only thing I remember about that momentous day was that Mayor Jeffries of Detroit was our commencement speaker. But I can't remember a word he said.

I HAD AN opportunity to visit the Michigan Industrial Arts Society's State Fair at Acme over the weekend and I came away kicking myself for being such a klutz in the woodworking department.

All of the entries were so well executed it was all but impossible to distinguish a blue ribbon winner from an honorable mention.

Michigan kids either have inborn woodworking talent or we have the best shop teachers in the country.

I couldn't help thinking about the birdhouse I built in eighth grade which was entered for some obscure reason in a Detroit-wide woodworking exhibition at Convention Hall. It should never have left the basement.

In the first place, I painted it green and red — a terrible color combination except at Christmas. Of course I split one of the roof boards nailing it in place and I had to patch it together with corrugated steel brads which repeated layers of paint failed to conceal.

Then (I wince to think about it) I had the audacity to insist that my mother accompany me to Convention Hall to view my birdhouse. She said it was a beautiful birdhouse, but mothers are like that.

However, no bird ever set up housekeeping in my birdhouse although it spent many years securely nailed to a crotch of the cherry tree in the backyard. Birds to have their pride, too, I guess.

Today's young craftsmen don't bother with anything as mundane as birdhouses. The Acme exhibit looked like a fine furniture warehouse, with roll-top desks, classic oaken dining room tables, ornate rocking chairs, grandfather clocks, you name it.

Of course, youngsters today have pretty fancy tools to work with, including planers, joiners, lathes, routers and a variety of new-fangled gadgets. But tools cannot explain the quality of work I saw at the Acme fair.

It all comes down to the kids themselves and their dedicated teachers.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifeck
Executive Director

Thanks to a number of concerned businesses and individuals in the Charlevoix area, the "Summer Countdown" substance-free youth night was a tremendous success. Generous contributors provided all the food, pop and other supplies needed to really pull it off. Let them know your appreciation through your patronage.

Doug Shaw, chairman of this year's spring Chamber dance, is really enthusiastic about the plans for the gala event this Saturday night. Those of you who have not yet bought tickets had better hurry! Contact the Chamber office for more information.

Mark your calendars for SnowNorth '86, to be held Thursday, May 8 at the Grand Traverse Resort from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. The purpose of the show is to acquaint the buyers of large corporations from around the country with the products and services of Northern Michigan industry. It's also a good opportunity for the public to become aware of what industrial products and services originate in Northern Michigan.

Registration forms for the 4th Annual Lions Journey for Sight are available at the Chamber office. Teams will be running, rowing, bicycling and walking toward the finish line in East Park. This fun competition is also for a worthy cause.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

John Wesley and George Whitefield were both inspired English evangelists. They preached before thousands and saw many of their listeners commit their hearts to Christ. But it was no great secret that these two great pulpiteers disagreed strongly on questions of doctrine.

It is told that someone asked Wesley if he expected to see Whitefield in heaven, and the evangelist replied, "No, I do not."

"Then you do not think Whitefield is a converted man?"

"Of course he is a converted man!" Wesley said. "But I do not expect to see him in heaven - because he will be so close to the throne of God and I so far away that I will not be able to see him!"

Though Wesley and Whitefield took different approaches, when it came to seeing people know God they were in one accord. As long as we are clothed in human flesh, there are always going to be people who do things differently from the way we'd like. But look beyond those differences to the motives of the heart.

We are blessed in Charlevoix with a wide variety of churches. They span the range of doctrine and theology. If you were to talk to their pastors, they would gladly explain their uniqueness. But if you went beyond those doctrinal differences, you would find one common note emerge. Each one of us want to see you draw closer to God.

We believe in the strength and courage God can bring to your life. We believe in the hope that faith provides in the trials you may face. We believe that the love Jesus Christ shares is a tie that truly makes us all one family.

Just as Wesley recognized the worth and blessing of Whitefield's ministry, realize each church, though different, is the same in its desire to be a blessing to you. We all want to see you come to Christ and experience the fullness of a life of faith in God.

Letters to the Editor:

Water's Edge is a natural wetland

Dear Editor:

I was disturbed by Shirley Johnson's recent letter, which stated much has been said by concerned citizens and their concern for the 'wetlands' at Water's Edge. It is not a natural 'wetland' as ALERT and WATCH would have you believe."

In your Nov. 13, 1985 issue you published a letter to the Editor from the Lake Charlevoix Association Board of Directors which said: "The Water's Edge property is a classic cedar swamp wetland. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources recently evaluated the property and determined that with few exceptions the entire parcel is subject to regulation under the Goemaere-Anderson Wetland Preservation Act."

I'm sure that representatives of the DNR, Messrs. Dick Siddings and Ben Brown, at Bastoamian, who made the survey could tell you more. It was not ALERT nor WATCH who designated it as such.

As for the sewer installation on my understanding that no further assessments are to be made and that Water's Edge would not have to pay for more as the second phase was started." The sewer is in. The outlet providing for 30 units is completed. Any further cost will be for hookup to it.

Also Mrs. Johnson stated that "much restoration has already been made ... and it will restored to pre-sewer days. All must be restored to normalcy. What is normalcy? The area along our road has not been restored to pre-sewer days. As a result of the clearing out for the sewer, many more trees have been blown down. A good job was done on Lakeview Court and Ferry Road, and trees have been replanted on other people's property, but the subcontractor was running short of funds and was allowed to make an attempt to smooth out the mud and throw some grass seed on it, instead of covering it with black dirt and seeding it as he did elsewhere.

I hesitated to write another letter; however, I felt that because the misinformation regarding the Water's Edge "wetlands," the sewer assessment and the property restoration was made public it should be responded to publicly.

Dear Editor:

Enclosed check for one year's subscription to your fine paper (I am 74, my husband is 77, and we are year around residents).

I was distressed and angered at the "businessmen's" boycott of your paper. Think they can cut off their nose to spite their own face."

Michigan launches new tourism push

Beginning April 28, a $1.8 million spring/summer advertising campaign will invite travelers in the Great Lakes region to Michigan and kick off another expected record-breaking tourism season, Commerce Director Doug Ross said today.

The campaign will use television, radio and newspapers in six Great Lakes states, specialty magazines in golf, fishing and outdoor life and regional sections of travel magazines to try and top Michigan's 1985 record tourism levels.

Two new Travel Bureau publications include a spectacular photo of Charlevoix's Round Lake waterfront at sunrise.

"Expenditures by travelers to Michigan rose to $12.6 billion in 1985," Ross said. "That's an 11 percent increase over 1984. State tax revenues totaled $582 million – a very decent return on last year's $9 million promotional budget."

In 1986, the Michigan Travel Bureau's overall budget is $11.8 million, according to U.S. Travel Data Center figures. Only one other state – Illinois, at $15.5 million – is higher.

New materials were developed for the season to serve two marketing thrusts: mass media (print and broadcast) and the state's direct response program for inquiries received by telephone operators at 1-800-5432-YES.

Using the evocative "I Am Michigan" theme developed a year ago by Ross Roy, Inc., a new television spot scheduled in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan will feature Michigan's number one natural resource and recreational attraction: water.

Advertising schedules, both for television and print media, will reflect the state's new emphasis on out-of-state cities whose citizens, research shows, are likely to visit Michigan. For 1986, those include Chicago, Cleveland, Indianapolis and Milwaukee.

Several new color magazine ads will supplement the "Long blue edge of summer" two-page spread from 1985. Featured attractions will include a string of cottages on Portage Lake at dawn; the lighthouse at Holland, and Detroit's Trapper's Alley, Renaissance Center and Cranbrook.

The latter three magazine ads reflect an increased emphasis on visitors to urban areas, Ross said that 16 percent of all travel to Michigan in 1985 was to Detroit. The state has budgeted $300,000 for the urban campaign in this fiscal year.

New ads were also developed for fishing, outdoor, canoeing and golf magazines. "Of all my shades, you'll like my greens the best," is the copy which appears with a muted photo of golf course at sunrise.

Radio spots scheduled throughout the region will carry through the "I Am Michigan" theme. One, with a somewhat more humorous approach, will position Michigan, with its myriad of natural attractions, as the world's largest amusement park.

Another spot will specifically address research which shows that visiting family and friends is the number one reason for trips to Michigan. Newspaper ads will reinforce the message. In both, Michiganians solve the problem of entertaining out-of-town visitors with a new Travel Bureau publication: The Travel Planner.

The Travel Planner lists more than 300 spring and summer festivals, events, museums, theaters, tours and scenic sites throughout the state including several in Charlevoix and Beaver Island, organized by city, to help Michigan residents help their visitors explore the state. Fall and winter editions will also be printed each year.

Supplementing the Travel Planner is a new "Lure Book" – a colorful, four-season photo montage of some of Michigan's most beautiful sites. The two publications will be distributed to inquires who request information about visiting Michigan.

The logo used in all print materials will reflect Michigan's 1987 Sesquicentennial: The number 150 in red with blue waves underneath it, blending into the traditional YES MICHIGAN.

Industrial Arts students bring back state awards

For the second time in two years, the Charlevoix Middle School has had a blue ribbon winner at the Michigan Industrial Arts Society State Fair held at the Grand Traverse Resort Friday and Saturday.

He is Pat Elliott, eighth-grade student, who was awarded a coveted first place for his red oak and Padre (a type of wood imported from Africa) coffee table. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Elliott.

In 1985, Robert Coen, then an eighth-grade student, was awarded a first place as well as best in his category.

Fourteen Charlevoix Middle School eighth graders in Jerry Puhl's special Industrial Arts class qualified their respective projects for entry at the state fair. Twenty of the 13 projects were among the top 10 in the state in their respective categories. The 10th received an honorable mention.

Other entries and their projects and results follow:

Second place: Greg Sheppard, red oak and walnut coffee table. Ryan Holmes, walnut clock and Dart Clock, exotic wood cutting board.

Third place: Matt Gibbons, tray and three containers with lids of Honduras mahogany; Tom Jervis, hand-carved clock of Honduras mahogany and Tim Heine, metal hammer.

Fourth place: Dan Newman, nautical lamp; seventh place: David Puhl, oak and walnut stereo cabinet; eighth place: Gibbons, nautical lamp; ninth place: Chrissy Dillon, mahogany turned vase; 10th: Robin McClanaghan, football table of red oak; honorable mention: Jeff Kimble, wood turned vase.

Puhl said he was very pleased with the students in the special industrial arts class and with their projects. "Often times the student would want to tackle a project I felt was too difficult. However, if he was determined, I would explain the odds against him and if he still wanted to do it, I would give permission.

"I found that even if they made an error, they were so determined that they'd find a way to compensate for it. This group of students is an example of what you can do when the kids have the ability and the motivation" Puhl commented. "This was, indeed, a unique group. They have set a high benchmark for the students who will follow," he added.

The prize-winning items were to be displayed at the regular meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night and will be on display for the remainder of the week in the lobby of the First State Bank at 110 State Street.

Band receives II rating

The Charlevoix Middle School band, composed of 51 eighth-grade instrumentalists received a II rating in the Junior High Division of the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association state festival held at Gladwin Saturday.

The band, one of the smallest entered in the festival, received II ratings across the board in both concert and sight reading. They also received 5 plaques from all the judges so they were "high II's," director Terry Isenbarger said.

The Charlevoix band, entered in Class C, was in competition with students from larger Class B schools entered in the same class so the majority of bands were much larger. As a result it was a hard festival for the small band. "We were glad to receive a II, considering the competition," Isenbarger added.

The band played the "Old Dominion March" by O'Reilly, "Brook Park" by Swearingen and "White River Canyon" by Higgins.

Band Boosters to meet

The Charlevoix Band Boosters will hold an important meeting at the high school band room at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 13, Terry Isenbarger, band director, has announced.

He has asked the parents of all band members in grades 4-12 to attend the meeting at which several important issues are to be discussed.

They will include future plans including summer uniforms, a possible trip for the high school band and fund-raising projects.

There will also be an election of officers.

mile area.

She said the program can be updated with new information every 15 minutes and will show actual and projected radiation dose levels.

Data from the plume tracking program would be used to advise the governor and other emergency officials on the extent of the problem, allowing them to plan for evacuation or other remedial actions.

Hancock also said the plant will use its capability to conduct environmental studies on background radiation to monitor the air and water in the coming weeks to see if this area is receiving any fallout from the Chernobyl incident. As of now, none has been detected.

The press at the briefing heard from James Tyler, of the State Police emergency management division, David Hoffman, Big Rock plant superintendent, and Charles MacInnis, public affairs director for Big Rock.

MacInnis said after the briefing that the recent Chernobyl incident "gives us a black eye. It comes from people (the Russians) who do not subscribe to the same safety requirements as we do," he said. "If they lived under the same rules as we do and had the same safety systems it (the radioactivity) would never have gotten past the plant."

East Jordan computer team takes first place

For the second year, East Jordan High School took first place in the advanced division of Lake Superior State College's annual high school computing competition.

Accumulating 262 points, the four-student East Jordan team outdistanced Sault Ontario's Bawating Collegiate's second-place, 264-point finish. White Pines Collegiate, Sault, Ont., took third place with 174 points.

"This year's competition was a great success," says Prof. Tom Boger of the LSSC competer science faculty, "with twice as many teams competing as last year."

The 26 teams from 17 Michigan and Ontario high schools met in the Norris Center ice arena. Each team was allowed the use of two computers and a printer to solve 16 problems with values of 10, 20 or 40 points. Schools could bring their own computers or use ones the College provided.

The competition was the second sponsored by the LSSC Association for Computing Machinery, a student organization, which developed the competition problems. ACM members served as judges.

During the competition sponsoring high school teachers participated in a conference on computers and computer education.

Tree trimmers urged to use caution

Caution, tree trimming can be hazardous to your health. There's no such warning on trees or pruning saws, but Richard G. Dahlquist, area community services director of Consumers Power Company, urges prospective tree trimmers to exercise care just the same.

With warmer weather finally here, Dahlquist warns people planning a tree trimming project to make sure they stay away from overhead power lines while doing their cutting. "If a limb does become entangled in your electric service lines, call the local power company right away. Don't try to remove it yourself and take the risk of a disabling injury," Dahlquist said.

In 1985 there were 336 temporary electric service outages affecting 34,539 customers due to tree trimming incidents throughout Consumers Power's 27,200 square-mile service area in Michigan. One of them became an accident when a man received a shock while trying to disentangle a felled tree from a 14,400 volt primary power line.

People can receive an electric shock simply by touching a tree that has fallen against an energized power line. "Many people are not aware that trees can conduct electricity, but they can particularly when they're wet," Dahlquist said.

He offered the following for safe tree cutting.

- Before any pruning, check thoroughly for the possible presence of electric wires.

- Plan your cutting to prevent falling limbs from coming in contact with power lines.

Captain, sails on

"Get the heck outta bed" may not be heard much longer throughout northern Michigan as Bill Vogel, "The Captain," is moving on.

Vogel, who for the past 2½ years has headed up the WKHQ staff as station manager, alternate morning host, and afternoon drive personality, has accepted a full-time position as vice president in charge of sales and marketing with Audio Graph Productions, a midwest recording studio specializing in the creation of musical arrangements of film scores and advertising thematic campaigns.

Audio Graph Productions has produced dozens of award winning campaigns both nationally and locally, with clients such as ABC News, Amway Corp., Upjon, Oldsmobile, Kelloggs of Battle Creek, Sheraton and Dow Chemical.

"I've been working with AGP for the last 6½ years as a part-time capacity," Vogel said, "and as much fun as I've had being on the air, my first love has always been working directly with clients helping to solve advertising problems at all levels."

Vogel says he has no intention of leaving northern Michigan behind. "Charlevoix will always be my home and I'll continue to work closely with clients in northern Michigan."

Michigan magazine features MSU authors

Several Michigan State University and Michigan Sea Grant authors contributed to a special issue of Michigan Natural Resources magazine titled "A Tribute to the Great Lakes."

"Paradise Found" was written by Daniel J. Stynes, MSU professor of park and recreation resources and recreation-tourism research coordinator for the Michigan Sea Grant College Program. Stynes' article details the economic value as well as the aesthetic appeal of the Great Lakes recreation-tourism industry.

Charles E. Cleland, professor of anthropology, describes the original inhabitants of the Great Lakes region in "Gitchee Gumee Land" and outlines the current situation of native Americans.

Alfred M. Beeton, University of Michigan professor and director of the Sea Grant program, chronicles the history and research into Great Lakes problems in "Ahead of the Game."

Kerry J. Stickler, MSU graduate student in resource development, wrote a profile of the Great Lakes basin, titled "Sweetwater Seas" and short descriptions of each of the five large lakes.

Charles Pistis, district Extension Sea Grant agent, is featured in "Living the Lakes," a series of personality sketches by Doris Scharfenberg, noted Great Lakes travel writer.

Millie Flory, Kurt Byers and Suzanne Tainter, of Sea Grant, supplied photos and illustrations for the issue.

Carol Swinehart, Sea Grant communication specialist at MSU, wrote the issue's "Bookend" and coordinated the special project, the largest single issue in the magazine's 55-year history.

Arnold announces candidacy

Ironton resident Lee Arnold is the first announced candidate for the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners in the August primaries.

Arnold is seeking the District 5 office now held by Charlevoix Township resident Dog Smith, who represents western Eveline Township, Marion Township, Norwood Township, Charlevoix Township, and St. James and Peaine Townships on Beaver Island.

Arnold told the Courier that his nominating petition contained signatures from voters in all the townships in the District. He also said he had been looking into some questions about county government operations, including:

Why the Charlevoix County Equalization Department needs eight employees and the same departments in Emmet and Antrim Counties have only four and three employees, respectively? He also wonders if the Equalization Department should be doing both assessing and equalization work.

Why the County Board does not give the Sheriff the funds he says he needs to operate his department efficiently. "Whether the Sheriff is right or wrong, the County is leaving itself open to law suits if he cannot do both his corrections and police department work," Arnold warned.

Does the County Bus System serve the county as it should? At least it needs an overhaul, according to Arnold. "Do we need all those buses running back and forth empty much of the time, and why are they being used as a school transportation system?" he asks further.

"Representation is the main reason I'm running for office," Arnold continued. "My neighbors don't feel they are represented on the County Board.

"Last August we asked the County Board about re-opening its Solid Waste Management Plan and using it as a tool for enforcement. As yet we haven't gotten an answer. There's an apparent lack of interest in solid waste altogether. They keep saying it will be 10 or 20 years before we can have an incinerator plant. It looks like they are trying to push it off," Arnold concluded.

Morel season arrives here

An army of nearly 500,000 persons will venture into Michigan woods and fields in May to bag one of the state's most elusive but tasty prizes – the morel mushroom, according to AAA Michigan.

Morels are sought in two edible varieties. Black morels are most abundant in the northern half of the state while white morels are plentiful in many hardwood forests throughout Michigan.

Seasoned mushroom hunters suggest the best place to search is on gently rolling land covered by hardwood trees, including dead elm or poplar, with a lake or river nearby. The south slopes of hills, valleys and around elm stumps also are good hunting spots.

AAA Michigan advises hunters to learn the difference between edible morels and poisonous mushrooms and not to pick anything if uncertain. Black morels have deep dark-cream to brownish-black irregularly spaced pits on a hollow top attached at its base to a hollow stem. White morel tops vary from light cream to yellowish-brown.

Weather determines the quality of morel growth, and the warm temperatures and abundant moisture early this spring were ideal. However, mid-April's cold spell has pushed the start of the morel season back from late April to early May in most regions.

There are a number of morel mushroom festivals in the state where hunters can enjoy the fun and, if necessary, learn how to find and identify edible morels.

Major events include the Morel Mushroom Festival at Harrison and Mushroom Mania at Onaway, both May 10; the National Mushroom Hunting Championship, May 10-11, in Boyne City; Mesick: Mushroom Festival, May 10-18.

Up-to-date morel information is available from local chambers of commerce and festival organizers.

A Michigan Department of Natural Resources guide provides more information about Michigan's 2,500 varieties of mushrooms. It is available, free by calling (517) 373-1220.

Jerry and Carla Pease take a moment to appreciate Jerry's newly renovated meat store. Louie Edwards, left, stands ready to wait on customers.

New meat shop opens

The building at 106 East Lincoln Street, which long housed Gebeau's Grocery, re-opened last Saturday as Jerry's Meats.

Owner Jerry Pease has renovated, painted, and refurnished the store, keeping the old-fashioned store front but adding modern freezer, refrigeration, and display units.

Pease and two of his employees, Louie Edwards and John Smith, are experienced in the meat business, having worked together at another local market for several years.

They specialize in custom cuts, deli meats, party trays, and cooked-to-order hams, roasts, and ribs.

As it did for many years, the store also serves as a neighborhood source for such staples as bread and milk, eggs, and some canned goods.

It will also carry a full line of cheeses and crackers, soft drinks, beer and wine, and ice.

"About 85 percent of our business will be in meats". Pease said, "but we are also a party store and a neighborhood convenience store".

Pease was born and raised in Charlevoix; graduating from Charlevoix High School in 1972, and is a member of the Charlevoix fire and ambulance department. He and his wife, Karla, have two children, Kathy, 13, and Christopher, 10.

Phone orders (547-5184) will be handled promptly. Pease promises.

Women's Club installs new officers

Officers for the 1986-87 club year were installed at the recent meeting of the Charlevoix Women's Club held at the Fireside Restaurant.

Lucille Witthoeft was installed as president by Lucille Martin, the installing officer. Others installed at the same time were Ida Nall, first vice president; Pran Tollas, second vice president; Jeanne Lignell, third vice president; Gertrude Holt, recording secretary; Dorothy Stbel, corresponding secretary; Julia Leedy, treasurer.

Mrs. Martin presented a brief history of the club at the luncheon. The present club, she said, was formed in 1968 when the former Dickens and Shakespeare Clubs joined together, combining memberships and opening the membership of the newly-formed club to the residents of the community. Through its efforts since 1968, the club has contributed more than $15,000 to various community projects. There has also been a sustained interest in the Book Review Group.

At the brief business meeting, plans were completed for the annual tea honoring the girls in the graduating class at the Charlevoix High School and their mothers to be held at the Charlevoix Yacht Club on Sunday, afternoon, May 4. The tea is scheduled for 2 p.m.

Charles Bentley, counselor at the Charlevoix High School, was the guest speaker at the meeting, spoke on the subject "How to feel better about yourself." He stressed the importance of communication and added that the words "We assume" are dangerous ones, that one should not assume anything. He also said that if someone rejects you, you are not meeting the needs of that person.

Mrs. Nall was in charge of arrangements for the luncheon which launched the club's activities for the year.

Health official urges blood pressure checks

Northern Michigan residents should have their blood pressure checked during May, National High Blood Pressure Month, urges Doctor Brian L. Youngs, medical director for District Health Department No. 3.

According to Doctor Youngs, about 30 percent of our areas adult population suffers from high blood pressure, or hypertension, and many are unaware of their condition. Although, more than one half of all hypertensives are aware of their condition, only about 10 percent maintain treatment that keeps their blood pressure under control.

Elevated blood pressures - if left untreated - can lead to strokes, heart failures, or kidney disease. Blood pressure is the force of blood pushing against the walls of the blood vessels. High blood pressure results when blood vessels become narrow, forcing the heart to pump harder to push blood through the body.

"The causes of high blood pressure are unknown, Youngs says. Salt intake, obesity and lack of exercise contributes to the disease. Although there is no cure, the condition can be controlled through daily treatment that includes salt reduction, weight loss, moderate exercise, and daily medication.

According to Dr. Youngs, "patients sometimes have trouble adhering to treatment because it requires a change in routine activities. Unwanted side effects that occasionally occur from medication also deters treatment maintenance."

"It takes a daily, lifetime commitment that many people tend to neglect. I would like to encourage everyone to make a special effort to have their blood pressure checked this month," Youngs says. A painless blood pressure check can be done at clinics held by the District Health Department (call nearest office for scheduled times, Charlevoix 547-5523) or by one's own physician.

An After Hours Clinic ... What a great idea!

HEALTH CARE NEEDS DON'T ALWAYS HAPPEN DURING BUSINESS HOURS

A bad cold. Sore throat. Sprained ankle. The flu. These are all things that can make you feel miserable. When they occur the best thing to do is see a doctor. But for many people it's very difficult to get to a doctor's office during regular business hours. People who work days or who have other responsibilities can't just drop everything to go see their doctor for what may be just a minor problem. Now they don't have to. The Charlevoix Area Hospital is designed to make health care more conveniently, available for any non-emergency problems. It's open evenings and weekends so people who are occupied during the working day can now see a doctor and feel better without missing a minute of their busy schedule.

IT'S WORTH IT FOR THE PEACE OF MIND ALONE.

It's late at night and your child has a fever. The family doctor is out of town. You can't help but wonder if it's something more serious than the flu. Don't hesitate. A physician is on duty at the After Hours Clinic until 11 p.m. every night, seven days a week, 365 days a year. Even holidays. You don't even have to call ahead. Just bundle up the child and go see the doctor. No matter how minor the problem might be, he'll provide prompt, friendly treatment for about the cost of a regular office visit. Doesn't that beat a sleepless night of worrying?

NON-EMERGENCIES ARE NOW WELCOME IN THE EMERGENCY ROOM

Going to the Emergency Room with a problem that turned out not to be an emergency used to be a costly mistake. Charges for ER visits are expensive and many insurance plans will not cover the cost unless the illness or injury fits certain criteria. At the After Hours Clinic, located in the hospital's Emergency Department, treatment can be obtained for non-emergencies at non-emergency prices. A Clinic visit costs $25. Five dollars more if billed. Additional services such as lab or X-ray are extra. Visa and MasterCard are accepted.

THE DOCTOR IS IN, 24 HOURS A DAY

There has long been constant physician coverage of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Emergency Room. But before now, the doctors were not required to be physically present in the ER 24 hours a day. Under the new ER setup, staff physicians will rotate to provide onsite coverage for emergencies 'round the clock, 365 days a year.

Divers explore lake depths

by DOUG TRUAX

A dozen State Police diver trainees got a chilly and sometimes frightening introduction to deep water diving in the depths of Lake Charlevoix last week.

The trainees were in Charlevoix to complete the last phase of their five-week training which includes three weeks in the classroom and two in the field.

The introduction to deep water diving came on a dive in 90 to 100-foot water as the novice teams tried to locate the pickup truck driven by the late Rex Blanchard who plunged to his death while driving across the ice last winter.

Three-man teams, hanging onto a towing bar, entered the water for 20-minutes each and were pulled behind a DNR vessel. The first group down found the water dark and a bit forbidding at 100 feet. On their second try down one of the divers had his air hose torn from his mouth by an inadvertant elbow from his diving partner.

After being unable to locate his own regulator, he motioned to borrow his buddy's and his partner in turn fumbled in the dark for the muspiaced hose.

At about this time the third diver, located the truck. The divers then sorted out their air lines and returned to the top. "That's why we train so hard," one of the veterans commented.

While in Charlevoix the divers also explored the schooner Keuka, which sunk off Ferry Beach a generation ago and scoured the bottom of Round Lake and the Pine River channel, retrieving a variety of junk that ranged from an old bicycle to a waterlogged copy of Playboy magazine.

The divers of the state Underwater Recovery Team are under the direction of Sgt. Jim Ewers. The rookie divers have completed close to 200 hours of course work and pool instruction in preparation for their two weeks of diving.

Once they are certified, the divers will train two days a week during every month of the year.

Misty weather didn't dampen spirits as ground was broken for the new McLelland Home Furnishing store on M-66 last week. Taking place in the event are, from left, Oscar Stroud, township supervisor; Tom Ceran, co-owner; Bob Ouderkirk, builder; Marvin Roberts, contractor; Dennis McLelland, co-owner; and Skip Roberts, contractor.

McLelland's breaks ground for new home furnishings store

McLelland Home Furnishings of Charlevoix broke ground last week at the site of its new store to be constructed on M-66 north of the Department of Social Services building.

Bob Ouderkirk, owner of the land is having the building constructed for McLelland's. He expects the project to be completed by late summer.

"The new store will have a whole new look to it," said owners Dennis McLelland and Tom Ceran. They said the new location will allow them to offer many new products and services. "We are very excited about the move and will be running special sales to prepare for the change of location," they added.

Seals and Roberts Construction Co. of Walloon Lake are the primary contractors on the job. The store will be a Star Building, the contractors said, constructed of prefabricated metal and containing some 10,000 square feet of floor space.

McLelland Home Furnishings is currently located in the Captain's Corners shopping mall.

School accepts bids for buses

The Charlevoix Board of Education voted to purchase two new buses at its regular meeting Monday night.

The low bid of the Fochtman Chevrolet Buick Co. bid for two chassis for $30,990 each was accepted. The five bids received ranged as high as $33,453. The specifications had designated gasoline engines. Two of the five bids were for vehicles with diesel engines.

Bids on the bus bodies ranged from $27,246 to $29,448 each. The low bid of the Great Lakes Coach Co. for Blue Bird bodies was accepted.

In other action:

The board offered for sale through area realtors its building trades house on Lot 5 in the Maple Leaf subdivision on U.S. 31 South for $58,000. The three bedroom house with 1700 sq.ft. of floor space has a full basement, two-car garage and is located on a 100x300 foot lot.

Granted a year's extension on a leave of absence to Nancy Nagurka with the understanding that she may return if there is an opening for which she is qualified. She taught middle school English.

Township OKs Water's Edge compromise

After several months of bitter feuding, developers of Water's Edge in Charlevoix Township and controlled growth advocates shook hands Monday to signal the full acceptance of a mediated agreement.

The township board voted unanimously to rezone Water's Edge from R-2 (residential) to PUD (planned unit development), allowing developers to build up to 135 condominium units on a 51-acre parcel along Lake Charlevoix.

While the township zoning ordinance allows a maximum of four units per acre for a PUD zone, developers agreed through mediation to lower the density of Water's Edge to 2.65 units per acre. Developers had previously proposed a site plan of 162 units, which was scaled down from 208.

Under the agreement, lakefront construction will be limited to 45 units to a depth of 600 feet, or roughly one unit per 33 feet of frontage. The remaining units would be situated behind a wetlands area pending approval from the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

Furthermore, developers agreed not to exceed 120 units until a five-member panel has assessed the impact of 15 additional units on the existing wetlands.

Resolution of the conflict over Water's Edge came after interested parties met with Petoskey attorneys David Fershee and Lynn Stedman, who specialize in joint problem solving. A tentative agreement was reached following some 18 hours of negotiations.

However, the board of directors of WATCH — Water and Air Team Charlevoix — voted not to ratify the agreement because of concern over the number of units. Howard Neilson of WATCH met with Ed Oelschlaeger, president of First Centrum Corp., last Wednesday in Detroit to settle the density dispute.

The agreement was finalized shortly before Monday's meeting after its review by attorneys for WATCH and developers.

Sitting on the five-member panel will be a representative of WATCH, a limnologist designated by WATCH, a DNR official, a member of the township board and a developer.

"I'm all for what we have here," said Jerry Puhl, president of WATCH. "You're not going to have everything clustered down in front."

Added Marcia Trimper of ALERT — Area Leaders Environmental Response Team, "We have been meeting regularly with Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council). I just want people to know we didn't pull these numbers out of the air. They were given a great deal of thought."

Oelschlaeger, whose East Lansing firm is the primary developer of the John McGoff-owned Water's Edge property, seemed equally pleased over the outcome.

"It will work very well," he said.

"After the Storm," a photograph of sailboats drying their sails in Charlevoix Harbor, is an example of the artistry of Bob Miles' photographic work. It is included in the book, "Bob Miles' Charlevoix."

Bob Miles had love affair with Charlevoix

by PEG OHLE

The man who had a "long-standing love affair with the City of Charlevoix" died last week.

Robert C. "Bob" Miles expressed that love in many ways but he will best be remembered for his legacy of local history in pictures.

"Bob Miles' Charlevoix–A Century In Pictures", a beautifully bound volume containing pictures of Charlevoix and Charlevoix people was published in 1976 as a bicentennial project of the Charlevoix Historical Society.

The above quotation about Bob's love affair is from the preface to that book, written by a friend. The book contains 385 photographs, complete with captions and other explanatory material, all prepared by Bob and given to the Historical Society as his contribution to the Society's Museum building fund.

Sales of the book netted almost $40,000, which was spent to renovate the Harsha House on State Street into a museum facility. The museum which Bob Miles made possible now houses his extensive personal collection of old photographs. Some of them he "shot" himself, and those taken by others he carefully collected, researched, and reproduced.

Bob Miles started seriously collecting old photographs in 1957, the centennial year of the City of Charlevoix, when he put his own small collection on display in this photography studio and let it be known that he would be glad to copy old prints for the same purpose during the centennial year. He was soon swamped with photographic nostalgia and began putting the pictures in albums so they would not return to oblivion.

Robert Miles — 1902-1986

The museum collection has been prepared for the specially-built filing cabinets, which, with a cross-indexing system, makes it possible to research almost any aspect of the history of Charlevoix and surrounding areas.

Another Bob Miles collection of old photographs is contained in seven volumes in a specially built cabinet in the Charlevoix Public Library.

While Bob Miles' photographs are tangible evidence of his interest in and love of his city, his many friends will also remember him for the gracious way in which he shared his knowledge of places and people of years gone by. He always had time to answer the questions of newspaper people, students, and others seeking historical information.

Bob Miles also enjoyed working with Petoskey stones. In 1976, he completed a "bicentennial tower" of polished Petoskey stones which is now in the Historical Society Museum. It is eight-and-a-half feet tall, weighs about 235 pounds, and took three years to build.

The bicentennial tower consists of 200 "stories", each of which represents one year in the history of the United States. The outer square of the base represents the country before the coming of the white man. The inner square of the base is made of 13 sections, each representing one of the original colonies. On each corner of this square are elevated letters. "S", "W", "P", and "A" indicate the four basic freedoms of speech, worship, press, and assembly.

The tower builds upward with special markings for the wars in which this country has engaged, depression days noted by black Petoskey stones, and the single story at the top (the 200th) commemorating the nation's bicentennial. Topping the final story is a replica of the Washington monument.

Bob Miles collected, cut and hand-polished all of the Petoskey stones used in his tower, another contribution of time and talent to his city and its people.

Bob Miles lived most of his life in Charlevoix. He was born in Lupton, a small town near Rose City, where his father owned a theater. After the theater had burned down twice, the older Miles gave up and moved to

DDA districts altered

Downtown development authority boundaries were adjusted by city council Monday during a special meeting.

The changes in the DDA boundaries will allow for expansion of the area which pays an additional two-mill levy on property for improvements to downtown.

Certain other areas of Charlevoix previously included in the boundaries, are now exempt from the levy, following the DDA's reevaluation of the original plan.

The DDA found it had overlooked commercial property on the south-side of downtown Charlevoix, directly benefitting from DDA improvements, while including in the plan certain northside, non-business properties that should not be responsible for the levy, members explained to council.

The adjustment is a way of making up for the oversight.

"We want to...cover some mistakes we made," said Jim Mabee, owner of The Clothing Company and member of the DDA.

The levy provides for downtown improvements, which, it is hoped, in turn will stimulate local business.

Council also considered a written appeal from Marvin Beyers, who lives on the boundary at Pine River Lane north of the bridge, to be exempt from the levy.

Council approved the DDA adjustment, 6-1, with the Beyer exemption.

Petunia planters — grab your shovels!

The troops are being organized for the 5th annual Operation Petunia to be held Thursday, May 22, at 5 p.m.

Volunteers are urged to report to block captains (see illustration) at a location near their home on the evening of the planting.

Participating for the second time will be a group of Charlevoix High School honor students who will be putting in petunias under the direction of block captain Stacy Way. They will be planting from Garfield north to downtown and in front of the high school.

Cissy Bickersteth is coordinating the work of the planters and block captains this year.

As in the past, there will be Big Mac certificates given to the largest family of workers, the oldest worker, the planter traveling the farthest distance, and the first middle school student to arrive.

Following the planting there will be a picnic in East Park for all who participated.

Don and Joann Dannecker of Mayfair are co-chairmen again of this year's picnic.

Jasper and His Tag-Alongs will provide the entertainment and persons with tickets validated by block captains will be entitled to a hot dog dinner with ice cream and one of Tom's Mom's chocolate chip cookies.

Oleson Food Store is donating the hot dogs and rolls for the picnic, which will be held rain or shine.

The Danneckers say plan on having your family meal in the park that night.

There will also be tours of the Welcome (above decks).

Chiropractor opens office on Bridge Street

Robert L. "Bob" Elliott, Doctor of Chiropractic, recently set up practice at 707 Bridge Street in Charlevoix.

Dr. Elliott is a graduate of the Palmer College of Chiropractic in Davenport, Iowa, and moved here from Kalamazoo, where he shared an office with another chiropractic practitioner.

He says he selected Charlevoix as a place to live and work because he and his wife liked the area, found the people to be nice, and located a good church.

Dr. Elliott grew up in Mount Clemens, where he graduated from high school. Later he attended Oakland University and McComb County Community College. He and his wife, Mary, have a 17-month-old daughter, Danielle. His sister, Cheryl Elliott, serves as his office assistant.

In explaining his philosophy of chiropractic, Dr. Elliott said he does not believe that treatments need to be drawn out. "I try to re-establish a person's normal spine, help him get well as quickly as possible and get out and go about life," he told the Courier.

When not practicing his profession, Dr. Elliott likes to do gym exercises, ride his bike, hunt, and play golf. He also plans to play league softball this summer and join the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Shoppers find pot of gold at Rainbow Shoppe

by AUDREY DIEBEL COLLINS

Other people's throwaways are the pot of gold at the Rainbow Shoppe in Charlevoix, where scores of daily customers prove the old adage that one man's castoffs are another man's treasures.

Well-organized merchandise that has outlived its usefulness in one home, but still has plenty of gas in the tank, fills dozens of racks and yards of shelving.

While the Rainbow Shoppe was established to provide a source of inexpensive household necessities for economically hard-pressed people, it has also become the favorite haunt of college students who are seeking the fashionable look of the '80s – thrift shop chic.

"A friend and I were flipping through "GQ" a couple of years ago and we noticed they were starting to come out with the 20s look, like early Cary Grant," says Goeff Reynolds, a 21 year-old sophomore at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey.

"Suits just like that started showing up at the Rainbow Shoppe," the Charlevoix man said. "The loose fitting pants started getting popular, and the Rainbow Shoppe always has a lot of those, too."

Reynolds is extra-lucky; his mother is a seamstress who can make the necessary alterations. And Reynolds is a fashion stand-out at NCMC. In hallways where students in plaid and denim form a wall-to-wall sea, Reynolds turns heads in his pale grey pinstripe suit, white oxford shirt, and pink silk tie.

"I like the concept of dressing up all the time," Reynolds says. To keep his wardrobe up-to-the-minute, he visits the Rainbow Shoppe about three times a week, heads directly for the suit rack, and snaps up anything he can find in natural fibers – wool, cotton, linen.

"A lot of the trick is coordinating things to go with what you already have," Reynolds says. "You just have to take your time and dig around. I have several trench coats. They're hot right now."

One of Reynolds' classmates, Cynthia Olcott of Harbor Springs, also buys from the men's suit rack at the Rainbow Shoppe.

Goeff Reynolds and Cynthia Olcott model their thrift shop finds between classes at NCMC.

"I'm a student; I'm poor," says the 31-year-old mother of two, for who flair is a priority exceeded only by economy.

In her dark sports coat with its narrow lapels and sleeves rolled up to reveal a paisley taffeta lining, Olcott says thrift shopping is a necessity for her.

Thrift chop chic also makes a fashion statement, one that relies on creativity, free-spiritedness, panache, and healthy self-esteem.

"What looks good on the kids makes us look like old poops," says Janice McKay, the store's stock manager and fashion coordinator.

"The girls love men's long cardigans fastened at the waist with a belt four inches too big. The Blues Brothers look is popular, too," she says.

The ultimte find in a thrift shop is a yintage suit, circa 1930. While metro thrift shops collect small fortunes for such pieces of period, the Rainbow Shoppe keeps its mission in mind and its merchandise affordable.

Serious proponents of the classic look head straight for the basement of the store, where the oldies but goodies are hung along with military regalia, potential costumes for the stage-struck, and a rack of outrageous things McKay calls her "wild and crazy" section.

Donations to the Rainbow Shoppe pour in generously from Charlevoix's resort community, its retail businesses, its comfortable neighborhoods. The quality of sale merchandise is kept high, but one never knows when that something special will surface from a batch of recycled goods.

"The secret is to come down every day and take some time to look," says Joe Spurgeon, Rainbow Shoppe manager. "It's worth it if you can buy something that's worth $200 for a tenth of the price."

Even the less-than-elegant contributions are welcome, according to Spurgeon, who maintains that nothing is wasted.

"We take the buttons off; we sell buttons," he says. "We sell rags. What we can't use goes into the dumpster. Our dumpster is the most popular spot in town."

Spurgeon says last time the Rainbow Shoppe dumpster was filled, dumpsters divers had picked it nearly clean by the following morning. Quilts and rugs are the end product of many of these excursions, he explains.

Any excursion to the Rainbow Shoppe leads to a fascinating array of serendipity: comic books, baseball cards, coins, books, toys, picture frames and dishes help to round out the inventory of clothing. In an adjacent location, Rainbow shoppers can choose used furniture.

Especially appreciciated by Rainbow clientele is Spurgeon's "Want List" service. If a family needs a crib, Spurgeon calls them as soon as a crib is donated.

While thrift shops have a universal reputation as musty-smelling, dark, crammed, disorganized places, Spurgeon, known affectionately as "Rainbow Joe," has vowed the Rainbow Shoppe will never fit that description. With over two decades of retail experience to his credit as promotions manager for J.C. Penney's in Petoskey, Spurgeon has the skills to make the resale center look "just like a regular store."

In one instance, however, his desire to create a clean, pleasant atmosphere backfired. A customer huffed at him because his attractively displayed merchandise took all the fun out of digging through piles of miscellaneous hodgepodge in hopes of coming up with a real find.

Spurgeon and his crew of assistants and volunteers are the ones to perform triage on the mountains of donations they receive each week. Unserviceable items are culled, and unassemblable items are stored. Clothing that makes it to the rack is dated so staff can easily recognize and pull garments that aren't moving. Few articles stay around longer than three months. If nobody buys them in that length of time, Spurgeon says, there's probably something wrong with them.

Probably the toughest job, and the most time consuming, is deciding what to keep and what to pitch in the dumpster. That is McKay's task, and it often ends with her taking home bags of clothes to spot treat, wash and mend. More than once, customers have bought back their own donations, after seeing them spiffed up.

If bargains are the lifeblood of the Rainbow Shoppe, a caring for people is its heartbeat.

"I never realized there was a need like I've seen here," says Spurgeon. "I was always upstairs in my office. I never knew that people were hungry."

Although Spurgeon was raised as a churchgoer, he says he never got too involved with the work and mission of the church. Now he finds it's nice to look out for other people, to help them out through bureaucratic red tape, to give them a hand while they learn to walk on their own.

The Rainbow Shoppe was begun three years ago as an ecumenical project of 10 Charlevoix churches, who decided to pool their individual efforts at maintaining food and clothing banks.

"We started out as a shop to help the poor," Spurgeon says. "But the middle classes haven't got it so easy, either. If they can shop here and save on clothing, they'll be better able to afford other things, like repairs on their house or car.

"I think we're doing a good service," Spurgeon says. "At first there was a stigma to shopping here, but we're being accepted more and more. Everyone is interested in saving money."

Rita Orlowski, a Rainbow Shoppe board member, reviews sales records with store manager Joe Spurgeon.

Profits from the sale of used articles support a number of local causes, including a food bank, Christmas gifts for needy families, CHIP Counseling, jail ministry and senior citizen activities. Resale of household necessities at a mere shadow of their retail price performs a very real service of its own, however.

Donations have enabled the shop to supply over 150 beds to people who had seldom slept on anything more comfortable than a floor, and blankets to children who had never known the luxury of a warm winter's sleep.

Little miracles, in the form of donations, never fail to amaze Rainbow Shoppe staff. Spurgeon says one batch of donations may yield a vacuum cleaner, and the next a quantity of vacuum cleaner bags. And just when the store runs low on coat hangers, someone stops by with hundreds of the things.

So burgeoning is the market for previously owned furniture, clothing, housewares, odds and ends, that a year ago, the Rainbow Shoppe moved into the former McLelland's furniture store and more than doubled its floor space. The store's budget has grown, too: from $38,000 its first year to $52,000 this year.

Meeting the budget keeps Spurgeon on his toes, getting the donations to roll in and the merchandise to move out. He hopes for a bonanza of donations this year, because tax laws will allow a 100 percent write-off. That makes it even more lucrative for people to get rid of their surplus.

"A lot of people let us have their garage sales for them," Spurgeon says. "They get the equivalent income in the form of a tax write-off, and they don't have to do the work."

As in most non-profit operations, volunteers are essential to the survival of the service. The Rainbow Shoppe draws from a roster of 150 volunteers.

The Ephemeral Season

by Doug Truax

If I had to pick a single reason I am in Michigan, other than the accident of my birth, it would be the spring season. The few short days between the middle of April and the end of May are the finest of the year – filled with wildflowers, mayflies, trout in clearing streams and a delicate light that illuminates it all.

It comes each year with surprising suddenness, breaking out of the dreary end of winter like a doe entering a clearing. One moment the field is empty and, then, without notice she is there.

It is a season you savor, because you know how quickly all this passes. The first light of morning wraps around the delicate shadbush blossoms heavy with dew. In the swamps the marsh marigold provides a brilliant margin to the edge of each little rivulet and bog. The uplands are spotted with hepatica, tillium, trout lilies, and an all too rapid progression of other wildflowers.

It is the season of emphemera, the tiny little mayflies that pop from the surface of streams, ride the surface for a few seconds and then fly off for their brief moment in the sun. Nothing captures the season's essence like the little creatures of the order of Ephemeroptera.

It is hardly surprising. Mayflies have been carrying out their ritual for over 300 million years, evidence of their existence preserved in the fossil records of the Paleozoic Era.

They are peculiar little creatures, anomalies in the insect world. Their order name derives from the Greek ephemeros, lasting a day. And so it is with the little mayfly. Most are hatched to their adult form one day, fly off to molt and mate and fall back into the stream to die the following day.

Their purpose is simply to mate. They are ill-prepared for any other aspect of living. They lack mouths to eat and their legs are too feeble to walk. They have no defense to fish or bird which gobble them up by the thousands.

And yet somehow they have managed to ride out the currents of time much longer than a good many other species.

That trout feed on these fragile creatures has not been lost fishermen, who since at least the mid-sixteenth century have been tying little bits of fur and feather on hooks to imitate these insects and fool the usually wary trout.

Man, big footed and clumsy brained as he is, finds relief and the tug of an ancient ritual in flicking little flies through the air and hoping, for a moment, to wade in deeper mysteries and sample more delicate truths.

So for a week I leave this desk to join the mayflies and the trout and play in their world. Too soon the light will turn harsh and the air will become thick and heavy with heat. Until then it is enough to bask in the pleasures of the ephemeral season.

Out of the Blue

It's basically this or basically that —

Basiclly's heard such a lot —

And it doesn't seem to matter whether

The subject's basic or not.

Bob Miles remembered

East Jordan, where he worked in the mill and later built the Temple Theater.

Eventually the family, including nine-year-old Bob and three sisters and five brothers, moved to Charlevoix. He attended high school in Charlevoix until his sophomore year, when he went to Muskegon and worked in a rubber plant. After a while he returned to Charlevoix to operate the theater for his father and finish high school. He graduated with the class of 1923.

Bob Miles was a professional photographer in Charlevoix for 42 years. Several years ago when this reporter asked him how he happened to become a photographer, he explained it this way:

"Even as a child I was a photography buff. I used to sit on the bank of the river that ran between Round Lake and Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) and watch the swans. I took many pictures of the flock, including the two which were brought here originally and which are the forebearers of all the swans in the area. I also took many other pictures just for the fun of it.

"Then, in 1930, I went to the New York Institute of Photography. The first commercial pictures I ever took were of the fire that burned down the old Fessenden Drug Store that used to be where the Chamber of Commerce Building now is. I used an old box camera and stood out in 22-below-zero weather to get them".

Bob Miles was twice honored for his contributions to the Charlevoix Historical Society. The Society established an annual award in his name which is given annually to those who have served it in some special way.

In 1981, the Historical Society of Michigan presented him with the Award of Merit for "giving the rights and proceeds from his book on Charlevoix to the Charlevoix Historical Society".

Both recognitions are small but meaningful tributes to a great man who had a "long standing love affair with the City of Charlevoix".

Bob's wife, Esther, sons, Robert and David, his brothers and sister, and his many friends and acquaintances are all richer for having been part of his life.

DNR director at KCB session

The acting director of the Department of Natural Resources will address Keep Charlevoix Beautiful at 9 a.m. Saturday, May 17, at 210 Bridge St. restaurant.

Dr. Gordon Guyer, formerly a member of the Natural Resources Commission, was appointed to replace Ronald Skoog, following his resignation. Guyer will be in Charlevoix for the trout tournament festivities.

Letters to the Editor:

Bob Miles: Light shined through pages of time

Dear Bob:

Things won't be the same around here now that you're gone. You were one of our connections with Charlevoix's rich past. You could always remember what it was like here before most of us were born. I loved to listen to you tell about the many famous ships that came through the channel back when the old swing bridge was here.

It always seemed incredible to me that you remembered when Bridge Street was a dirt road and the only connection between "Pine Lake" (Lake Charlevoix) was the little stream that runs by the Chicago Club now. I really enjoy looking through the book you wrote about Charlevoix's history.

You'll never know how much it meant to me when my wife bought one of your books and you offered to write this message under the front cover, "To Terry, the talented photographer whose shop is just one door north of a studio I owned 45 years ago. May the muse of the latent image be on your side. With best personal regards, Bob Miles, Dec. 18, 1976".

I feel as though you have passed the responsibility to record the history of Charlevoix on to me. You were light that shined brightly back through the pages of time. That light has flickered and gone out, but the wonderful images of those days that you left behind will remain here for us to enjoy.

Thank you for your inspiration, Bob. I'll do my best to continue the legacy that you left. God bless you, and good-by.

Terry Salmonson

Dear Courier Readers:

With the increased activity at the Chamber of Commerce office, I made a grave error. The 7-Eleven store and the Rainbow Shoppe should have been included in the ad of contributors to the success of the Summer Countdown alternative youth activity. My sincere apologies and thanks to Ken Gray at 7-Eleven and the Board of Directors of the Rainbow Shoppe.

Our thanks, also, to Chuck and Chris Bentley, Pete and Connie Kramer, and Ken and Nellea Plude, who were the chaperones for the evening. Around 50 high schoolers had a great time, and I'm told, can't wait to do it again!

Supervisor explains rec purchase plans

Editor:

I am writing to update your readers on Hayes Township's efforts to acquire lakeshore property for recreational purposes. This will also correct some misunderstandings that have come out of the article, "Hayes seeks grant for park" published in the April 30, 1986 issue of the Courier.

Your article read that we are considering the purchase of two lakefront lots belonging to Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Smith for $260,000, half of which would possibly be covered by a grant from the State Conservation Board. The Smith family own only one of those parcels and have offered it to the township for $135,000. We are seeking grants that may cover anywhere from 50 percent to 75 percent of the appraised value. The owner of the adjacent parcel has not indicated that he would be interested in selling his property to the township.

What really caught my eye was that your article indicated that Hayes Township's portion of the cost for this land would be $130,000, assuming we agreed to the asking price and the appraiser also agreed. We don't have that much money to spend for recreation and whatever we do spend will be preceded by a public hearing as required by a resolution passed at our 1986 annual meeting.

Sincerely, A. Paul Hoadley
Supervisor, Hayes Township

OM coaches say thanks for donations, help

Dear Editor:

The 14 parent OM coaches wish to thank the Charlevoix schools and community for their support and encouragement to the six Charlevoix Elementary School OM teams.

Fish out of water

By Bob Clock

Have you ever heard of a fish getting hit by a car?

It happened Saturday morning on Bridge Street. In fact, dozens of fish were hit by dozens of cars.

Here's what happened:

I was trotting downtown to the bank and had just crossed the bridge when I noticed a large puddle of water in the street, in the center of which lay a small white Styrofoam object.

As I drew closer, I saw dozens of minnows flopping about in the puddle. The Styrofoam object, of course, was a minnow bucket which apparently had fallen out of someone's pickup truck.

I darted between cars, picked up the bucket and deposited it out of harm's way on the opposite curb. But there wasn't a thing I could do about the minnows. They were being ground into the pavement by every car that came along.

Squish, squish, squish.

If I had had a snow shovel, I would have been able to scoop up a few and drop them in the channel. But all I could do was stand helplessly on the curb and wave goodbye.

When I returned 20 minutes later, the puddle had dried and the minnows had gone to that great bait box in the sky.

I wonder how the fisherman felt when he arrived at his favorite fishing hole and discovered he didn't have any bait?

SPEAKING OF fish, have you noticed all the small boats on Round Lake this past week?

The perch are running — just as they did in the "good old days" when you reportedly could across the lake by jumping from boat to boat.

Reliable sources have it that the perch are not the big "yellow bellies" that once made Charlevoix famous. But they're still perch and they taste delicious.

To be frank about it, I'm not a very good connoisseur of fish. If I'm eating perch, I think perch has to be the best fish God created. If I'm eating trout, then there is no better fish in the world than trout. The same goes for whitefish, walleye, bass, sunfish, smoked salmon and canned tuna.

I've never tried such junkfish as alewives or rock bass, but I imagine I could warm up to them, too.

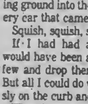
ISN'T IT FUN to see what oddments have collected in neighbors' basements over the winter?

The annual city trash pickup is winding up this week in the First Ward, and impressive mountains of castoffs blossomed along curbstones over the weekend.

Why would anyone throw away a perfectly good bar stool with a ripped seat? Or a three-legged table? There's just no accounting for taste.

For years, Judy has been hankering for a Rigid ironing board, one of those perforated steel models with the tubular legs. There's one right around the corner to be had for the asking. But I'm telling her about it until cleanup week is over.

In the age of wash 'n' wear, no one needs three ironing boards.



Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifeck
Executive Director

Another fabulous time was had by all who attended the Annual Spring Chamber of Commerce Dance. For many it was their first time in the Chicago Club clubhouse.

Sincere thanks to the generous people at the Chicago Club. Layout of the clubhouse provided for informal conversation and mingling in one area, and continuous dancing and live music in another area.

Special thanks to Doug Shaw, this year's dance chairman, and his crew for making the evening such a success.

The countdown is on for the 2nd Annual Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament, May 16, 17, and 18. Registrations are flooding in at the Chamber. If you haven't already signed up, be sure to stop by the Chamber soon. The tournament provides family fun for all levels of fishing enthusiasts.

The pace at the Chamber office is starting to quicken, as an approachingly chaotic summer season nears. Should you need information on things to do and see in the area for those anticipated house guests, please feel free to stop in. We will be happy to serve you.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by REV. THOMAS BLACK
FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

It has been said, and rightfully so, that if you want a job done, ask a busy person to do it. It seems that only the very busy know where to find the time to do more.

A sense of stewardship tells us we must take time to do God's work. What we do with the 24 hours a day God has given us is as widely divergent as people themselves are. The excuses we give for not using more time for God's work may sound legitimate, but it is time to re-evaluate them.

Where are our priorities? Does the family come first? Have we already done our share? There is no time to it! We have no talent! Our treasury is already too low!

Beloved!, do not compare it all to what your neighbor or fellow-parishioner has done. Compare what you have done to what God has done for you. This alone must be the standard of your comparisons. As God's stewards we must ask the questions, "Why don't we do this? or Why don't we do that?"

Beloved in Christ, it is our church, our town, our country – God has given us time, talent and treasure to use it. God has a plan for each of our lives - He asks us to follow Him and trust Him to know what He's doing through us, to us and for us. We must give God some of our time because that is the commodity He uses to work through us.

Perhaps we have overstressed the aspect of "doing" when in reality, stewardship is a question of "being" - we are God's stewards every hour of the day. We cannot regulate stewardship. We, therefore, are good stewards or unjust stewards. Let's put it this way: Stewardship is taking God for a partner in all areas of life and this requires a complete surrender to Him.

What is God's will in the use of your time, your talent and your treasure? Let us together exercise the kind of faith that will move mountains. Let us see the invisible, believe the incredible and accomplish the impossible. Since God is our partner we need not be afraid to make big plans. Let's take the time to be good stewards.

Obituaries

Robert C. Miles

Funeral services for Robert C. Miles, 84, local photographer for 42 years, were held Monday at the First Congregational Church. The Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum officiated. Interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Miles died Thursday, May 8, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Born at Lupton, Michigan, March 21, 1902, Mr. Miles came to Charlevoix with his family in 1911. He was graduated from the Charlevoix High School in 1923 and received a teacher's certificate from Western Michigan Teachers College, now Western Michigan University. While there he was a member of the tennis team which, in 1925, won its league championship. He returned to Charlevoix to be employed by F.J. Fessenden, druggist, until attending the New York Institute of Photography. He returned to Charlevoix to open a photography studio which he operated until retiring in 1972. On Dec. 21, 1945, he was married to the former Esther Goldstick at Charlevoix.

Always interested in the history of Charlevoix, he researched and compiled a pictorial history of the community entitled "Bob Miles' Charlevoix." In recognition of his contribution to the Charlevoix Historical Society, the "Bob Miles Award" has been established and given annually to those who have contributed to the success of the organization.

He was a member of the Charlevoix Historical Society which he helped re-organize, had served on the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce board of directors and as a member of the Charlevoix City Planning Commission. He attended the First Congregational Church.

He is survived by his wife, Esther; two sons, Robert C. and David L. both of Charlevoix; a sister, Mrs. John (Janice) Workman of LaVerne, Calif., and three brothers, Clair of St. Clair Shores and Lyle and Keith, both of Charlevoix.

The family suggests memorials to the Charlevoix Historical Society, the First Congregational Church of the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The Winchester Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

VFW holds poppy sale

The Veterans of Foreign Wars will conduct their annual sale of Buddy Poppies on May 22, 23, and 24.

The sale, which has been endorsed by Mayor Hal Hill, is conducted each year by the VFW to raise funds used exclusively for the benefit of disabled and needy veterans and the widows and orphans of deceased veterans.

The VFW has been selling Buddy Poppies since 1922. The poppies are assembled by disabled veterans in hospitals throughout the United States.

"The sale of Buddy Poppies preceding Memorial Day is the traditional way to bring attention to the sacrifices made by the nation's war dead in their struggle to keep America free," the VFW says.

Free colorectal cancer test

The Charlevoix County unit of the American Cancer Society and Charlevoix Area Hospital are launching a free program next week they hope will help men and women forty years old and over protect themselves from colorectal cancer.

A simple do-it-yourself test that detects blood in the stool will be distributed to area residents by Hospital Guild volunteers from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. each day from May 19 through 23 in the hospital lobby.

"This test detects hidden blood which is a warning sign of colorectal cancer, the second most common type of cancer in adults forty and older," said Roger Sievertson, CAH general services manager who is coordinating the program. "The test can play an important role in helping save lives from this cancer since colorectal cancer is highly curable, when found early and treated promptly," he added.

According to Sievertson, the test can help a physician find colorectal cancer even before there are any visible signs.

"A positive test doesn't mean you have cancer," he said. "Blood in the stool may have several causes but it does mean you should see a physician."

Area residents who wish to be tested are asked to follow a simple diet outlined on the test itself, take several stool samples and return the test kit by mail for evaluation.

The project is part of a three-year initiative of the American Cancer Society, the Colorectal Health Check program, designed to improve survival rates for colorectal cancer.

Currently, colorectal cancer is the number two killer of American men and women after lung cancer. The disease will claim the lives of an estimated 60,000 Americans in 1986, 2,100 from Michigan alone. When colorectal cancer is detected and treated in an early stage, however, the national average five-year survival rate is 75 percent for colon cancer and 73 percent for rectal cancer.

Star of Charlevoix replaced

A new Star of Charlevoix cruise ship will be plying the waters of Lakes Michigan and Charlevoix this summer.

Formerly the Star of Sanford (Fla.), the cruise dining ship is scheduled to arrive in port Memorial Day weekend, according to Jacquie Merta, director of sales for the Star Line in Charlevoix.

Constructed in 1983 at Chesapeake Shipyard in Maryland, the ship is 123 feet long with a beam of 23½ feet. It has a seating capacity of 240 for luncheon and dinners and 360 for cocktail receptions. The ship has an open air observation deck on the third level.

The 1986 cruise season will begin Friday, June 13, and continue through Sunday, Oct. 19, with three cruises daily including luncheons at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Todd Edger, an assistant aboard the former Star of Charlevoix in 1985, will captain the new Star and Jim Pawlicki, assistant manager in 1985, will be manager.

The Star Line's first cruise dinner ship in Charlevoix arrived in 1982 as the Bay Queen and was renamed the Star of Charlevoix following remodeling in 1983. The ship left Charlevoix harbor last month as the Star of Milwaukee, the fourth Star Line ship.

The new Star of Milwaukee is 113¾ feet long and 28 feet at the beam. It has a seating capacity of 220 and a maximum capacity of 499. Jeff Waldman will continue as skipper with Kirsten Henshaw as manager.

The two other ships of the Star Line, the Star of Detroit and the Star of Chicago, were berthed at Weber's Edge on Lake Charlevoix during the winter and earlier departed to their ports.

Township reorganizes zoning board after Water's Edge dispute

The first task of the newly formed Charlevoix Township Planning Commission will be to consider recommendations for lakefront zoning, according to Supervisor Oscar Stroud.

The township board Monday unanimously approved a list of appointees to the commission presented by Stroud, who said he initially considered 15 residents to serve on the five-member panel.

The commission supplants the township four-member zoning board, which had been split over the rezoning of lakefront property commonly known as Water's Edge.

Zoning board member Jerry Puhl, who on two occasions voted against rezoning for the condominium project, applauded the move to restructure township planning and asked that new members approach issues with an open mind.

"I'd hate to think of going through another year of what we've gone through with Water's Edge," Puhl said.

The appointees and their terms of office are: Nancy Rajewski, one year; Jan Glass, one year; Bunny Goss, two years; Larry Porath, three years; and John Haggard, two years. Rajewski is a township trustee.

Stroud said he tried to strike a balance on the panel between environmentalists and development proponents.

The commission will hold its first meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 21, at Stroud Hall. The panel is expected to consider several recommendations set forth in an agreement between developers and controlled growth advocates which were reached during mediation sessions concerning the Water's Edge development.

Among the recommendations are:

— A statement of policy and purpose regarding lakefront zoning should be included in the zoning ordinance.

— Residential setbacks for multiple family developments should be 100 feet from the ordinary high water mark. The setback should include a 35-foot greenbelt.

— Lakefront density should be a maximum of three units per acre.

— For each project submitted, the planning commission should place a cap on the number of lakefront units to provide for open space.

— The township should design anti-funnel development language, with expert assistance, to prohibit abuses.

Council also unanimously endorsed a recommendation by the Michigan Public Service Commission calling for a natural gas plant in the former Midland nuclear power plant.

Consumer's Power Co. made a presentation outlining its study of the Midland Nuclear Plant shutdown and options for addressing its financial struggle.

The options included abandonment of the plant entirely, converting it to a coal-fired plant or a natural gas plant, or completing it as a nuclear plant. Consumers Power found the natural gas option the most economical solution, making use of a considerable amount of the $4.1 billion already invested. The company anticipates a two percent per year electric growth rate, according to Willis Allen of Consumers Power, and a rate increase with the natural gas plant of about 25 percent over five years, or an average of about 5 percent per year. This is about 15 percent less than the rate increase for each of the other Midland options.

In other business, 07611200—Unanimously approved a more detailed site plan, submitted by Ed Gregory, attorney for the Northwest Marine Yacht Association, showing the location of a pilot house at the foot of Eaton Road on Lake Charlevoix. The vote included a permit for the swimming pool already on the site.

— Was in general agreement to allow the St. Mary's Parish festival on July 4th and 5th, but will formally approve the matter at a later date.

— Heard a report by Jack Begrow, architect of the public safety building, that bricks for the building will cost $80 more per 1,000, or $3,500 more than what his original estimate. Begrow admitted figuring the wrong allowance for the bricks. The council debated whether to stick with the original jumbo brick or to pick another that meets the budget. Councilman Ray Wood thought the council should "sit down and reconsider the whole thing." The council moved the issue to the agenda on Monday, May 19.

"We can accomplish our goals as far as the quality of the community we want to deliver. I fully expect that (125 units) is what we will actually build." He said construction will begin in late fall of 1986 or early spring of 1987.

Along with securing a wetlands permit from the DNR, developers must also pursue the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers permission to build a 93-slip marina. The marina will include pump-out facilities available for public use.

"So we're off and running...what a process," Oelschlaeger said. "Now we start spending big bucks."

Developers will adhere to a 100-foot setback as determined by the ordinary high water mark (a 35-foot greenbelt will be included in the setback). The maximum size of each lakefront unit will be 2,200 square feet.

Because condominium owners not situated on the lakefront will have to walk to the beach area, Puhl said, overuse of the lakefront can be avoided. Water's Edge has about 1,650 feet of lake frontage.

Water's Edge Inc. had previously filed suit in 33rd Circuit Court alleging that the township board unlawfully accepted the results of a February referendum. The election's outcome reverted the property from the R-4 (multi-family) classification to its original R-2 (single-family) zone.

ALERT, which initiated the referendum drived, filed as a co-defendant in the lawsuit. That move angered Stroyd, who was glad to see the suit resolved.

"I just don't like spending money on court cases when we can settle it this way," he said. "I'll give a little if the other guy can give."

Stroud said the emotional volume of the issue may have taken its toll. "There's still a lot of people who feel hurt," he said. "But time will heal, I hope."

Although approximately 10 of the 51 acres at Water's Edge are situated in Marion Township, Oesterlaeger said the Marion Township board will not have to rezone that portion because developers do not plan to build there.

Wilmot Electric moves into new building

by DOUG TRUAX

Charlie Wilmot can hardly believe it himself as he looks around his bright new office building.

The 5,700 square foot building is nestled neatly in the trees on Taylor Road, just east of Mercer Boulevard. Its cedar siding blends comfortably with the grove of trees that surround it.

Wilmot is pleased with the effect. "We only had to cut one little maple tree," he says, "everything else was jockeyed to go with the lay of the land."

Wilmot's business, Wilmot Electric, Inc., is growing beyond his expectations. He currently employs eight full-time electricians and a clerical person and sees only greater employment on the horizon.

His business involves everything from designing robotics and computer controlled energy management systems to doing routine electrical repair.

A little over three years ago, Wilmot Electric was nothing more than a phone number and an old beat-up green van – "the Green Bomb" as it was affectionately called.

"It now seems hard to think about all the times the 'hit' day at the unemployment office had to be considered when planning a job on certain days," he recently noted in a memo to his employees.

Wilmot went into business for himself in January 1983 with the Green Bomb and the names of a few old customers. He had been working at Waun Electric for some five years and decided to strike out on his own, with his former employers encouragement, because of hard economic times and Waun's shift in emphasis to manufacturing.

Unlike some people who long for their own business, and spend much of their life planning for it, Wilmot says he never envisioned this. It just evolved gradually, the result of an improving economic climate, some luck and, undoubtedly, a lot of hard work and skill.

Wilmot Electric started to carve out a niche for itself with some of Charlevoix's major industrial customers -- DME, Hoskins Manufacturing, and Lexalite as well as specialized customers like the Star Line boat company.

Wilmot, who moved north from Davidson in 1978, had been an experimental electrician at General Motors' A.C. Spark Plug.

In February 1984 things were going well enough that Wilmot was able to rent a building on Petoskey Avenue at the north end of town. He eventually employed six persons in the 1,750 square foot building. Within a very short time that building was getting as outmoded as the Green Bomb, and Wilmot began to look for space to construct a new building.

Wilmot decided to poll his employees on the site and design of the new building.

Charles Wilmot

"We were really impressed with how similar the responses were," Wilmot says. "Virtually everyone wanted to be in the industrial park."

The questionnaire also revealed a strong consensus on the size of the building, parking, office space, and the general use areas.

He told the city of his plans and sought the city's help in locating a site. He looks back on the experience with some bitterness and a lot of frustration. Anyone who wants to be in the new industrial park had better want to be in there badly, Wilmot says.

After many sessions with City Council, Wilmot finally got his commercial tax abatement and had his site plans approved. In February of this year, the dream became a reality as the company moved into its new site.

Wilmot thinks the location is ideal for his business, located as it is next to potential new Industrial customers.

His business in currently some 90 percent industrial, with another 5 percent commercial and marine. It is demanding work, he says. "In industrial work, it shows now whether you know what you are doing or not," he notes.

Wilmot's specialized electrical work has included a wide range of jobs, many of them ones that previously would have been handled by downstate companies. They have included:

–Support power panels made for LexaLite International, which analyze and monitor the power supply, signalling undetected losses in three-phase power before they can create inefficiency or machine damage.

– Heat control panels for Hoskins Manufacturing to measure and control crucial temperatures in the annealing furnaces.

– Computerized preventive maintenance programs for several area industries, guaranteering a systematic maintenance program that minimizes downtime.

– Machine signal systems at LexaLite International's Dickson, Tennessee plant, to permit continuous monitoring of all machines and quick communication of trouble spots.

– Process controllers for several local manufacturers to control atmospheric gasses as well as heat during processing.

– Programmable controllers to monitor the drying ovens for Hoskins.

The company is also testing the use of robots in the manufacturing process.

Wilmot Electric currently has three Kaypro computers."

An After Hours Clinic ...What a great idea!

HEALTH CARE NEEDS DON'T ALWAYS HAPPEN DURING BUSINESS HOURS

A bad cold. Sore throat. Sprained ankle. The flu. These are all things that can make you feel miserable. When they occur the best thing to do is see a doctor. But for many people it's very difficult to get to a doctor's office during regular business hours. People who work days or who have other responsibilities can't just drop everything to go see their doctor for what may be just a minor problem. Now they don't have to. The Charlevoix Area Hospital after hours clinic is designed to make health care more conveniently available for any non-emergency problems. It's open evenings and weekends so people who are occupied during the working day can now see a doctor and feel better without missing a minute of their busy schedule.

NON-EMERGENCIES ARE NOW WELCOME IN THE EMERGENCY ROOM

Going to the Emergency Room with a problem that turned out not to be an emergency used to be a costly mistake. Charges for ER visits are expensive and many insurance plans will not cover the cost unless the illness or injury fits certain criteria. At the After Hours Clinic, located in the hospital's Emergency Department, treatment can be obtained for non-emergencies at non-emergency prices. A Clinic visit costs $25. Five dollars more if billed. Additional services such as lab or X-ray are extra. Visa and MasterCard are accepted.

THE DOCTOR IS IN, 24 HOURS A DAY

There has long been constant physician coverage of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Emergency Room. But before now, the doctors were not required to be physically present in the ER 24 hours a day. Under the new ER setup, staff physicians will rotate to provide onsite coverage for emergencies 'round the clock, 365 days a year.

IT'S WORTH IT FOR THE PEACE OF MIND ALONE.

It's late at night and your child has a fever. The family doctor is out of town. You can't help but wonder if it's something more serious than the flu. Don't hesitate. A physician is on duty at the After Hours Clinic until 11 p.m. every night, seven days a week, 365 days a year. Even holidays. You don't even have to call ahead. Just bundle up the child and go see the doctor. No matter how minor the problem might be, he'll provide prompt, friendly treatment for about the cost of a regular office visit. Doesn't that beat a sleepless night of worrying?

A fun day in my life

Vinnie Voisin, 10-year-old winner of last year's steelhead division, describes his experience to his classmates in the following story done as a class project.

by VINNIE VOISIN

My day started at four o'clock on Saturday, May 31, 1985. My dad and I were entered in the first annual trout tournament. It was the first trout contest Charlevoix ever had. Even though it was hard to get up, I did it. My dad and I went to Juilleret's for breakfast.

The tournament started out at five o'clock. My dad and I got out at about ten after five. We were trolling along for about an hour. The sun had started coming out so we could see a lot better.

At about six ten I got an excellent bite on my fishing pole. I tried to get it in but it got away. I was mad about that until about six thirty. I got another good bit and this time I got the fish into the boat. It ended up being a four pound, twelve ounce brown trout. It did not place me in the top five but the fish ended up being ninth at the end of the contest.

A little while later my dad caught a two-pound, four-ounce lake trout. We went in at one o'clock because my dad had an appointment.

We got back out fishing at three o'clock. We were fishing until nine that night. We spent thirteen hours in the boat that day. We didn't place any fish in the tournament but had a fun time.

The next day my dad gave me a little break and let me sleep until four thirty. This time we ate at home. Today we were also taking another man, Mike Weimer. He was the City Manager for Charlevoix.

We got out about the same time as the day before. Mr. Weimer got a hit, he missed it. My dad got some hits but he didn't get anything. It was my turn. I was really anxious to get a nice fish. I got a hit. The fish hit good! He was hard to bring in but my dad did a good job of netting him.

It was a fat fish and my dad thought it was about five pounds. It was only three pounds, five ounces, but the fish gave us points for the "tournament within a tournament" which could be won by catching up to five fish. You get a point an ounce. So far in that part of the tournament we had two hundred twenty-one points.

We were still out fishing, it had been a while since I caught my last fish. Suddenly... whoosh, I had a big fish on! It took me a long time to reel the fish in. It had been flopping around on the top of the water. Right when my dad got it in the net it broke loose. Luckily, it was in the net. The fish ended up tearing up the hooks. My dad, Mr. Weimer, and I were real surprised and happy. After a little more fishing we went in to get the fish registered. It weighed nine pounds, 10 ounces and put me in the lead for the steelhead division. We got the fish weighed, cleaned, and a guy came over with a video camera and talked to me about the fish, how I caught it, and what I caught it on. Well, I caught it at a point out in Lake Charlevoix. We spend an hour doing everything.

Then we went back out fishing. I was tired after awhile and went to sleep. I woke at eleven o'clock. I was supposed to be in by twelve because of my piano recital. The last hour went by slowly. When we finally went in we stopped in the park. We were down there until one o'clock. I went to my piano recital at three and played pretty well!

After the recital we went back to the park. I ended up winning first place in the steelhead division. I won a nice trophy and two hundred fifty dollars. It was a super day.

Vincent Voisin and father, Don, with Vincent's 1985 winning steelhead.

Tournament fishing tips

Want to catch that tournament winning fishing. Here's some tips on how to do it.

Favored lures — Stingers, green peanuts, flat fish, clone, Incna, rapalas, j plugs and fire plugs. Cowbells and dodges also are used.

Boat safety — When fishing near other boats keep a safe distance. Be aware of long lines and high lines behind boats.

Charlevoix area presents a challenge to most fishermen because of ideal fishing. Monitor your depths constantly.

Preserving fish — Be sure and keep your trophy fish in cool water to eliminate loss of valuable weight.

State charter boats have multimillion dollar impact

Jim Withers, Charlevoix trout tournament founder, knows the impact of charter fishing on Great Lakes communities.

Michigan's charter boat fishing industry had a $21 million economic impact on the coastal communities of the state in 1985, according to a study released this week by Edward M. Mahoney, Michigan State University assistant professor and extension specialist in park and recreation resources.

A quarter of a million people went charter fishing on the Great Lakes aboard state-licensed boats last year, and most said that was the primary purpose for their visit to a coastal community. They spent a total of $56 million on their trips, $13 million of which was spent on charter fees. The balance was spent on lodging, restaurants, groceries, gas, entertainment and other expenses at the charter site or at home. Captains also affect coastal community economies by investing in boats, gear, slip space and supplies.

The study, conducted by Mahoney, MSU graduate student Mark Brunke, and Charles Pistis, district Extension Sea Grant agent, concluded that coastal communities should pay more attention to the additional income generated by the local charter captains. They recommend that state agencies and local governments consider this impact when making decisions about providing such things as publicly-funded facilities for charter operations.

The study also shows that the charter fishing industry needs more information on customer needs.

Charter fishing is one of the fastest growing segments of the tourism industry. Last year, there were nearly 1,000 state-licensed captains in Michigan compared to just 100 ten years ago. This rapid increase in numbers, and the fact that many of the charter businesses are marginally profitable, means that captains need better marketing information and techniques, according to Pistis.

"What captains needed, to promote their businesses properly, was the information this study provides about the characteristics of their customers," Pistis says. "For instance, now they know that most of their customers are recommended to them by other satisfied customers. The customer doesn't necessarily just want to catch many fish, but also is concerned about the captains's hospitality and the safety of the vessel," he adds.

According to Mahoney, the results of the study may help captains obtain more local cooperation.

"The average captain has $28,000 invested in a boat, in addition to equipment and fishing gear, and collects approximately $15,000 a year in fees alone, some of which is spent for supplies," Mahoney says. "This information puts captains in a much better position to talk to the local banker or city council about their needs."

Mahoney says the study would not have been possible without cooperation and support from district Extension agents of the Michigan Sea Grant College Program and the Michigan Travel, Tourism and Recreation Resource Center at MSU. He believes this type of cooperation is vital if various sectors of the Michigan tourism industry are to become and remain economically viable. The project was funded by a grant from MSU's Cooperative Extension Service and Agricultural Experiment Station.

The Michigan Sea Grant College Program is a cooperative effort of the University of Michigan and Michigan State University in Great Lakes research, education and Extension.

MSU researchers study pink salmon in Great Lakes

Michigan State University researchers expect fewer pink salmon in Lake Superior this year and increased numbers of the fish in Lake Huron.

William Taylor, MSU professor of fisheries and wildlife, and graduate student John Kocik say the pink salmon populations appear to be tied to the water levels in the lake tributaries when the fish spawn.

Introduced into Lake Superior in 1956, pink salmon have since spread to all five Great Lakes. Pink salmon populations appear to be on the increase in the other lakes, but in Superior, a drastic population decline occurred in the early 1980's. This sparked the researchers' interest.

The pink salmon is smaller than the coho and the Chinook and does not compete as a sport fish with the other two, Kocik says, though anglers do fish for it because it is relatively easy to catch and good tasting. Anglers can take pink salmon year round in the lakes, where they begin showing up near shore in late April or early May.

"The pink salmon population exploded in the 1970s, and 1979 was probably the peak in Superior," Kocik says. That year 10,000 salmon were counted in several Michigan tributaries of the lake, leading researchers to expect another bumper year in 1981, when the two-year-old adults would come back to spawn.

Instead, fewer than 200 adult fish showed up to spawn in 1981 and researchers began looking for an explanation. Taylor and Kocik say they believe the answer lies in water levels and stream flow in the tributaries where the fish spawn.

The lower the stream levels, the less spawning ground is available and the more likely it is that one fish will disturb another's eggs. Low stream flow and high fish populations combined in 1979 to wipe out much of the pink salmon population in Lake Superior tributaries, Taylor and Kocik say.

The researchers have been studying runoff-fed tributaries to Lake Superior, such as Laughing White Fish River, but are now expanding their study to include groundwater-fed tributaries to Lake Huron, such as Albany Creek.

Their reasoning is that the pink salmon population should be more stable in groundwater-fed tributaries, where stream flow is more constant.

Research takes Kocik into the field twice a year, in the fall to count the spawning fish and in the spring to count fry leaving the river. He uses nets, wire traps and electrofishing equipment to do the fish counts. Water levels, stream depths and makeup of the streambed are among the factors used to determine the amount of spawning space available to the fish.

The researchers are supported by the MSU Agricultural Experiment Station, the Michigan Sea Grant College Program and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Waste haulers object to manager's trash plan

by PEG OHLE

The operators of two Charlevoix solid waste hauling businesses believe they are serving the community well and should not be replaced by any other hauler who is under contract to the city.

Dawson and Barney Way of the Charlevoix Garbage Service and Pete Kramer of North Country Sanitation are strenuously objecting to a plan proposed by City Manager Mike Wiesner at last week's City Council meeting.

Both Way and Kramer are private operators. They solicit their own customers, serve them, and bill them in the same manner that any small business man operates.

Wiesner's plan calls for the city to bid out solid waste hauling to one contractor to pick up at all houses and apartments in the city. He says the city could save some $24,700 by not having to provide the spring clean-up collections, and that the cost to residents would be only $4 to $5 a month, compared with Way's and Kramer's present $7 a month.

"Our business and North Country are family-owned, private enterprise businesses. We have served the city well and don't believe it is right for just anybody to come in on the basis of a bid", Dawson Way told the Courier.

"We asked the City Council if there was any problem with the way we were doing things and they said 'No'. All they said was that the spring collections cost too much. If that's the case, they could put that collection out for bids", Way said.

As far as the estimated costs of solid waste collection by a contracted hauler go, both Way and Kramer noted that in Traverse City, which has such a system, the monthly cost to residents is $7.50. "It just wouldn't be possible for the city to get anyone to do the hauling for $4 to $5 a month", they pointed out.

They also noted that solid waste

Council says tower must go at new Edgewater Inn project

by DOUG TRUAX

City Council rejected a request from developer Jon Hisey to construct a tower at the west end of phase 1 of the Edgewater Inn being constructed on Round Lake.

The tower, which would sit on top of an elevator area, would exceed by some 14 feet the 35-foot height limit allowed for the condominiums in the first phase of the 60-unit condominium-hotel project.

The tower was not shown in the original site plan.

Councilmen Earl Muma and Shirley Roloff raised the initial objections to the height variance. "I think it is time the council let the board (Zoning Board of Appeals) know how it feels about this," Roloff said. "They certainly can build that building without it (the tower)."

Council voted unanimously against the variance.

Another request from the developer – this one for a basement storage area for the Michigan Avenue shops which will be build as phase 3 of the project, was deferred by council until it had architect Jack Begrow's drawing of the addition.

Begrow told council the basement storage area had been requested by several potential store owners. The Edgewater Inn project will include six condominium shops along Michigan Avenue.

IN ANOTHER construction matter, council approved with some reluctance a $3,093.86 increase in the cost of the Public Safety Building to allow for "jumbo" bricks on the face of the new building. The contractor, Goodin and Bigelow Construction, Inc., had allowance of $300 per thousand for bricks in the bid estimate. The "jumbo" bricks, however, will cost $380 per thousand.

Roloff said the architect should have been able to anticipate the additional cost. "You're paying an architect to come up with the right figures for you," she said.

"I think we're going to have to buy the package even though we don't like it," Councilman Ray Wood concluded.

IN OTHER ACTION council approved a site plan for Sears for their proposed new location at 1200 Bridge Street, the former site of the Silver Cue.

Bruce MacArthur, president of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc., questioned the sign Sears would use at the new location. He was told by council that the Planning Commission had said Sears could use its old sign if placed 25 feet back from the road right-of-way or it could place a new wooden sign within seven feet of the road.

Bob Kern, a realtor whose office is currently located in the building, called MacArthur's questions to council "harassment."

City Clerk Arlene Staley handed out personal letters to each council member. The letter, from Streets

Area lake fishery is sizeable

by DOUG TRUAX

Lake Michigan anglers in the Charlevoix-Petoskey area spent nearly 300,000 hours chasing trout, salmon and perch in 1985 and managed to bring back 135,686 fish for their effort.

It took the average fisherman 5.4 hours to boat a salmon or trout from the lake.

Those statistics are among the wealth of data being generated by a new study – The Great Lakes Sport Fishery Monitoring Program – being conducted by the Charlevoix Great Lakes fishery station.

Biologist Gerald Rakoczy is directing the study under the supervision of Myrl Keller, head of the fisheries station.

The monitoring program will allow, for the first time, state fisheries officials to the state's expensive fish planting program, Rakoczy says.

Neither wind nor rain dims fishermen's spirits

Fog, rain and blustery winds did nothing to dampen spirits at the second annual Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament last weekend.

"The weather was terrible," said Sherry Withers, one of the tournament directors who toiled long and hard to bring the event off without a hitch. "But the die-hard fishermen would come in, weigh their fish, and go right back out. I couldn't believe these guys."

This year 449 people entered the contest, up 60 from last year, she said, and they brought in 598 fish. Last year the tournament fishermen boated some 300 fish.

Withers said there were three big prizes in this year's tournament: a large tent which protected the on-shore crowd from the rain, a new computer program for keeping track of the contest results and the band, "Loose Change," which played for the spectators on Friday and Saturday.

"I'd like to thank all the volunteers," Withers added. "There were a lot of people who worked real hard."

The trout tournament drew 195 fishermen from Charlevoix and another 242 from other areas of the state. Ten fishermen came from out of state and two from Canada.

The youngest prize winner was Raymond Ranstadler Jr., 1, of Boyne Falls who picked up $200 for his second place finish in the salmon division. Maria Seaman, 2, of Charlevoix placed 18th in the brown trout division and took home $50 for her 5 pound, 2 ounce fish.

Tournament directors point out proudly that you didn't need a big boat to pull in cash or prizes in the Charlevoix tournament. Ozzie Snyder, editor of Great Lakes Fisherman magazine and a tournament judge for the second year, said it is the only tournament in the Great Lakes that he is aware of which caters to the small boat owner. This year boats 18 feet or under won $7,229 of the $9,500 in cash prizes.

Winners in each division of the tournament include with prizes and weights of the winning fish in parentheses:

Brown trout division: Michael B. Hamrath, Honor ($2,000, 7 pounds, 3 oz.); Mark Dopke, Alanson ($1,000); Ben Shores, Charlevoix ($500); Ron Davis, Charlevoix ($250); Jon Hamrath, Honor ($100); Chris DeNio, Charlevoix ($50); Mark Kantola, Charlevoix ($50); Wayne L. Memorial plans announced

by FRAN MARTIN

The community of Charlevoix will join with Americans around the world in honoring its war dead at Memorial Day services scheduled for Monday, May 26.

A traditional program arranged by representatives of the Charlevoix Post No. 1153, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, will feature Darrell Linder, former summer resident who has retired to Charlevoix, as the speaker at the formal program at Brookside Cemetery at approximately 10:30 a.m. Monday. He has entitled his address: "The flag is passing by."

NOTICE TO CITY OF CHARLEVOIX RESIDENTS

City Council is considering a proposal that requires one waste hauler only: to service residential customers and requires all households to pay. The cost and quality of service is not known, but many disadvantages are clear.

1. Service — only weekly and at curb side only. No specialized service, service cost is for every week, no call ins, occasional pick ups and no once a month service. No reductions while on vacation or gone for a few weeks, if water is on you must pay.

2. "Mandatory" all must pay even though you chose to cooperate with recycling or other conservation or cost cutting programs.

3. Senior Citizen rates — only to those with minimal income, not according to age.

4. Only household refuse picked up. Brush will have to be in bundles in 4' lengths or less.

5. Sod, Rocks, Concrete, Earth, Refuse from construction or remodeling. Large tree limbs, now unacceptable parts have to be disposed of by the resident or hire a waste hauler to do so.

If Council feels that savings in spring clean up should be achieved that city service could be handled more economically by private haulers.

Private haulers have served and satisfied this city for many years and at a lower cost to residents than surrounding cities. We feel you should have your continued right of choice, to chose your hauler or handle it yourself.

Please make your feelings and comments known to your councilmen and city manager as this is on the agenda at the next work session and council meeting.

Sincerely,
Your local waste haulers,

School Board names transportation head

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education named Gordon Russell, 28, as transportation supervisor, approved a summer tax collection motion and passed a resolution to assist faculty in retraining.

Russell, of Charlevoix, has a business degree from Ferris State College and is a licensed mechanic. He was named from among eight applicants as transportation supervisor for the Charlevoix School District and will succeed Theodore "Bud" Heeres who is resigning effective June 30 after 17 years in the position.

The summer tax collection motion calls for 50 percent of the annual school taxes to be collected in all areas of the school district with the exception of the small portion in Banks Township, Antrim County. The remainder will be collected in December.

Taxes to be levied for 1986 will include: 9.10 mills allocated for operation, 15.25 mills voted for operation, .50 mill for public library operation, .61 mill for 1968 (K-5 school) debt retirement and .52 mill for 1979 (high school addition) debt retirement or a total of 25.98 mills.

Under the retraining resolution, the Charlevoix Board of Education may reimburse teachers for all or part of the cost of retraining to become qualified to teach in another subject or grade level for the benefit of the students in the school district.

A number of teachers, because of the declining enrollment, will have to retrain or leave the school system. The board voted to assist in the retraining program rather than lose a teacher to the system.

Pamela Smith, who with other teachers for the Charlevoix and Petoskey schools, attended an institute in Okemos which offers a program for teachers of children with dyslexia, reported on the trip. She said the schools they attended offered a very structured program of study and that a teacher had to follow lesson plans to the letter in order to make the system work. One school accepts only children with an I.Q. of 100 or more; others offered a structure program for students up to the eighth grade.

She added that the program presently in use in the Charlevoix school follows closely those being offered in schools in Okemos and Lake Odessa. Smith said further information would be forwarded to them and that it was the consensus of those attending that the program being offered would be evaluated before any major steps were taken.

Yvonne Wendt, French teacher who with her husband, Richard, took the French Club to Paris last month, reported on the trip stating that the group greatly appreciated the opportunity to speak the language in the country of its origin. She said the students had learned a great deal and that they were well behaved at all times.

Pageant contestants sought

There are still openings for young women wishing to participate in the 1986 Miss Charlevoix pageant which will be held Thursday, July 24, in conjunction with the Venetian Festival.

Applications for the contest are available at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and must be turned in by June 1.

Applicants must be single, never married and have no children. They must also be not less than 17 or more than 22 years of age by January 1, 1987. Their parents must be residents of the Charlevoix School District or own property in the district.

VFW Auxiliary plans Memorial Day activities

Plans for Memorial Day weekend-related events were made at a recent meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post No. 1153.

The Buddy Poppy Sale Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with Mrs. Pauline Russell as chairperson, will be the first of the events. She has asked that all members cooperate in the sale of the poppies made by hospitalized veterans. Proceeds from the sale are used for relief work locally and for the VFW National Children's Home at Eaton Rapids.

Rosalyn Goldstick, Memorial Day parade chairperson, has asked that all members march in the parade on Monday. They are asked to wear red blouses, white slacks and blue jackets. Cars will be provided for those unable to march.

New flags will be placed on the graves of deceased Auxiliary members by Marilyn Finck, Betty White and Arlene Staley.

Members participating in the parade are invited to the VFW post home following the ceremony at Brookside Cemetery for refreshments.

Also at the business meeting, delegates to the national convention were named. They are Mrs. White, Marge Plum and Betty Hodgkinson. Alternates named are Gertrude Holt, Elinor Curtis and Mrs. Finck.

Annual reports were made by the various chairpersons before being forwarded to state departments.

Mrs. Staley, cancer chairperson, reported that $161 from Glen's green slips was available for the cancer fund. Members are asked to continue to turn in the slips for redemption.

The Auxiliary voted to sponsor four children at the Mt. McSauba Day Camp.

The next meeting of the organization is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday June 5, at the VFW post home.

Letters to the Editor:

Council action against marina deplored

To all Citizens & Visitors of Charlevoix:

The time has come where we can no longer remain silent about a very sad but serious situation. As the developers of Northwest Marine, we are proud of what has been accomplished and created on property once resembling the slums of any large city.

A terrific amount of time, effort and money has been put into the facility to create what is referred to as the nicest marina on the Great Lakes. As some of you may or may not be aware, we have come under fire from the City of Charlevoix and it has gotten to the point that it has to stop.

We are presently being sued by the City of Charlevoix because we have two clusters of pilings (3 in each cluster) some 93 feet from shore, driven 2½ feet into what the City claims is their property because of alleged rights existing through an extension of Eaton Street into Lake Charlevoix. Having our office downtown we daily see on our public sidewalks cafe tables in front of restaurants, lawn and garden equipment in front of hardware stores, pop machines in front of party stores and sale clothing in front of clothing stores, all of which protrude farther than the 2½ feet we are being sued for.

Since all the boaters in our marina own their slips, they are taxpayers (in excess of $100,000 annually). 207 altogether, they buy food, clothes, patronize restaurants and utilize just about every service available here.

The "straw that broke the camel's back" came at the May 12th Council meeting when the City Council expressed that it is now concerned about the landscaping at the waters edge of disputed Eaton Street. They are concerned it is blocking the view and are considering having us remove it. At that same meeting, the City Council was also seriously concerned that because of the boat storage during the winter, the people who come up on the holidays that go sit by their dock on a December day may not have adequate parking and the Council was serious.

Anyone who remembers the old McCutcheon Building and the old Foster building has the best comparison of what looks better. We have several people who, during the summer, just come down to eat lunch and look at the boats and we welcome you to continue to enjoy. For those who have not come by the project, we invite you to come down and form an opinion about what you see and then answer if it is worth it to you to have the City spend $8,000-$10,000 or more of your tax dollars on this law suit.

We live in the community and are as proud and concerned as anyone but sometimes you just have to say, "enough is enough." We are asking that you write and let us know if you find the piling or landscaping offensive at Northwest Marine, 307½ Bridge Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720.

Thank you.

Please, stop for bus

Dear Editor:

I'm a concerned and worried parent.

Why don't drivers obey the school bus stop and caution lights when loading and unloading our children? My son has had three near misses by drivers who don't pay attention. The last one was Friday, May 9. The driver stopped right up by the bus on the left. The bus driver spoke to him only to have him back up almost over my son.

I yelled him, my son, to a stop. I don't sleep nights thinking how can I stop this. I sit watching him get on and off every day. I have a baby and a four-year-old and it's hard. Living on a highway is bad enough without this. Does everyone need to go back to driver's ed?

Council says no

Superintendent Leonard Dubey, announced that Dubey would retire as of Monday, May 19. The 27-year veteran city worker said the cause of his retirement was that "No employee should have to endure the verbal abuse that I received on Friday, May 16, 1986 from the City Manager."

Mayor Hal Hill said he would not accept the retirement pending an investigation of the incident. Council concurred. City Manager Michael Wiesner would not comment on the incident; telling council this was not the appropriate forum.

COUNCIL ALSO:

– Gave its approval to Marilyn Gibbons to move a garage from Park Avenue to Clinton Street.

– Held a "Truth in Taxation" public hearing on proposed increases in the millage rate for the city's operating millage and the Downtown Development Authority District.

– Appointed Shirley Roloff as the council representative to the Friends of Camp McSaraba board of directors.

– Shortened the city clerk's hours to 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. on the final day of voter registration (July 7) for the primary election. Hours were previously 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

– Moved to acquire the Levinson property for $13,155 cash. The 39 x 86-foot property will be used for the relocation of the city alley which will run next to the new Public Safety Building.

– Heard Mayor Hal Hill voice objection to trees which have been planted in the city-claimed right-of-way at the end of Eaton Street, next to Northwest Marine. City Attorney Jeffery VanTreese said council could add the complaint to a pending law suit between the city and the owners of Northwest Marine concerning pilings allegedly placed in the city's right-of-way.

– Heard VanTreese report that the city had closed on the purchase of the post office property on Monday for a price of $74,890.

Deaths leave void

By Bob Clock

Charlevoix has lost two important links with the past in the deaths of photographer Bob Miles and fisherman Johnny Cross.

I met Bob at the first meeting of the Charlevoix City Council I ever attended in July, 1965. We chatted briefly after the meeting and I remember him telling me he was worried because his health hadn't been up to par — and there were so many things he wanted to do.

But time was good to Bob. He still had a good score of years to amplify the gifts of public service, history and culture he already had bequeathed to Charlevoix.

During my days as editor of the Charlevoix Courier, I'd try to time my morning coffee break with Johnny Cross' arrival at the Sugar Bowl Restaurant (now 218 Bridge St.). Johnny was an eloquent speaker on a variety of subjects, including the fishing industry, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, and the early days of Northern Michigan.

Both men were important figures in Charlevoix. They both led long, full, rewarding lives, leaving a void that will be hard to fill.

I WONDER why no one has ever gone into the commercial production of rhubarb in Charlevoix? It is a crop that does well in Northern Michigan, appears to be impervious to frost and produces prodigiously throughout the growing season, providing you keep it picked.

There was a time when Detroit not only the Arsenal of Democracy and the Automobile Capital of the World, but also was the Rhubarb Capital of the Universe, or some such.

As a kid I remember visiting huge rhubarb plantations on the northeast side of the city, complete with vast greenhouses where rhubarb was nurtured during the off-seasons.

But rhubarb thrives just as well in Charlevoix. What's more, it requires very little care and is almost impossible to get rid of, once a root system has been established.

When the Ferry Seed Co. was located in Charlevoix, several varieties of vegetables were named after the old home town, including kidney beans.

So why not Charlevoix rhubarb? We might even build a summer festival around it, as Traverse City did the lowly tart cherry.

Unfortunately, not many people have a taste for the mouth-puckering red stalks. It is best, of course, in pies. In fact, some old-timers still refer to rhubarb as "pie plant."

Lake fishing research

"We need a qualitative way to compare the planting rates and fisherman success," he adds.

THE PROGRAM will provide a continuous record of sport catch and angler success rates on the Great Lakes and the major tributary streams. It includes both counts of all shore, pier and boat fishermen and interviews with anglers returning from the day's fishing.

A randomized schedule of data collection is conducted on Saturday and Sundays and on three days during the week.

Information in this area was obtained from Harbor Springs, several sites in Petoskey and the Charlevoix area.

Rakoczy says the survey, which he expects catches 96 percent of all fishermen, produces estimates of the monthly catch for each species of fish.

Among the big surprises for the fishery in this area, Rakoczy says, was the large number of lake trout caught. Anglers in the Harbor Springs to Charlevoix area caught 25,686 lakers totaling 159,600 pounds. "We didn't think the catch was that great," he says.

ANOTHER BIG SURPRISE to the researchers was the size of the perch catch. A small perch fishery has been emerging the Round Lake during the past couple of summers. Then suddenly last fall, a few fishermen discovered a massive school of perch in Lake Michigan, about a half a mile directly west of the pierhead.

Word spread rapidly, and before the year was out fishermen in the Charlevoix area had boated some 85,000 perch.

When the catch from the Little Traverse Bay was added, the yearly catch of yellow perch amounted to 90,578 fish or 36,800 pounds.

Mary Keller says there are bound to be large schools of perch elsewhere in the area and he will use the DNR research vessel, the Steelhead, to prospect for them this summer.

"The reason the perch are coming back is a side benefit of the salmon fishery," Rakoczy says. The large surplus of alewives present prior to the introduction of the salmon suppressed the once fabulous yellow perch fishery, Rakoczy notes. Now that salmon have reduced the number of alewives, the perch are making a return.

Rakoczy says the exact relationship between salmon and the improved perch fishery is not known, but it may be that alewives feed on young perch.

At any rate, the creel census figures give solid evidence of the return of the perch and future surveys may show the fishery expanding even more as fishermen learn to locate new hotspots.

THE STUDY FIGURES also showed a chinook salmon catch that was larger than the biologists anticipated. The Little Traverse Bay area, including Charlevoix, produced 15,813 chinook in 1985 for a whopping total of 235,600 pounds. Charlevoix, itself, accounted for over one-third of that total.

Some fishermen might be a little disheartened by the figures showing how long it took to catch each species. While it took the average fisherman five and one-half hours to boat each fish, it took 19 hours of fishing for each chinook caught, 250 hours for a coho, 11 hours for a lake trout, 200 hours for a brown trout, and 89 hours for a rainbow trout.

The average figure for a fish of any species is less because most fishermen catch a variety of fish during any given hour.

In southern Lake Michigan it takes almost twice as long to boat a fish, or 10.2 hours, the survey shows. Rakoczy says the success rate for charter boats is about twice as good as it is for the average fisherman.

In the Charlevoix-Petoskey area, 48 percent of the sport catch was lake trout, 29 percent chinook, 16 percent rainbows (steelhead), 3 percent brown trout, and 4 percent other species.

The bulk of the Lake Michigan catch at Charlevoix was, of course, from fishermen in boats. Pier fishermen in Charlevoix did manage to land 1,327 fish, the survey calculated, about evenly divided between perch and steelhead.

Shore anglers accounted for another 1,540 fish.

THE SURVEY cost some $715,000 last year, Rakoczy says, and will be about the same this year.

It is funded through the federal Dingell-Johnson fund which collects excise taxes on fishing gear and is reimbursed to the state.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

It was high noon in midtown Manhattan. The streets were buzzing with activity; crowds of people scurrying to lunch; auto horns honking; brakes screeching; a siren wailing. Two men were making their way through the throng. One was a native New Yorker, the other a Kansas farmer on a visit.

Suddenly, the farmer stopped and said to the city dweller, "Hold on! I hear a cricket!"

His friend replied, "Are you kidding? Even if there were a cricket around here, which isn't likely, you would never be able to hear it over all this noise."

The farmer remained quiet for a few moments, then walked several paces to the corner where a bush was growing in a large cement planter. He turned several leaves over and found the cricket.

The man from the city was flabbergasted. "What great ears you have," he said.

"No," the farmer replied, "your ears are as good as mine. It's a matter of what you've been conditioned to listen for. I'll show you." Where upon he pulled a handful of coins from his pocket and let drop to the sidewalk. As if on signal, every head on the block turned. "You see," said the farmer, "you hear what you want to hear. It's a matter of what you're listening for."

In John 10:3, you will find "the sheep hear his voice: and he calls his own sheep by name and leads them out."

The Good Shepherd always keeps us within calling distance. If we don't hear him, it's not because he's too far away or that he's not speaking loud enough. It's because we are listening for other voices.

Despite every kind of weather imaginable the second annual Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament was a huge success! A total of 480 fish were caught by 449 registered fishermen. People of all ages enjoyed the fun. Congratulations to Jim Withers and his entire committee on a job well done.

This type of activity in the shoulder season benefits the Charlevoix business community. Many local store owners realized increased sales due to the activity of the tournament.

Man your stations for the sixth annual Operation Petunia Thursday, May 22 at 5 p.m. The traditional "planters" picnic will follow afterwards in East Park. Also, the replica tall ship, the "Welcome" built by local ship builder, Ted McCutcheon, will be open for walk on tours during the picnic.

Memorial weekend is upon us already. The start of another season is about to begin. Don't forget to take in the VFW Memorial Day Parade downtown May 26 at 10 a.m.

Good luck in California, Nancy. We will all miss you.

An Aug. 2 wedding at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix is being planned.

Mom and daughter graduate together

For most students, enrolling in college means leaving the family nest. That wasn't the case for Charlevoix's Kelly Thompson.

Kelly and her mother, Louise, both are completing Ferris State College's dental hygiene program and will be graduating together at the College's annual Commencement ceremonies on May 24.

Kelly enrolled at Ferris in 1983 in pre-science before transferring into social services and finally into dental hygiene in 1984. Louis enrolled twice in nursing school in Petoskey before deciding to enroll at Ferris in the dental hygiene program.

"I worked in a dentist's office for 10 years," said Louise, a Charlevoix native. "I saw the dental hygienists and everything their work involved. I told myself, 'I can do that too.' So I decided to go back to school to get my degree."

"It was kind of a coincidence that we ended up in the same program," Kelly said. She said her mother's enrollment did not affect her own decision, but admitted that her mother's job did have some influence. "I was always visiting Mom at her office after school," she explained. "I am sure that her job had something to do with my decision."

Both students said their college careers have been challenging. "It has been rewarding, and a lot of fun," Louise said, adding that it was difficult returning to school. The 42-year-old mother of four finished high school in 1969. She completed the two-year dental hygiene program on time by taking heavy class loads.

"Mom has been very active in school," Kelly said. "More active than most of us in the dental hygiene program." Louise served as co-chair of the dental hygienists pinning ceremony to certify students as registered in their field. "Mom has managed to make the dean's list most of the time she has been here," Kelly added.

Mother and daughter both admit to a change in their relationship as a result of attending school together. "I think Kelly finally learned to know me as a person as well as her mother," Louise said.

Kelly admitted that it was difficult at first to have her mother attend school with her, but agrees it has enhanced their relationship. "I hated it at first," she said. "But it turned out not to be a big deal after all. Mom got along great with the other students and our relationship has changed a lot. We've become good friends."

Kelly is the second youngest child in the Thompson home. Her younger brother, Michael, 17, has lived at home with his father for the past two years.

Blpodmobile to visit

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit Charlevoix Thursday, May 29. Quota for the visit is 110 pints Nancy Fowler, coordinator for the blood program in Charlevoix, said.

The Bloodmobile will be at the American Legion post home at 106 E. Garfield from 1-7 p.m. on May 29.

The Charlevoix Lions Club will be asked to unload and set up and then re-load at the conclusion of the drive Mrs. Fowler said.

Members of the Beta Sigma Phi sorority will work at the canteen. Vital Options participants will provide fresh fruit for the donors. Homemade cookies are being solicited by anyone who would like to help. Oleson's Food Stores will again provide juice and the First State Bank the coffee.

Mrs. Vernon Mathews, Jr., is in charge of calling and scheduling volunteers for the day. Mrs. Thomas Carey will be asking nurses in the area to work that day. Mrs. Herman Izor is in charge of publicity.

The American Red Cross Wolverine District which supplies blood to 13 hospitals in northern Michigan is running low on blood according to administrator, Fred Stevens. All types of blood are needed, especially the universal O type.

Anyone 17 years and over, in good health, weighing at least 110 pounds and who has not given blood in the last eight weeks can donate.

It is hoped that the Charlevoix drive will go well so the Red Cross blood supply will be in good shape for the summer.

The Bloodmobile will not be returning to the area again until fall Mrs. Fowler said.

Rayders win tennis regional

by FRAN MARTIN

For the first time since 1979, Charlevoix has won a Class C-D tennis regional title and will participate in the state tournament at Holland on May 24.

Charlevoix won the title at Glen Lake last Saturday with 19 points. The final match was rained out and was played off Monday afternoon at Charlevoix. The No. 2 doubles of Dan Stanblin and Rusty Coolman had split with the Boyne City duo of Marc Archambault and Brian Napont 3-6 and 6-4 before rain halted the match. In a third set played Monday, the Boyne duo won 6-4 in what Coach Erik Lundteigen said was the best match of the tournament.

The win by Boyne gave the Ramblers sole possession of third place with a total of 11 points. Harbor Springs placed second with 17 points. All three teams qualify for state competition.

"It was fantastic," Lundteigen said of the regional tournament. "Everyone won at least one flight. The kids had worked hard and it paid off. It's good to have a winning team." Looking to the future he added "We only lose two players by graduation, Sue Miller and Coolman."

Charlevoix took first place in three of the seven flights.

In the singles, the Rayders Jon Eakes won matches by scores of 6-3, 6-0, 6-2 and 6-1, 6-0 before defeating Boyne City's Nicole Scheek in the finals 6-2, 6-3.

The Rayders' No. 1 doubles team of Jason Brindel and Mike Chew swept all three flights, 6-0, 6-0 and then 6-1, 6-1 before defeating Harbor's Matt Guswiler and Rick Shepherd 7-5, 2-6, 6-1. Quint Walker and Web Cumberland, at the No. 3 double spot, also won by scores of 6-0, 6-1; 6-2, 5-7, and in the finals downed Tom Raney and Jamie Walker 6-3; 7-5.

In the singles, Ty Wagner won his first match, 6-0, 6-0 and then lost 6-2, 5-1; Charlie Witthoeft beat Mike McGeorge of Boyne City 6-4, 6-0 before losing 6-2, 6-1. Marty Joy won his first flight 2-6, 6-3, 6-2 before losing 6-2, 5-7, 6-0.

"Everyone played an important role, everyone won at least one match and everyone counted. The kids were great," a happy Lundteigen said.

Hardballers bow in district

The Charlevoix Rayder baseball team's appearance in district competition was short-lived as they bowed to Traverse City St. Francis in a pre-district game played Friday at Traverse City.

The score was 11-3 with Marc Himebauch taking the loss and Derek Dutcher coming in in relief in the sixth inning. Together they allowed 10 hits. Jim McGee as the winning pitcher gave up seven hits.

The Gladiators took a 4-0 lead in the first inning and were never headed as they added two more runs in the second. The Rayders scored two runs in the third inning but Traverse City added one in the fourth and two in the fifth before the Rayders brought a third run home early in the sixth. Traverse countered with two in the sixth for the 11-3 win and a chance to advance in the Class C District playoff.

Coach Brian Certa said the players hit the ball well but someone was always there to pick it off.

Collecting hits for the Rayders were Mike Thompson, Scott Denny, Brian Wilmot and Steve Hopkins with singles. Himebauch with a single and a home run and Jody Putman a double.

Charlevoix will host Rogers City in a scheduled game next Tuesday.

Rayders split series with Onaway

The Charlevoix Rayder baseball team split with Onaway in games played here Saturday May 17, with the second game called at the end of five innings because of rain.

The Rayders won the first game 12-7 behind the pitching of Day Drury and Derek Dutcher and lost the nightcap 8-6 with Scott DeYoung at the mound.

The Rayders took control early in the first game, scoring three runs in the first and four in the second inning for a 7-0 lead. The Cardinals scored four runs in the third inning, but Charlevoix scored one in the bottom of the third and two each in the fourth and fifth inning while the visitors had one in the fifth and sixth innings.

Drury pitched for four innings with Dutcher relieving him in the fifth. Together they allowed five hits.

Steve Hopkins had two hits including a double, Jody Putman a home run, Brian Wilmot two home runs, and Marc Himebauch, Drury and Mike Himebauch, one single each.

In the second game, the visitors went ahead 8-5 in the third inning and held the lead though the Rayders scored runs in the third and fourth innings. The game was called in the fifth inning because of rain.

DeYoung gave up 10 hits.

Kent Scymour had a double, Marc Himebauch a home run, and Shawn Putman and Jason Fettig singles to account for Rayder hits.

Softball loses to Elk Rapids

The Charlevoix softball team bowed out of district competition Friday when they dropped a pre-district game to Elk Rapids, 10-3.

In a second game, the Rayders won by a score of 16-6.

Elk Rapids took a 7-0 lead, scoring in each inning before Charlevoix picked up its first run in the fourth inning. They were able to add a run in the fifth and sixth innings but the Elks also added three to take the game.

Courtvrier allowed seven runs while Michelle Gagnon, who took the loss, gave up six runs.

Anne Smith had a double, Lisa Smith a triple and Gagnon, Amy Antaya, Heidi Boldoc and Carol Holm, one hit each.

In the second game, the Rayders had their first triple play of the season. With two Elk Rapids players on base, Jenny Sell took a fly ball, threw it to Lara Stargardt at the plate. She, in turn, threw to Stacy Gebott at third base for the third out.

Carol Holm allowed only one base on balls and four hits.

Gebott had a double and Kris Austin and Gagnon singles to account for the Rayders three hits.

Public Notice
Marion Township

A public hearing will be held at the Marion Township Hall, on Tues., June 17, 1986, at 7:30 p.m., to accept public comments on the proposed additions and amendments to the Marion Township Zoning Ordinance.

Add following sections:

Section 2.12 — Waterfront Buffer Area: For all structures located on lakefront property, a horizontal setback from the water's edge of 100 feet shall be required for any residential development. In those instances where the setback of existing dwelling units is greater than 100 feet, the average setback of all residential dwelling units along said lake shall be the required setback. In those instances where the lake is not entirely within the boundaries of the township, only those properties within the township boundary shall be considered for determining setback requirements.

The lowest elevation of any residential structure shall be a minimum of 590 feet above sea level. For lakes with no established high water mark, a minimum of 5 feet above the existing water level shall be required.

Section 2.13 "Boats as dwelling units": In no instances shall boats moored within the boundary of Marion Township be occupied for living purposes on a permanent, seasonal, or temporary basis.

Section 22.7 A "Buildable Land": For the purpose of determining allowable number of units, the following land area shall be excluded:

1) portions of the property having a slope of 15% or greater, and

2) land classified as a wetland pursuant to state statute.

Amend the following sections:

Section 7.4 a) Change 15 to 5, per buildable acre, and the 780 square feet to 800 square feet.

Section 7.4 d) Change 40 to 100.

Section 2.10: Change the name to "boat storage". A maximum of 2 moored boats shall be permitted per dwelling unit.

Waste haulers object

hauling in nearby cities cost more than they charge in Charlevoix: $8 in Boyne City, Petoskey, and Ellsworth, and $9 in Elk Rapids.

As it is now, Charlevoix residents may hire either the Charlevoix Garbage Service or North Country Sanitation to pick up their solid waste, or they may choose to take it to the landfill themselves. Under the proposed city plan, the city would bill all residents for hauling services, along with their utilities.

"It just seems to us that people should have the right to choose their own waste haulers as they always have, or do it themselves", Barney Way continued.

"Many who do their own hauling do it because they want to recycle their paper or glass or metal, or whatever and they pay less for depositing their other wastes. If the city takes over, there will be no incentive for recycling because these people will have to pay the same as everyone else for hauling services".

The haulers also emphasized that they were able to provide special services which one under contract to the city would not provide.

Middle Schoolers pitch in to landscape school grounds

Last week was a great one for the students at the Charlevoix Middle School when they saw their plans become reality as the first shrubs, bushes, trees and flowers were planted as a beautification project at their school.

The sixth graders were designated as the official planters so it was 95 of those students who took shovels and rakes in hand and did the job under the guidance of Charlevoix Area Garden Club members.

The students had completed a five week training program taught by members of the Charlevoix Garden Club in preparation for this week's work bee. Mrs. AnnaBelle Webb, Mrs. Phyllis Block, Mrs. Jolyn Hall and Mrs. Joanne Curtis conducted the training program during their science class for five weeks to acquaint the students with the planting process. They learned about the plants root system, fertilizing, watering and care. They also learned about the various shrubs they would be planting.

The project started last fall with a fund-raising project with part of the proceeds earmarked for the spring planting. A study of the area was made and the shrubs selected.

The existing soil was prepared, railroad ties set in place and fertile black soil was brought in prior to Monday. At that time four sections of the class took over during their regular class period to get the job done.

The area across from Grant Street on the west side of the building was planted first and the east side of the north wing followed.

Other plantings were being completed Friday.

"This is only Phase I of our overall plan. It was the students' idea to beautify the grounds, make it something they would be proud of. However, it meant raising the money ourselves. We had one big fund raising and have used the money for several projects during the school year as the Student Council proposed." Dennis VanGuilder, school principal, said.

"As we earn the money, we plan to make plantings on the south side of the gymnasium and elsewhere on the grounds. This fall we will be planting bulbs so at this time next year, it should be a blaze of color with the flowering shrubs and the bulbs in bloom. We will be adding petunias, marigolds and geraniums this spring to add some color for the present" he added.

A total of 38 shrubs, trees and bushes were planted. They include Pyramidal arbor vitae, yews, barberrys, gold flame spirea, forsythia, burning bushes, purple lilacs, purple lead plum and two varieties of flowering crab trees.

Next week, a sign which will identify the school will be placed in front of the building. Like the plantings, it was purchased by the students' fund.

The grounds had a barren look since the shrubs, donated to the school shortly after it was constructed in 1927 by the Hemingway Nursery at Ironton, were removed when they outgrew their usefulness as ornamental shrubbery.

"The students want a building they can be proud of so they decided to do something about it," VanGuilder explained.

VanGuilder and the students expressed their gratitude to the Charlevoix Garden Club for all the work they did on the project and the time they spent with them; Carson Lumber and Manthei Development for the discounts they allowed the students on the ties and top soil and to Allen Dhaseleer, custodian, for his assistance in the project.

Charlevoix sixth-greders, under the guidance of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club members, plant trees, shrubs, bushes and flowers at the Middle School last week.

Gentlemen, plant your petunias

Gentlemen and women, man your stations. The petunia planting is about to begin.

Thursday, May 22, at 5 p.m. sharp up to 900 Charlevoix citizens, and a few beyond our borders, will take to the streets of Charlevoix for the annual rite of spring, Operation Petunia.

The planting will take place rain or shine, organizers say.

Dale Boss, Operation Petunia chairman, visited Renolda's Greenhouse in Harbor Springs last week and reports that the petunias are ablaze with color.

Following the planting, there will be a picnic in East Park for all who have participated (and had their tickets validated by a block captain).

In addition to the petunias along U.S. 31 from the north city limits to the south city limits, there will also be petunias planted at the high school, on a portion of Park Avenue and in the new plant box sign at the Charlevoix Middle School.

A new Le Tour Schwinn 10-speed bicycle will be auctioned off in East Park at approximately 7 p.m. during the picnic. Proceeds from this mini-auction, and the main auction in August, go to buy next year's petunias.

Sheriff proposes changes for Castle Farms concerts

Sheriff George T. Lasater has a list of "recommendations" concerning the operation of Castle Farms concerts this summer.

He has presented the recommendations in letter form to both the promoters of the concerts and to the Marion Township Board.

Sheriff Lasater's recommendations are:

Construction of a security fence around both parking lots. The Sheriff believes this would eliminate trespassing on private property surrounding the parking lot area and would assist in maintaining better security inside the parking area.

According to Sheriff Lasater, most police problems occur within the parking lots and are caused by non-paying persons entering the parking lots without being challenged by Castle Farms' security.

Construction of a pedestrian cross-over walkway across M-66. Large numbers of patrons enter and exit Castle Farms from the large parking lots and some have been seriously injured in the process. Sheriff Lasater believes this situation will continue until a safety feature such as this is constructed.

Restriction of concerts to daylight. Because of the location of Castle Farms, in a residential area, daytime concerts would be safer for patrons and local residents alike, Sheriff Lasater believes.

Restriction of concert attendance. Sheriff Lasater asks the Township Board to consider using its Gathering Ordinance to limit the number of persons admitted to each concert.

He says he makes this recommendation based on the present road conditions of M-66 and his concern for people living in the area who may need fire, ambulance, or Sheriff's patrol because of overcrowding traffic.

Sheriff Lasater also recommends a "head tax" on each ticket sold. "In order to provide adequate traffic control and public safety services during the concerts, it is a financial burden on the respective departments' budgets that have jurisdiction, such as the Sheriff's Department, State Police, and the City Police of Charlevoix", he wrote.

"The revenue from such a head tax would be used to help defray the cost not only of Public Safety, but also the Road Commission, Public Health, and Township officials who must monitor, issue permits, etc. for the concerts", the Sheriff concluded.

According to Marion Township Treasurer Doris Johnson, nine concerts have been scheduled this summer, but as of last week, only three had been confirmed. She said the "Beach Boys", on June 29, are the first scheduled performers.

Charlevoix dedicates Peace Pole

by FRAN MARTIN

May Peace Prevail On Earth has been the prayer of peoples around the world.

The community of Charlevoix joined in spreading this global prayer in behalf of peace with the planting of a peace pole in Veterans Park at Bridge Street and Belvedere Avenue Sunday afternoon.

On the peace pole the message May Peace Prevail on Earth, is inscribed on plates on four sides of the square pole in English; French, in recognition of the community's name, Charlevoix, and our neighbors to the North, Canada; in Ojibway in recognition of native Americans and in Hebrew in recognition of our Judeo-Christian heritage.

Charlevoix's first peace pole was donated by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association. They said it seemed fitting that it be placed in a park dedicated to veterans of this community who gave their lives that this country and the world may know peace.

The dedication of the peace pole was planned to coincide with the beginning of the "Hands Across America Project" aimed at alleviating domestic hunger.

"We planned the planting of the Peace Pole and its dedication at this time in recognition of these events and to express our solidarity with those who are participating in them," the Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum pastor of the First Congregational Church, said, speaking in behalf of the sponsoring ministerial association.

Peace Poles have also been purchased by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club and the First Congregational Church. Others are being planned by the United Methodist Church, Greensky Hill United Methodist Church and the Charlevoix Lions Club.

"The purpose of the Peace Pole is to spread the message, May Peace Prevail on Earth, and to act as a constant reminder of the necessity to wish for world peace at all times. World peace begins in the hearts and minds of individuals and we believe this powerful message will re-awaken again the universal wish for peace in the hearts of all mankind," Schairbaum explained.

He also said that though the peace pole project originated in Japan it has grown into a world wide project. As of October 1985, there were 124 peace poles in the United States.

Rev. Philip Scheirbeum pleces the Peace Pole as observers hold hends in e circle eround it.

Lake levels still high

The elevation for Lakes Michigan-Huron (and Charlevoix) at the end of April was about two inches above what it was one year ago and about four inches above one month ago, according to a report from the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The April monthly mean level was about 32 inches above the long-term average and about four inches above the all-time monthly mean high for April, which was set in 1985, and about 65 inches above the all-time low April monthly mean set in 1964.

The six-month forecast of levels for the lakes shows that they are expected to be above the long-term average level during the next six months. The forecast shows that at the end of May, Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about three inches above what they were at the end of April. The lakes are expected to continue their seasonal rise into July.

At the end of October, 1986, the lakes are expected to be seven inches above what they were at the same time in 1985. The October mean would be above the long-term average for that month and six inches above the all-time high mean for October, which was set in 1985.

Charlevoix Yesterday

In the early part of this century, "Let's go for a ride" often meant a boat ride. Trips between the cities on Lake Charlevoix were made for recreational as well as business reasons. The boat in the foreground in this picture is the "Hun," which made regular runs between Charlevoix and East Jordan. The other boat was owned by the Boyne City & Charlevoix Boat Company, which provided regular trips between those two cities.

County road work proves expensive

by PEG OHLE

It costs a lot of money for the Road Commission to maintain the 790 miles of road it is responsible for in Charlevoix County.

The Road Commission's report for 1985, which was recently delivered to the County Board of Commissioners, shows that road construction and maintenance and related expenses amounted to $2,403,500.

Construction costs amounted to $362,479 and covered gravel surfacing of one mile of Huffman Lake Road, installation of culverts crossing the Jordan River in Peaine Township, and installation of culverts crossing Spring Brook in Chandler Township, as well as work on several local roads for which townships paid in part:

Curtis Lane and Wildwood Drive in Bay Township; Skop Road in Boyne Valley Township; Wildwood Drive in Evangeline Township; Phelps Road, Wood Street, and Gaunt Road in Eveline Township; Stephens Road and Burnett Road in Hayes Township; Klooster Road in Marion Township; East Street and Country Club Road in Melrose Township; Cedarview Road in Norwood Township; Dutchman Bay and Lord Road in South Arm township; and Carson Road stub in Wilson Township.

The above townships contributed $200,220 toward the $226,998 cost of doing the local road work. The Road Commission's Primary Road Fund provided $135,481 for the Huffman Lake Road and culvert work.

Road maintenance expenses in 1985 amounted to $1,354,343 and included the costs of continued ditching, gravel, and re-sealing existing pavements. Actual road work amounted to $821,334, with winter maintenance costing another $521,648, and traffic control, $11,361.

Last year was a big year for capital outlay purchases by the County Road Commission. The Commission spent $417,823.35 for:

One Chevrolet tar, three tandem axle trucks and added parts, one grader, one scarifier, four radios, two brooms, one loader with added parts, two sanders, one gull wing plow, four underbody scrapers, one V-plow, one snow wing, four chain saws, two lawn-mowers, one weed eater, two post hole drillers, one copy machine, one police radio, and one telephone system.

Grange provides help for hearing impaired

by FRAN MARTIN

The National Grange, the nation's oldest and second largest farm organization, was founded on principles of fellowship and service in 1867.

One of the most far-reaching and successful service projects is the National Grange Deaf Activities Program, Mrs. Darlene Dhaseleer, chairperson for the Barnard Grange, has announced.

The aim of the project is to confront the wide range of deafness problems on as many levels as possible. Some efforts provide direct assistance to the deaf. Others focus on educational projects designed to create public awareness...to explain what deafness is and what it means to the deaf. Others teach communications with the deaf and how to prevent deafness or hearing impairment.

Posters calling attention to this problem have been distributed in the community.

Science classes in Charlevoix's fourth, fifth and sixth grades have received sound and hearing packets to acquaint students with the problem, Dhaseleer said.

The Grange also assists people in the community in finding interpreters for the deaf and hard of hearing. Dhaseleer said that there is a need for more interpreters; people who would be willing to learn the sign language used by the deaf or hard of hearing.

Earlier, the Grange purchased hearing aids for use by the hearing-impaired class at the Char-Em Intermediate School District.

Dhaseleer may be contacted at 547-9544 by anyone with questions relating to the program.

Petunias bloom in Charlevoix

Some 800 people participated in the fifth annual Operation Petunia on Thursday. They managed to plant more than 48,000 petunias along the four miles of curb on U.S. 31 within the city boundaries.

The planting began, as always, at 5 p.m., and by 6:15 all the petunias were in the ground.

The John Campbell family of seven was the largest family group to participate.

After the planting was done, some 650 participants gathered in East Park for a hot dog picnic, under the supervision of Joann and Don Dannecker.

Kate Burlew, chairman of the Petunia Auction, organized a mini-auction in which auctioneer Carl Miller sold off a 10-speed bike and other items, raising $111 toward next year's petunias.

In addition to the petunias planted along U.S. 31, the high school students put in 20 flats in front of the school.

Planters also noted it was the first time the Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite had been in port during the planting, and crew members joined in the effort.

Mayor Hal Hill got more than ceremonial duties for the event. In addition to marking off curbs in the rain on Wednesday, the mayor drove a truck Thursday during the planting, delivering and picking up flats of flowers.

Planters of all ages once again helped get the nearly 50,000 plants in the ground in just over one hour.

Scott Beatty came directly from work, as witnessed by his suit and tie, but that didn't prevent him from helping his son, Jesse, plant a few petunias.

Tessie Farrell, 90, was among those planters who enjoyed a picnic lunch in East Park following the planting.

"Mr. Petunia" Dale Boss, right, had things running like a well-oiled machine. Here he helps load flats on a truck bed with other volunteers.

Area nature preserves offer visitors a quiet interlude

by AUDREY DIEBEL COLLINS

Little Traverse Conservancy's nature preserves are quiet places, secluded corners set aside from the frantic scramble of the north's tourist-based economy, islands of peace kept for their value as important natural lands and open spaces.

Minutes from the highways and trunklines of Charlevoix County lie two of these diamonds in the rough: the Charles A. Ransom Nature Preserve and the Sleepy Hollow Preserve. On the most hectic summer day, a dust-choked soul can wander the woods, meadows and streams, only rarely encountering another person.

The preserves now are exhibiting the last of their spring color and putting on their summer finery. Spring beauty, hepatica and trillium have given way to lady's slippers, maidenhair fern, and jack-in-the-pulpit. In these sanctuaries, birdsong replaces the roar of cars and trucks, silence overtakes the din of the Muzak, and solitary pathways trade places with crowded sidewalks.

Lands donated to the Little Traverse Conservancy now total over 800 acres. The parcels boast no drinking fountains or outhouses, never mind camper hookups. They are designed for passive day use: hiking, birdwatching, and nature study. Those who use the preserves do so with respect, leaving nothing but footprints and taking nothing but photographs.

A visitor stops to observe the stream flowing through the Sleepy Hollow Nature Preserve.

Visitors to the Charles A. Ransom Nature Preserve wind their way to the top of a meadow hillside and are rewarded with a panorama of the Lake Michigan shoreline that takes in the Leelanau Peninsula and Beaver Island. Descending into the bowl of the 80-acre preserve, hikers are shaded by sugar maples, beech and basswood trees. Printed trail guides are available to pointout native wildflower species.

To reach the Ransom Preserve, head northeast out of Charlevoix on US-31 to Burgess Road, then travel 3.5 miles to Quarterline Road. Turn left on Quarterline, and after one mile turn left again on Maple Grove Road. The parking lot is three-quarters of a mile in, at the end of Maple Grove Road.

Sleepy Hollow Preserve rests near the shore of Lake Charlevoix's South Arm, at Phelps Road off M-66 about 7.5 miles south of Charlevoix. A sballow, sandy stream greets visitors at the head of a trail that winds around the densely wooded 55-acre site and disappears into a fragrant balsam and cedar swamp.

Michigan's protected yellow lady's slippers grow in relative abundance here; it is against state law to pick or dig the plants. Generous patches of delicate maidenhair fern dot the floor of the beech and maple-forested hills. Bring a field guide to help identify other ferns, flowers and fungi.

Maps to nine of the most accessible preserves in Charlevoix and Emmet counties are available through the Little Traverse Conservancy, a non-profit organization. For information, write 3264 Powell Road, Harbor Springs, MI 49770.

Opinion

'Round town

Mr. Dutcher ond friends

by Edith Gilbert

This week the Charlevoix Courier is pleased to introduce a new column by Edith Gilbert. Edith will join our other regular columnists for the summer months. She will focus on things to do in the Charlevoix area – good places to eat, changes in business, fun things to do with the family, upcoming social and cultural activities and the comings and goings of Charlevoixans. A veteran free-lance writer, and the author of several books, we are sure you will find her column entertaining and helpful. – Editor.

Long-time summer visitors always ask me in June, "What's new in Charlevoix?" They're keenly interested in the pros and cons of local issues which they've been reading about in the Charlevoix Courier during the winter months. They want to know what new chef is in charge of which landmark restaurant in town – what new shops are opening – which service business has changed hands – and always, what to do with the children on a rainy day.

Because I live here year round now, and am no longer considered a "fudgie" by them, it has been my lot to pass on to the best of my ability, these choice tid-bits of information over the years. Helpful hints that smooth the transition for those who are changing residence for a couple of weeks or a couple of months.

And that's the purpose of this new column.

Instead of merely exchanging local news face to face with my limited daily contacts in the market or at the dry cleaners, it's now my added pleasure to share interesting information through this column with the many new condominium owners, who quietly come and go, as well as with homeowners, who are nestled away in the woods and by the lake, cherishing their treasured privacy. People who care about the drumbeat of activity surrounding their home, sweet summer home.

While we're on the subject of ever-changing news, my thoughts flash back to a scene that took place annually in the 30s and early 40s. Every June, Harold Dutcher, who was the butcher where the Wharfside Market now stands on Bridge Street, used to make a formal call on my father-in-law, Sam Gilbert, cigar manufacturer, who had a summer home on Park Avenue.

Mr. Dutcher arrived in his horse and wagon in which groceries were delivered. The two men would sit in the living room and cheerfully or solemnly, as the case may be, discuss everything that happened during the winter in Charlevoix. At the end of this congenial visit, Sam would give Harold a box of R.B. Dun cigars. the men would firmly shake hands and part company until next year. Both genuinely satisfied with the exchange of the latest news for a box of fresh cigars.

Speaking of butcher shops and markets, summer people always head there first to pick up bread, butter, milk, lettuce, etc. Those who trade at Edwards IGA are in for a surprise. Under the new ownership of Jack and Lois Schmidt, customers will be greeted by a delightful new atmosphere, more spacious decor and smoother traffic pattern. Go see.

The big controversy this winter raged over real estate developments such as Water's Edge on Lake Charlevoix, Edgewater Inn on Round Lake, the newly proposed Rysberg Motel near the bridge, to name a few. Tempers run high and opinions are sharply defined. Issues involve the preservation of wetlands, variances for building heights, parking and traffic flow. Everyone has an opinion and few have solutions. One new method of resolving issues has been tried successfully and that's mediation. Ask Bruce MacArthur if you want to know more.

If you haven't heard about the disasterous high water on the Great Lakes you must have been out of the country. The beach erosion on Lake Michigan threatens numerous condominiums and homes from the south of Charlevoix as far north as Cross Village. In some sections it's a crisis situation. Take a boat and cruise north from the channel and notice how the high water line is ravaging the shore. You'll be surprised!

Boaters will be elated to learn that their favorite stop-over for refreshments on Lake Charlevoix, The Landings, is open now under new management by Laurie and David Wilson, longtime summer residents of Sequanota.

Tracy King, manager, tells me that the whole place has been freshened, the kitchen has been renovated, the docks have been improved and there will be more space for visiting yachtsmen. The dining room will serve very similar, good Mexican food. During the summer they will also serve breakfast. Can't wait to check it out!

Attention collectors. Want to know what your treasure is worth? Ask art appraisor, Ernest Dumouchelle of Detroit, who will be at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center on Wednesday, June 4 from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Call 347-4337 for more information.

Those of you who watch "Good Morning, America" will see on June 2, Irma Bombeck talking to the senior class, all four of them, on Beaver Island. But Lois Hedgson and Joyce Boydston were thrilled to talk to her in person at the Charlevoix airport. Due to the fog, she detoured home via the Beaver Islander.

Clockwise

Mooring out

By Bob Clock

Q. What do they call a wooden building entirely surrounded by water?

A. The Chicago Club boathouse.

Judy and I took a stroll to the foot of Prospect Street the other night and were surprised to find that the high waters of Round Lake have crept entirely around the old boathouse. You can still reach the building via a bridge from shore, but there can't be many dry areas inside the building for boarding and off-boarding boats, or whatever they do in there.

I predict that "mooring out" will be a popular outdoor sport this summer among owners of flooded boathouses. I wish I had stock in a dinghy company.

It is sort of unsettling that the folks who used to make water-level predictions have clammed up after botching their summer forecast last year. They all said that water levels would peak in July and then start to decline. Of course, the already high water kept right on climbing.

The buzz-word now is that residents of the Great Lakes area have been enjoying abnormally low water levels for the past century and that present levels are probably closer to the norm."

All of which cannot be very comforting news to folks who have built their summer digs right on the water.

HAVE YOU NOTICED the absence of skunks in town this spring? There are a few, of course, but not nearly so many as other years.

Naturalist Reg Starkey of Petoskey says he hasn't noticed any particular decline in the skunk population this year. But he says wildlife populations are cyclical, with humps and valleys every few years.

My theory is that the skunks have been chased out of town by the rabbits, which seem to be everywhere. It's fun to watch the young bunnies playing tag with each other. There's no question about their antics being play, because they even look happy.

COULD IT BE that late spring weather patterns are changing?

I cannot remember a Memorial Day in Charlevoix that I did not shiver through the parade and try to take notes with stiff fingers while speakers held court at Brookside Cemetery.

But this year was different: Sunny and warm from start to finish.

Esther Miles says Charlevoix always had nice weather on Memorial Day when she was a girl and that the churlish weather we have experienced in recent years is foreign to these parts.

I hope she is right, because I remember snowflakes in the air one Memorial Day weekend. Another time I had to wear a woolen jacket to complete building a sandbox in the backyard for Katie's Memorial Day birthday.

But the past few days have been pure, unadulterated summer. We may even have ripe tomatoes by August.

ALIVE IN CHRIST
by Lowell Anderson
Assembly of God

"New Birth" and "Born Again" are terms we hear spoken not only in Church and religious circles, but in society in general. The terms are being used to describe everything from a religious experience to weight loss.

Yet to be born again is a viable experience of spiritual conversion; and the term was coined by Jesus Christ Himself. New Birth is the experience of the forgiveness of sin and a personal relationship with Jesus Christ which Jesus Himself described. (John 3)

"Alive in Christ" is another scriptural term that further expands the meaning of a personal relationship with the living Lord Jesus Christ. The term is used in a Biblical analogy that is relatively meaningless until it is adequately explained. The term is used in Colossians 2 and has a beautiful and exciting meaning when it is fully understood.

The passage is as follows: "You were at one time spiritually dead because of your sins, and because you were Gentiles outside the Law. But God has now brought you to life with Christ! God forgave us all our sins. He cancelled the unfavorable record of our debts, with its binding rules, and did away with it completely by nailing it to the cross" (Colossians 2:12 & 14, Today's English Version).

What is the meaning of having "the unfavorable record of our deeds" being taken away by nailing it to the cross? Way should this be exciting to me as a Christian?

The writer of these verses, the Apostle Paul, is referring here to a common practice of the Roman legal system. When a criminal in Roman society was tried and sentenced for a crime, the criminal's offense (the unfavorable record of his deed) and the specific law he had violated (its binding rules) were posted at the place of his imprisonment or detainment. For example, this record of crime and its punishment would be posted on the bars of the convicted criminal's cell.

In the case where the offense was punishable by death, this record would be posted at the place of execution.

This is the reason that an inscription was posted on the cross of Jesus Christ. Pilate ordered that a superscription be placed at the top of Christ's cross, written in Greek, Latin, and Hebrew which said "This is the King of the Jews." Yet we all know that this is not the true charge and the real reason that Christ died! Actually, the superscription, the "unfavorable record of His deed," that was posted was not the correct "record."

The correct superscription was "the unfavorable record of our debts"! The men and women who surrounded the cross the day Christ was crucified saw the superscription, "This is the King of the Jews." When God the Father looked down from Heaven and read the posted offenses He saw my sin... He saw your sin... and when Christ died the penalty was paid in full.

By completely doing away with the unfavorable record of our sin which separated us from God, He has brought us to Life With Christ.

By placing our faith in the finished work of Jesus Christ who completely paid the penalty for our sin, we are born again. We who were spiritually dead because of our sin are alive in Christ.

Letters to the Editor:

Waters Edge will not support numbers proposed

Dear Editor:

I've felt that the units proposed by Water's Edge, whether it be the original 360 or the 120 or 135 that is now being mentioned, is far too many. It's not because I'm anti-growth or because I own property a quarter of a mile away from the Water's Edge site or because I'm an environmentalist.

The property simply can not adequately support the density that will result from the people who will live on front and back lots.

Keyhole or funnel development is defined as the use of waterfront lots as common open space for waterfront access for a larger development located away from the waterfront. The basic reason developers can sell 90 dwellings on back lots is because they can gain access to the real attraction for living there - the lake - in this case Lake Charlevoix.

I served as city recreation director of 18 summers in Charlevoix. My job was to monitor the three city beaches. My experience tells me that water attracts boaters, bathers, sun worshippers, frisbee throwers, volleyball players, castlemakers. And they all want their space on the water.

In reviewing the March and April 1985 issues of Planning and Zoning News and the November issue of the Michigan Riparian, there are many valid and interesting points made on lake keyhole development and the use of waterfront property. One key point made is that local regulatory control is the current answer. You cannot leave the latter to state agencies or lake associations.

What is needed is a preventive, foresightful solution that is based on sound watershed and density planning. Several township ordinances were cited where this careful analysis took place. My research found that in most cases sound zoning addressed the back dwelling-lake access question.

In fact, a formula was designed to insure that each back dwelling would have space to reach the waterfront beach area. This area, defined as a recreation park bordering on the water and which consists of the extended access point to the lake, must have adequate space so that each back dwelling unit for whom privilege to the lake access has been granted can recreate and enjoy the water.

Several ordinances, required 20 lineal feet of waterfront for each back dwelling. (Texas Township - Kalamazoo County, Otsego County and Lake Du Flambeau Township - Vilas County, Wisconsin). One ordinance (Putman Township - Livingston County) specified that 30 feet of frontage shall be provided for each non-riparian or back dwelling. Why can't Charlevoix Township borrow this concept and not attempt to reinvent the wheel?

Apply the 35-foot formula to the Water's Edge property. According to plans I've seen, the back 90 proposed units would each have approximately 6 feet of open space or park are for each back dwelling. You couldn't line up an average family shoulder to shoulder and have them stand inside a 6-foot stretch.

It would seem that the Water's Edge project then should either have a larger "open park area" on the waterfront to accommodate their proposed back lot dwellers of 90 units or cut down their units to fit into the open space they currently show on their site drawings (approximately 600 feet). This then would really address the issue.

My expertise is recreation. I have a degree, 18 years as a practioner in Charlevoix, many years as an educator, developing a professional recreation major here at Ferris State College. I also have an active license to sell real estate. The point is, there is expertise available and existing ordinances to develop proper local regulations for a sound zoning ordinance. We'll only get one chance to do it properly; I pray we do it right.

Good work, Denny

Dear Editor:

Dennis P. Heck is correct (letter to the editor, May 21, 1986). Get with it commission, your nitpicking is 180 degrees out of phase. The overfilled cans and dumpsters at our beautiful park and docks need attention, pick on them.

Ha! Hill, what is your problem with the beautiful plantings at Northwest Marine? Most people find the entire area attractive. Give the talented young entrepreneurs a chance.

Charlevoix belongs to all of us, including Dennis P. Heck and family. Dennis has contributed much to Charlevoix and like most of us is not interest in wasting (our) tax money via lawyers and court. The negative attitude by commission members can only prove to be counterproductive.

Dennis, don't buckle, you helped make Charlevoix Beautiful and we are with you.

Hospital opens new after hours clinic

The family's at the supper table but supper's still in the oven. In your hurry to feed the masses, you grab the hot dish without a potholder and sustain a nice little burn which starts changing colors and stings like the devil.

It needs attention but your doctor's office is closed and you don't think it's worth an expensive visit to the emergency room. What to do?

Charlevoix Area Hospital now has the answer. The hospital recently opened an After Hours Clinic in its Emergency Room. Clinic hours are 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Friday and 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

"Many people need physician care for minor illnesses and injuries at times when the doctors' offices are closed," said hospital administrator Richard Krueger. "We feel the After Hours Clinic provides a worthwhile community service for these situations. Also, people who work during the day sometimes find it difficult to get to a doctor's office during regular business hours. The Clinic will make good health care more conveniently available for them, too."

A visit to the After Hours Clinic costs $25 with a $5 charge if it is billed. This includes seeing the physician, medical advice, treatment and instructions. Additional services ordered by the physician such as laboratory tests and x-rays will be charged at the regular hospital rates.

"In the past, when someone came to the Emergency Room with a problem that turned out not to be an emergency, their insurance would not cover the more expensive ER bill," said Krueger. "Now someone with a non-emergency problem can obtain help during clinic hours at about the cost of a doctor's office visit."

Physician staffing of the clinic is by 12 members of the hospital's medical staff who have contracted with the hospital to provide the service. In addition to the After Hours Clinic, staff physicians are also providing 24-hour coverage of the Emergency Room. Previously, the ER physician coverage was on an on-call basis. Now there will be a doctor on duty in the ER 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

Merle Plagge, M.D., Director of Emergency Medical Services, explained how the Clinic and Emergency Room will operate:

"When a patient thinks he has a problem that can be handled by the Clinic, all he has to do is report to the hospital's Admitting Desk to register. No appointment is necessary. In most cases, it will be clear that the problem is not an emergency but if there is some question, the determination will be made by the attending physician. If the physician decides that the patient does have an emergency, it will be handled and billed as such."

Some of the minor medical problems the After Hours Clinic is equipped to handle include scratches, bruises, sprains, beadaches, allergies, rashes, sinus trouble, fever, abdominal pain, nosebleed, sports injuries, foreign objects in eyes, nose or ears, coughs and colds, flu, sore throat bronchitis, upset stomach and urinary tract infections.

Clinic patients will be referred to their personal physician for follow-up care if necessary. If they do not have a personal physician, arrangements will be made by the attending physician to provide the appropriate follow-up care.

Payment for clinic visits can be made by cash, check, Mastercard or Visa.

"We feel this service will not only benefit the year-round residents of the area, but also the seasonal visitors who won't want to let a minor illness or accident spoil their vacation," said Krueger. "In that respect, we look at the service as an important complement to the growing hospitality and tourism industry of this region.

More information on the After Hours Clinic can be obtained by calling 547-4024.

Property taxes: here is how the county calculates them

by PEG OHLE

Your local assessor may come around this summer to look at your house, your outbuildings, and your land. What he writes down as a result of the inspection will serve as a basis for your property taxes next year.

But there are many steps in between your assessor's visit and your receipt of a tax bill. Here is what happens, as explained by County Equalization Director Joan Blanchard:

The assessor determines the size of your house. The first time he assesses it, he measures its outside walls. He determines the number and types of rooms, the types of materials used in construction, and other pertinent facts. He does the same for outbuildings and notes the type of groundcover on the land (forest, grass, water, etc.).

With this information, the assessor goes to his office to calculate what your house, your outbuildings, and your land is worth.

To do this, he uses a manual prepared by the State Tax Commission which contains cost schedules showing what buildings are worth, and starts with a base model house worth a specific dollar figure.

He compares your house with that model, adding to the worth of your house on the basis of what you have that is not in the model, things like two bathrooms or a fireplace. On the other hand, if your house does not have everything that is in the model, those deficiences are deducted from the worth of your house.

Outbuildings are assessed in the same way. There are schedules and models for barns, garages, pole buildings, and other types of outbuildings.

The value of land is determined by sales in your area, with due attention being paid to whether it is lake frontage, view property, farmland, swampy area, or any of a number of other land designations.

The computations made by your assessor provide the basis for your assessment, which should be one-half of the true cash value of your property. The figure will be put on your city or township assessment roll as the assessed value of your property as of December 31, 1986. If there is any change from last year in your assessed valuation, the assessor will notify you of the change prior to the meeting of your local Board of Review next March.

The Board of Review (made up of local citizens, a committee of your peers), goes over the entire township or city assessment roll and makes any changes it believes are desirable. Meetings of the Board of Review provide you with an opportunity to learn how your assessment is arrived at and to compare it with your neighbors' assessments. The Board of Review is the last chance for you to have your assessment changed if you think it is unfair.

When your Board of Review completes its work, the assessment roll (with your name on it) is sent to the County Equalization Department for an audit to determine if your assessor has assessed the roll at 50 percent of actual cash value. The Equalization Department is able to make this audit because, throughout the year, it has been doing property value studies through a sampling of sales figures and actual appraisals.

The studies are broken down into 79 classifications, including 14 units of agricultural property, 18 units of commercial property, 16 units of industrial property, 18 units of residential property, and 18 units of timber cutover. Your own property will fall into one of these classifications, depending on where and how you live and/or do business.

If your assessor's total roll is not within the range of figures determined by the Equalization Department through its studies, the County Board of Commissioners will add to or deduct from the total classification (not individual assessment) where the discrepancy lies. These figures, along with the figures that are not changed, become County Equalization.

But we are not through yet. The County Equalization Department figures, as well as your assessor's figures, are sent to Lansing. During the year, the state has also been making studies of county properties in order to project the total value of the county by classification—residential, agricultural, commercial, industrial, and timber cut-over. The state's figures and the county's figures must now be reconciled. The county's figures must be within one percent of the state's projection. If they are not, the state will add to or deduct from a classification total to bring it into line (factoring, it is called). The end result is State Equalization, which provides the figure on which your 1987 taxes are ultimately based.

If your tax bill shows a factor of 1, the assessor's figures were not changed, but if you have a factor of, say, 1.06, the assessor's figures were raised by eight one-hundredths.

Now comes the levying of taxes. The County Equalization Department maintains a computerized tax roll. It includes your name, address, and description of your property. It is brought up to date with this year's assessment and factor. By multiplying your assessment by the factor, your State Equalized Value is determined, as noted above.

But how will your tax bill be figured? This year is the last year of a four-year period for which County residents voted to allocate 15 mills to the various taxing units. If you live outside the cities of Charlevoix, Boyne City, and East Jordan, you will pay a tax of 15 mills ($15 for every $1,000 in equalized valuation), distributed as follows: 4.7 mills for county government, 1 mill for township government, 2 mill for the Intermediate School District, and 9.1 mills for your local school district.

In addition, you will pay for any extra millage voted by the county (as for the bus system), your township, the Intermediate School District, or your local school district. It is the latter voted school millage that adds the most to tax bills. In 1985, the Charlevoix School District total millage (including the 9.1 mills allocated by the county) was 27.41 mills.

If you live in the cities of Charlevoix, Boyne City, and East Jordan, you will not pay the 1 mill for township operation but instead will pay the millage your city determines is needed for fiscal operation. In 1985, Charlevoix city residents paid 13.60 mills for city operation.

As noted above, the County Equalization Department makes the calculations to determine what your tax bill will be. After checking the figures to be sure they are correct, each township and city tax roll is returned to the local unit of government, along with the tax bills for the township or city treasurer to mail out for collection. It is the end of the line for assessing, equalizing, and taxing.

It is now up to you to pay your taxes.

Last year, the average mill rate in Charlevoix County was 42.6466, which amounted to taxes of $852.93 on property with a state equalized value of $20,000.

Charlevoix mourns:

"A world-class fellow;" Jeff Drenth dead at 25

Charlevoix was in a state of shock and mourning early this week as it learned of the death of Jeff Drenth, 25, of the most outstanding runners ever produced by Charlevoix High School.

Drenth died Monday in Eugene, Ore. where he was training to qualify for the 1988 Olympics. By most accounts, Drenth collapsed and died after a workout and massage at Athletics West, the running club for which he competed.

Charlevoix residents who knew and worked with the young runner paid tribute this week not only to his athletic ability, but to his personal qualities as well.

"A world class fellow," was the way his former high school track coach, Hal Evans, described him. "He was a real helpful kid who was more like an assistant coach than a student," Evans said of his years at Charlevoix High School. "He was one of the best."

Drenth was the son of Robert and Maxine Drenth of Charlevoix and bother to Walter, Mark and Douglas.

An autopsy performed Monday did not reveal the cause of death, according to Bob Sevene of Athletics West, Drenth's most recent coach. Drenth's heart was larger than normal, Sevene said, but that's not unusual for an athlete of his caliber. He added that Drenth had an arrhythmia — an alleration of the heartbeat that affects other world-class runners.

The autopsy revealed Drenth died instantly as no fluid was found in his lungs, said Sevene, who unsuccessfully performed cardiopulmonary resuscitation on Drenth.

Jeff Drenth

"I thing it goes a little bit deeper than Jeff's athletic abilities," Sevene said of the young man. "He just gives and gives: It's unexplainable. I don't know why good people have to go. He's a class act."

Pete Spiele, Drenth's former cross-country coach at Charlevoix said his legacy would last. "He was a real inspiration to all the teams that followed him at Charlevoix," Spiele said.

Drenth received four letters in cross country and three in track at Charlevoix. Like his older brother Walt, he went on to run for Central Michigan University.

At CMU in both his junior and senior years, Drenth was the individual Mid-American Conference champion in cross country in 1982 and 1983. He shattered the MAC course record in '83 and also qualified for the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) cross-country finals twice.

He was a two-time All-American in cross-country.

Drenth also specialized in the 10,000-meter run in track.

While finishing his studies at CMU, Drenth qualified for the World Cross Country Championships as a member of the U.S. team. He qualified for the team again in 1985 and 1986.

After a heartbreaking elimination in the 1984 Olympic trials in track, Drenth set his sights on the '88 games. He hoped to advancing to the 10K finals of the '88 trials.

"Jeff was totally dedicated to his running, and he overcame a lot of physical problems to achieve what he's done," said Don Sazima, Drenth's running coach at Central Michigan University in 1979-83. "He was the finest distance runner ever to come out of Central."

"In my career, he was a big influence," said Bill Taylor, a longtime friend of Drenth and his family. "He didn't accept defeat... he could always get better. He instilled that in me and a lot of other guys. Personally, I'm going to miss him a great deal."

Teacher pleads no contest to criminal sex charges

CHEBOYGAN – Jack Gebott Jr., 44, a teacher at St. Mary's School and former director of the Mt. McSauba Day Camp pleaded no contest to two counts of fourth degree criminal sexual conduct before Cheboygan County Circuit Court Judge Robert C. Livo on Monday.

A plea of no contest is like a guilty plea in that a conviction may be entered on the defendant's record.

In exchange for the pleas, Charlevoix County Prosecutor Kraag Liberman agreed not to bring other charges against Gebott stemming from the investigation.

The charges against Gebott state that from September 1984 through June 1985, he had sexual contact with a boy in the classroom at St. Mary's School; and that from July through August 1985 Gebott had sexual contact with a second boy at Mt. McSauba Day Camp, a summer camp owned by the City of Charlevoix.

Gebott, a resident of Charlevoix, taught second and third graders at St. Mary's School in Charlevoix. In April his contract was suspended indefinitely for a leave of absence, according to school administrator Father Casey Zawacki.

Gebott had been director of the Mt. McSauba Day Camp since it was established 10 years ago. A new director was recently hired to run the day camp for the coming season.

The cases were filed in Charlevoix County Circuit Court, but Circuit Judge Richard M. Tajtas ...

Council approves grants for waterfront, historic survey

by DOUG TRUAX

City Council agreed Monday to match a $25,000 Coastal Zone Management Grant from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources for improvements in the walkways and parks boardering Pine River channel and Round Lake. The city's $25,000 share of the $50,000 project will be made of the $9,000 from services and donations and $16,000 in Downtown Development Authority (DDA) funds.

Council also approved $6,000 in matching funds for a survey of Charlevoix's historic buildings. Charlevoix's contribution would be matched by $6,000 from the U.S. Department of State. The survey would be a step toward designating a historic district in the city.

THE BUDGET for the Coastal Zone Management grant, which has already received authorization from the DNR, includes $30,000 of improvements to Hoffman Park on the Pine River channel and to lighting in East Park.

The budget also includes two items council debated at some length Monday – the design of new restrooms ($5,000) and the design and construction of an interpretative historical display.

DDA called for the substitution of a walkway under the south side of the Memorial Bridge in place of restrooms planned for north of Burn-sides store as shown on the original DDA budget. City Planner Gerry Harsch said the restrooms at that location did not meet with DNR approval because they were too far from the waterfront.

The interpretive display budget item called for the building to be built at the end of Clinton Street near Round Lake.

Councilman Earl Muma strenuously objected to the proposed site for the interpretative building. "We are not going to have buildings built in East Park," he said. "The people in this town don't want them."

He and other councilmen also questioned the priority of building a walkway on the south channel. Restrooms, they said, were of higher importance and the city had already approved $25,000 for the construction of new boaters' restrooms behind the bandshell. Another $10,000 had been given from private sources.

After considerable discussion on the location of new restrooms, it was decided to leave the $5,000 for design of restrooms in the budget but to delete any specific site.

Similarly, council let stand the construction of an interpretative center, but omitted the Clinton Street site.

Irwin barnstorms through state to open re-election campaign

by DOUG TRUAX

State Sen. Mitch Irwin flew into Charlevoix on Friday to announce his re-election campaign for a third term in the Michigan Senate.

He pledged to continue to work on the promotion of tourism and the protection of water resources if re-elected.

The Charlevoix stop was part of a one-day, 11-stop "barnstorming" flight the incumbent senator conducted throughout northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula.

Greeted in Charlevoix by a sparse crowd, Irwin handed out press releases and answered this reporter's questions before he flew on to his next stop at Pellston.

The campaign barnstormer began at 6:45 a.m. in Gaylord at the Otsego County Airport and ended after 2 p.m. in Sault Ste. Marie.

In between, Irwin made stops in Bellaire, Traverse City, Charlevoix, Pellston, Cheboygan, St. Ignace, Manistique, Escanaba and Newberry.

Irwin said he would "continue in the area of tourism and recreation promotion." In the last decade, he said, the state relied too heavily on the automobile industry. If re-elected, he promised to help Gov. James Blanchard "fine-tune" his three priorities for the state: automobiles, tourism and forestry.

Irwin said he would also work to implement the second and third steps in the Water Resource Protection Act which will deal with inland lakes and streams and groundwater.

Strict environmental enforcement, he said, must be balanced with economic development. "Economic growth and environmental protection are mutually dependent on each other," Irwin added. He pointed to the LexaMar plant in Boyne City as an example.

"Business and industry come here because we have a strong commitment to maintaining the quality of life."

Irwin also predicted success for the petition drive he is undertaking with the Michigan United Conservation Clubs to get wine coolers included in the Michigan "Bottle Bill." He said he was "very disappointed" with the legislature for not acting on the wine cooler issue.

The state senator said he was opposed to sobriety check lanes. "I'm for getting drunk drivers off the road," he said, "but the check lanes smack of the gestoposim of Nazi Germany."

Irwin's prepared statement said, "My priorities will continue to emphasize the creation of more jobs, improved education, reform of the property tax system, quality health care, enhanced quality of life for our elderly, and environmental clean-up and conservation."

Irwin is the author of the Great Lakes Conservation Act, Older Michiganians Act, Community Tourism Marketing Act and Medicare Insurance Reform Act.

Republican presidential race stirs interest in delegate posts

by PEG OHLE

Vice-President George Bush, evangelist Pat Robertson, and U. S. Rep. Jack Kemp put on the beat and Charlevoix County Republicans, along with Republicans throughout the state, signed up for Precinct Delegate posts in numbers four times greater than those of two years ago.

Just about every person who has ever attended a Republican meeting received dozens of phone calls and baskets of mail extolling the virtues of one candidate or another and expressing the hope the listener would file for Precinct Delegate and/or support the caller's candidate.

While the campaigns of Messrs. Bush, Robertson, and Kemp were successful to a certain point, they did not "sell" everybody. There are 42 Republican Precinct Delegate jobs in Charlevoix County, but only 23 people filed to fill them. They are:

Ronald R. Smith, Ronald G. Geer, Phyllis R. Haggard, and John E. Haggard of Charlevoix Township; William D. Weber and Donald L. Hafford of Hayes Township; Bruce Lamphar of Norwood Township; Lyle Wayne Harper, William R. Sanderson, Dorothy G. Sanderson, Kenneth Scott Laurie, and Pamela Bowers Laurie of Eveline Township; William H. Ohle and Margaret A. Ohle of Bay Township; Arthur K. House and Casimir Tolson of Boyne City; Galen W. Seiler of East Jordan; and Janice Deokrow, Barbara Elliott, and Ellen D. Laurie of Melrose Township.

Most of the petitions for Precinct Delegate filed in Charlevoix County contained a place for the candidate to indicate whether he or she was committed to any announced Republican presidential candidate or whether he or she was "uncommitted".

It was not necessary to fill in this information, and very few candidates did, according to Deputy County Clerk Janis Williams, who processed the petitions. Therefore, it was not possible, to learn who, if anyone, won the popularity vote in Charlevoix County. However, reports statewide indicated that it was Bush, Robertson, and Kemp, in that order.

Persons interested in Precinct Delegate positions who did not file a petition for the primary election may be elected in his precinct by a write-in campaign. If there are still vacant Precinct Delegate seats, the County Convention may appoint interested persons to the seats.

Precinct Delegates are at the bottom (or the top) of the political process. The Precinct Delegate Handbook published by the Michigan Republican Party describes the job as follows:

"As a Precinct Delegate, you are your neighborhood's, elected representative in the Republican Party. The party's success in different elections is directly related to the Precinct Delegate's effectiveness in performing their roles and functions at the local level. A close election is frequently determined at the precinct level in terms of which party actually gets its supporters out to vote".

Persons elected Republican Precinct Delegates in the August primary (each precinct is allotted a certain number of delegates based on population) will be required to attend several County Conventions during their two-year terms.

On August 13, 1986, they will meet at the Charlevoix County Convention to select delegates and alternates to the State Convention.

On August 22-23, 1986, the State Convention will be held to select the Republican Party's nominees for Lt. Governor, Attorney General, Secretary of State, Supreme Court, State Board of Education, and University posts.

qualified himself from hearing the cases because he knows some of the parties involved, according to court records.

The cases were assigned to Livo who arraigned Gebott on Monday. The judge accepted Gebott's no contest pleas and ruled that Gebott did have sexual contact with the boys by using force or coercion, for the purpose of sexual gratification.

Fourth degree criminal sexual conduct, sexual contact, is considered a high court misdemeanor punishable by up to two years in prison or a $500 fine.

The two-count warrant was authorized in early May by Lieberman. Gebott has remained free on personal recognizance bond. Bond was continued Monday by Livo, pending sentencing on the charges. No date has been set for sentencing.

The case was suppressed at the district court level under Michigan law which allows suppression of detail in sexual assault cases at the request of the accused, the alleged victim or either of their lawyers.

The law allows the information to remain sealed until arraignment of the accused in circuit court, the charges are dismissed or the case is otherwise concluded.

The court files were first made public Monday.

In November, 1986, within 20 days following the general election, Precinct Delegates will meet at a County Convention to select the County Executive Committee.

In January or February, 1987, Precinct Delegates will meet at a County Convention to select delegates and alternates to the State Convention.

In February, 1987, the State Convention will be held to select the State Chairman, Vice Chairs, State Committee Members, and District Committee members.

In early 1988, the State Convention will be held to select delegates and alternates to the Republican National Convention and to elect the Republican National Committeeman and Committeewoman who will represent Michigan Republicans on the Republican National Committee for the next four years.

While Charlevoix County is predominantly Republican, there is a small but well organized Democrat party organization. Five members of the Democrat party filed petitions for Democrat Precinct Delegate last week. They are:

Robert Morgridge and James Novotny of Charlevoix, Ruth Ann Crawford of South Arm Township, Lance R. Johnson of Boyne City, and Phyllis Marchinkewicz of Boyne Falls.

Other Democrat Precinct Delegates will be elected or appointed to fill vacancies and they will all participate in local conventions and other activities in much the same manner as Republican Precinct Delegates.

Latchkey program initiated

by DOUG TRUAX

Webster's dictionary says the term "latchkey child" first came into use in 1944 to describe a young child of working parents who must spend part of the day at home unsupervised.

But the term has become common only recently, the result of a flood of single parents and working couples unable to be home when their children return from school.

In Charlevoix the number of latchkey children is said to be very high. Next fall, however, there will be an alternative for parents who don't want to leave their child alone or who cannot afford a babysitter.

Called "The Sunshine Club," the new program has been organized by members of the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix and will be available to all members of the school district.

The program will be limited to 35 children during its first year of operation. It will be in session every day after school from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m., and have exactly the same schedule as the public schools.

The Sunshine Club will be housed in the Community Reformed Church and will be under the direction of a paid staff person, plus three volunteers each day.

Cost of the latchkey program is $5 a week or $1.50 per day. Parents must preregister their children for the program, organizers say. They emphasize it is not a drop in center. Parents can sign up for from one to five days per week.

The club is in the process of hiring a director and will be accepting applications shortly after one is hired, probably by mid-July.

The program will be under the direction of an eight-member board which includes: Jan Boss, Pat Carland, Ron Williams, Ron Moore, Garrett Miller, Dianne Coolman, Rev. Philip Schairbaum and the new director.

Organizers anticipate that the demand will be greater than the available positions. The target population, they say, is lower income families without other means of child care available.

The bylaws of the program state: "The Sunshine Club is to provide a low cost, safe, healthy, supervised child care service after school for children of working parent(s) households; to provide helpful, positive adult relationships with the children, and provide an open, accepting atmosphere where Christ's love is communicated."

The latchkey program will be unstructured with some controlled television watching, facilities for practicing piano and doing homework, games and tutoring. There will be a healthy snack each day. Parents who want more structure can request it.

Inquiries concerning the program should be directed to Jan Boss at the Community Reformed Church, 547-5422.

Shearing time

Matchetts collect spring harvest of wool

AUDREY DIEBEL COLLINS

Tim Matchett doesn't weigh as much by far as the 200 pound ewes he methodically wrestles to the ground every ten minutes or so during sheep-shearing season. This year, he corralled and controlled 125 of the nervous, bawling creatures, who behaved as unpredictably as any two-year-old boy being dragged to the barber for his first haircut.

Matchett, a third-generation farmer on family holdings off Barnard Road south of Charlevoix, puts other chores aside for two days each spring to harvest his flock's wool crop. The job requires assistance of his father, Sandy, and his wife of two years, Linda, and the services of an itinerant shearer.

Young Matchett says he has done some shearing himself, but does not relish the backbreaking work of hunching over rambunctious sheep all day long.

Ironically, the itinerant shearer they've hired for the past decade is a man now 70 years old, who sheared his first sheep professionally 54 years ago, when he was 16 years old and the going rate was 10 cents per head. George Cumper of Atlanta makes the task of clipping off the 10-pound fleeces look easy, which marks him unmistakably as a seasoned veteran.

Although the Matchett's raise sheep primarily as a meat operation, collecting the coats of the breed stock lends a pleasant change of pace to the year's routine.

George Cumper (above) clips the fleece of a ewe. Linda Matchett (above left) puts on identifying number as husband, Tim, wrestles a sheep into position.

Wine cooler deposit needed

Occasionally a piece of legislation comes along that really works, that makes an immediate, positive change in our lives.

Such a piece of legislation was the Michigan "Bottle Bill" which in 1976 was enacted into law by a vote of the people. Legislators had cowered when the law was proposed and industry lobbyists predicted doom and ruination.

No such fate, of course, befell the state. What did happen was that Michigan almost immediately became a cleaner place, a much cleaner place.

Anyone who spends time in the outdoors or who has a vested interest in tourism and the promotion of Michigan was keenly aware of the change.

Travelers to other states which did not have bottle bills noted how littered they were compared to Michigan.

One of the side benefits of the bill was that Michigan appeared cleaner of all sorts of trash. People apparently got in the habit of not throwing things away along the roadside, whether it was bottles or paper wrappers.

The only major threat to our clean environment became the bottles dumped by inconsiderate neighbors from states to the south of us or, recently, from the growing popularity of wine coolers.

Wine coolers were not included in the original legislation simply because they didn't exist as a mass prodoct. Times have changed, however, and the wine coolers for which no deposit is charged are showing up in our streams and along our roads in alarming numbers.

The Michigan United Conservation Clubs, which launched the original bottle bill drive, has once again taken the lead. They are in the process of organizing a petition drive to force a vote on wine cooler deposits.

This action is necessary since the Michigan Legislature's Joint Administrative Rules Committee, in an amazing show of poor political judgement, failed to act on the issue.

It remains, once again, for the people to take charge. Support the wine cooler petition drive. Better yet, get some petitions and circulate them among your friends. We have only until July 7 to submit the names of 243,201 Michigan voters to qualify the issue for the November ballot.

If you need further information, contact the MUCC, P.O. Box 30235, Lansing MI 48909, 517-371-1041.

Did Michigan derive any benefit by hosting the Society of American Travel Writers last fall?

Probably so, if a two-page spread on Michigan in the San Juan (Puerto Rico) Star published Oct. 20, 1985, is any indication.

Louis Rasmussen of Petoskey supplied me with a copy. And aside from a description of a monumental electrical storm at Flint, writer Freck Hart's account of his visit to the Water Wonderland was 100 percent favorable.

He makes Michigan sound so good I'd like to visit there sometime.

It's fun to read an outsider's opinion of your home state and some of Hart's observations were downright surprising.

"Drivers in Michigan are considerate," Hart wrote. He said when he encountered flood waters over M-13 after leaving Flint, "drivers patiently pulled to a stop and let cars on the deep side bypass in the wrong lane."

Maybe we are considerate; I just never gave it much thought.

In Northern Michigan, Hart's first stop was Traverse City where he and his colleagues were given a warm welcome by Gov. James Blanchard and treated to the attractions of the Cherry Capital, including a trip to Interlochen. "I got thrill chills when (student) Sarah Okamoto starred in piano solo."

Hart was intrigued by the variety and excellence of the food, wines and candies available. During a bus trip to Sleeping Bear Dunes, Hart tells about "demolishing" a succulent roast beef sandwich and "inhaling the chocolates for which Michigan is famous." Both were included in his box lunch.

APPARENTLY Hart's group didn't linger long in Charlevoix. He mentions it merely as a jumping-off place for a boat ride to Harbor Springs, where he was entranced by the crab special at the New York Restaurant, the "Newport type" cottages and the Victorian settlement at Harbor Pointe.

"A walking tour of Petoskey, which has a Gaslight District crammed with posh haute couture boutiques, became our first opportunity for shooting our shekels," Hart wrote. "I looked longingly at the expensive clothing shops that the winter in the sunshine states but did my buying at those featuring Michigan crafts."

He had high praise for American Spoon Foods on Lake Street.

AFTER PETOSKEY, Hart headed for Mackinaw City, Big Mac, St. Ignace and, of course, overnight quarters at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island.

"Mine were the Thomas Jefferson suite, an enormous room furnished with fine antiques. The pineapple bed was huge, and I later discovered that I literally had to climb in. To get out, I slid down."

Hart seemed singularly impressed by everything he saw and did. So if Northern Michigan is inundated by visitors from Puerto Rico this summer, you'll know why.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifeck
Executive Director

Last fall several Charlevoix merchants expressed concern over clothes racks on the city sidewalks long before and after the traditional sidewalk sales days. Upon investigation of this matter, it was discovered that technically the State Department of Highways has jurisdiction over just what is allowed on U.S. 31.

Regardless, whether it is Bridge Street or any street in Charlevoix, and whether it is clothes, lawnmowers or tables, we at the Chamber, at the request of Mayor Hill, want to know what you think.

Please contact the Chamber with your opinions so we can tell the City Council how you feel.

For those of you who received a survey in the mail, the success of failure of the Chamber sponsored North Central Michigan College Retail Market Survey depends on you. Please take the time to read it, and thoughtfully fill it out. Your prompt return of the survey in the self-addressed stamped envelope will be appreciated.

'Round town

Good time for nostolgia buffs

by Edith Gilbert

WHAT A NICE SURPRISE, while strolling south on Bridge Street, to discover a stunning new art gallery. We almost missed it because the view of Round Lake on the left competes mightily with the attractive show windows on the righ.

Nancy and Chuck Koucky (produced Koo-ske) have taken over the entire high ceilinged shop where Bergeon's store used to be. They display not only their own weavings and ceramics, but also Sue Bolts' colorful tiles, vases etc. and Russ Bolts' watercolors.

Marion Makay's dynamic oils show up well against the charcoal background of the walls. Robert Fritz displays adorable glass birds that light up, and Lori Bolt has stitched some wonderful throw pillows that would enhance any condominium.

There's lots more – including the awesome sculpture of Walter Midener, both in wood and ceramic. His wife, Peggy, a prominent artist in her own name, will have her show later this summer of her intriguing, decorative boxes.

WATCH FOR the formal opening on Friday, June 27, when the Koucky Gallery will join forces with the new Magpie ice cream parlor next door and soon to be opened Rocking Horse toy store (where Sears used to be) and the Stained Glass Cabinet Co., for a block party bash. I can hardly wait...

"WE DON'T HAVE any forms!" That's the way I was greeted in California when I tried to mail a heavy box of clothing back to Charlevoix. I had just entered the United Parcel Service Center, relieved to unload my 25 lb. package, when I was told to return again after 4 o'clock.

Forget it!

This would never happen in Charlevoix! Not if you take your packages to Accents by Burlew Enterprises on Bridge Street on top of the hill. Paul and Katie Burlew are a most obliging couple. Just ask anybody.

Not only will they box and mail packages for you UPS, but they will gift wrap them for you! They will also hold them for you to send on a future date if you ask them to. They will even write a little note saying they hope you had a nice trip and that everything arrived safely.

For some of their regular customers, they keep a record of names and addresses as a convenience; "Here's Jennifer's tennis racket. Please send it to her address in Ann Arbor, and here's Jim's fishing pole. Mail that to his Chicago address, please."

NOSTALGIA BUFFS will be delighted to hear what's going on between the corner of Bridge Street and the west end of Dixon Ave. For those who like to turn back the clock, two former Baker Cottages that once were run as guest cottages by Martha Baker (owner and superb manager of the renowned Beach Hotel) are open this summer for guests once more.

Thank heaven no one tore down the wrap-around porches, where today's blue jeaned guests can sit on old wicker chairs and look at either Round Lake or Lake Charlevoix with the same delight as guests of at the turn of the century.

THE BRIDGE STREET INN, built in 1895, has a lot of personality. Penny and Doug Shaw make you feel as if you were visiting favorite cousins. They serve an imaginative breakfast among their personal collection of antiques. Two large black dogs wag their friendly tails as you come and go.

Both Doug and Penny are also knowledgeable about food and wines, and they have propelled their interest into a professional catering service. A well-thought-out menu and prices are available for the asking, which should be good news to our summer visitors - or at least to those of us who are swamped with summer visitors!

THE CHARLEVOIX COUNTRY INN down the street is being painted and wallpapered from floor to ceiling. There are eight guest rooms, which share baths, and two spacious apartments. A charming breakfast room on the second floor is available to all the guests for continental breakfast. I feel Martha Baker would be pleased to know that the old-fashioned spirit of hospitality is alive and well in her former neck of the woods.

(For this generation's information, the aforementioned wooded Beach Hotel--all seven stories on the lake side, with a dining room that seated 400--stood where the LaCroft Condominium now stands. There was no parking problem in those days, because everyone arrived by train.)

AN OPEN LETTER TO A TEENAGER

Juvenile Judge Phillip Gilliam, of Denver gives us this Open Letter to a Teenager, author unknown.

"We hear teenagers complain, 'What can we do, where can we go?' The answer is: Go home. Paint the woodwork, rake the leaves, mow the lawn, sweep the walk, wash the car, scrub some floors, help the minister, the Red Cross, the Salvation Army, visit the sick, the poor, study your lessons. And when you're through, if you are not too tired, read a book.

"Your parents do not owe you entertainment. Your city doesn't owe you a recreation center. The world doesn't owe you a living. You owe it your time and energy and your talent, so that no one will be at war or in proerty of sick or lonely again.

"You're supposed to be mature enough to accept some of the responsibilities your parents have carried for years. They have nursed, protected, excused and tolerated you. They have denied themselves comforts so that you could have luxuries. This they have done gladly, for you are their greatest treasure. Teenagers, grow up and go home.

"I would urge each of you to search your heart, be sure you know Jesus Christ in personal salvation, make the goal of your life to live for Him, to know His good, acceptable and perfect will – then the problems you are faced with and the temptations Satan puts in your path will dissolve away in the light of His glory and grace. I want you to know, I believe in you, I pray for you daily that you will be strong in Christ in this hour when the devil has so many teenagers on his team."

Engagements

Laura Baldwin

Baldwin - Scott

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Baldwin of Charlevoix announce the engagement of their daughter, Laura Ann Baldwin, to David Scott Stebe. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stebe, Jr., also of Charlevoix.

The bride-elect graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1981 and attended Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City, from which she received an associate's degree in business. She is presently employed by Tom's Cafe and Tom's Mom's Cookies, Inc., as a manager.

Her fiance graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1983 and is now serving in the United States Navy, stationed at Great Lakes, Illinois.

The wedding will take place October 11 at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix.

Drug store changes hands

The drug store at Captain's Corners has new owners and a new name.

Formerly Crown Drug Center, it is now a Rite Aid drug store, one of a chain of 1,400 stores located in 21 states.

Phil Petrilli, pharmacy district supervisor for Rite Aid, explained to the Courier that its stores are divided into two sections: pharmacy and front end. The pharmacy at Captain's Corners will operate much the same as it has in the past, with Jack Dean remaining as pharmacist.

However, there will be a new pharmacy manager when Karen Hines moves into town.

The front end of the store will feature not only usual drug store items but convenience items such as snack foods, picnic supplies, beer and wine and soft drinks, paper backs and magazines, beauty aids, cosmetics, candy, small electrical appliances and radios, gift wraps, office supplies, and film and film developing.

Gospel concert on Sunday

Dale and Karen Salter, ministers of the Gospel, will appear at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church on Sunday, June 8, at 6 p.m.

Dale is described as an "ex-biker who rode with 'Satan's Escorts'", and Karen as a girl who suffered life's ups and down during her teen years.

"Though music is an essential part of their ministry, their worship in praise and sharing will warm your hearts and strengthen you in your personal walk with the Lord Jesus", the couple's promotional folder reads.

New cookie franchise uses local artists' work

by DOUG TRUAX

Until recently Jim and Pam Holmes never baked a cookie in our lives." Now they can turn out some 20,000 a day.

The Holmeses are new franchise owners of Tom's Mom's Chocolate Chunk cookies in Mackinaw City which opened Memorial Day. They are also looking at franchises on Mackinac Island and in Boyne City.

The Holmes will produce the many varieties of Tom's Mom's cookies using the receipe developed by originator, Tom Kneeland.

They are also using another trademark associated with the Charlevoix cookie store – the hand-painted ceramic tiles done by artists Russ and Sue Bolt and Meredith Krell.

When Kneeland redecorated his store in 1984, he turned to the Bolts and Krell. They came up with 57 ceramic tile paintings that depict Charlevoix and its environs – everything from the old swinging railroad bridge to the fish tugs to Venetian fireworks.

The colorful tiles, set in at eye level in the white tile interior, were a big success and Kneeland and his franchise backers are hoping to use the Bolt tiles in most, if not all, of their future Tom's Mom's stores.

People come into the Charlevoix store just to look at the tiles," Kneeland says.

Tom's Mom's cookies went national in late 1985 when Kneeland and a variety of investors formed a franchise business for the famous cookies which have attracted the attention of everyone from President Reagan and People magazine.

Stores are also planned or open in Palm Beach and Melbourne, Fla., Ann Arbor, Traverse City, Washington D.C., and a variety of other locations.

For the Mackinaw City store the artists designed 12 scenes which capture the spirit of the Straits of Mackinac area. The centerpiece of the tile work for the new Tom's Mom's store is a three-foot long tile painting of the Mackinac Bridge. Other scenes include the "Welcome," Round Island, the Mackinac Island fort, Chief Pontiac, a post card, the famous cookie itself, and the new owners.

The colorful tiles are becoming something of a specialty for the Bolts and Krell, although they are all busy throughout the year with paintings, watercolors, ceramics and a variety of other projects.

They are currently at work on a large tile display for the new Puff's Kitchen and Bathroom Center in Petoskey. The project includes a 17-foot long backsplash with 163 tiles and a cooking island counter top with another 104 tiles.

The scenes depict the northern Michigan outdoors, including woodlands with morels and wildflowers.

Russ designs the layout of the tiles to fit the planned installation. Sue and Meredith then paint on the glaze, each tile requires three coats to get the proper color intensity. Russ then puts on two coats of a transparent overglaze and cleans the tile edges so they fit together precisely.

The tile used for the painting is made in England by the oldest continuously operating tile company in the world.

Jim and Pam Holmes review the tiles for their new store with Tom Kneeland (center).

Preparing a new project for Puff's are artists (from left) Sue Bolt, Meredith Krell and Russ Bolt.

The one on the left will finish high school before the one on the right.

Don't take chances with your future. It's the only one you've got.

Yachting Notes

The Charlevoix Yacht Club concluded the second race of its Spring Series Wednesday, May 28, 1986 under light winds and a course shortened to 6.8 miles.

In the JAM fleet, Mike Keem's Canusa took honors, while Cheemaun and Maureen followed.

In the 1st Spinnaker fleet (handicap 0-150), Charlie Brown led Gotcha, Plastic Fantastic, Columbine, Traveler, Flying Machine, Miss Piggy, Tigger and Mint Julip.

In the 150-200 fleet, Wing Nut took the blue fly followed by Brass Tacks and Flash. In the slower spinnaker fleet, Steve Andreae's Spectre took a strong first followed 25 seconds later by Blasen III, then Cygnus and Tircless in the night's only bowsprit battle.

The above results were computed prior to protest adjudication and do not include the numerous unregistered boats which were present on the course. Those racers, whose fees are unpaid, will be "unscored."

Until next Wednesday, watching the western skies,

Council oks two grants

MEMBERS OF THE Charlevoix Historical Society and the DDA urged council to approve the historic survey, noting that once a historic district was established property owners would qualify for a tax credit worth 25 percent of the costs of renovating certain buildings within the district.

Jim Mabee of the DDA told council that the city's "out of pocket" expenses would be only $2,760 for the project. The additional costs of the survey would come from using the services of city employees and volunteers from the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Harsch would serve as project coordinator for the historic building survey. He said the survey would look at buildings built prior to World War II.

The project is scheduled for completion by fall 1987.

IN OTHER ACTION, council:

– Approved a basement storage area for the phase 3 shops at the Edgewater Inn. The basement was not shown on the original site plan.

– Gave permanent approval to the new DDA boundaries approved last month.

– Set the city millage rate for 1986 at 13.22 mills rather than the 13.6 mills originally planned. The reduction of .38 mills was due to favorable interest rates received during the recent bond sale.

– Presented citations to Mrs. Betty Lennox in memory of her father, Fred Willis, and to Mrs. Kit Carson for their assistance in the sale of property related to the construction of the Public Safety Building.

– Heard from Ken Staley regarding suggestions for the improvement of the Ferry Beach lauch ramp and parking lot.

MUCC sponsors wine cooler deposit petition

The Michigan United Conservation Clubs recently joined forces with Senator Mitch Irwin to solicit signatures to place the winecooler deposit question on the ballot.

"Winecoolers should be subject to the state's bottle deposit law," Irwin said. "In northern Michigan, the natural beauty and quality of life are very important to residents and tourists alike. We must do all we can to preserve that beauty, and winecoolers are as big a blight as pop or beer bottles and cans.

"The people of our state overwhelmingly approved the bottle law in 1976. Our roadsides have been clean for eight years, and we want them to stay that way.

"It's time to say yes to Michigan tourism, and yes to deposits on California winecoolers," the northern Michigan Senator added.

Thomas L. Washington, executive director of the MUCC, said he was pleased to join with Irwin in this unique joint effort to gather signatures.

"I appreciate Mitch's eagerness to help out in this important battle for a clean outdoors," he added. "We will make as many petitions available to him as he can distribute.

Irwin said he hoped that the time and effort required to mount a petition drive could have been avoided, but taking the battle to the people appears to be the best course.

"Having urged the Liquor Control Commission last November to bring winecoolers under the deposit law, I was deeply disappointed when the members of the Legislature's Joint Administrative Rules Committee recently struck down the commission's proposed rule," he added.

"When MUCC officials announced their petition drive to place the question before the voters, I immediately wanted to join their effort. It's important that the people be heard on this issue.

"The citizens of northern Michigan have been leaders in the fight to protect and conserve our environment, whether it be drinking water or groundwater, moose herds or roadsides. That's why I want to make it convenient for them to obtain petitions and signatures."

Irwin urged all concerned northern Michigan residents wanting to circulate petitions to call his office at 517-373-1725, or write him at: Senator Mitch Irwin, Capitol Building, Lansing, Michigan 48909.

While working on the petition drive, Irwin also said he would not give up efforts to seek passage of legislation to automatically require deposits on winecoolers.

Incumbents run for School Board

Two members of the Charlevoix School Board whose terms are expiring are the only candidates in the June 9 School Election to fill the vacancies.

Ardith Wieland is seeking her fourth four-year term, and Elaine Martin is seeking her second four-year term. She was first appointed to the Board in 1980 to fill a vacancy.

Mrs. Wieland, whose husband, Tom, is a dairy farmer, is a graduate of Boyne City High School and Michigan State University. She is a former school teacher and the mother of four children, three of whom have graduated from Charlevoix High School. Son Tim will be a high school senior next year.

In an interview some time ago, Mrs. Wieland said her goals as a School Board member were to "Improve the quality of education, increase efficiency, and establish careful hiring practices".

Mrs. Martin is a native of Charlevoix and a product of Charlevoix schools. She is a graduate of the Banking Institute in Marquette and has been in the banking business for 25 years.

Mrs. Martin is the mother of two boys, both of whom have graduated from Charlevoix High School. She also has a granddaughter who will enter Charlevoix schools before her next term expires.

Mrs. Martin believes that because she is in the financial field, she can be of special help to the School Board in money matters. "I want to help the School System maintain its high standards", she explained.

Voters face two millage issues in school election

by FRAN MARTIN

When the voters of the Charlevoix School District go to the polls Monday, June 9, to cast their ballots in the annual school election, they will be asked to approve the renewal of two millage issues for one year.

The first will be a request to extend the present millage of 15.25 mills for one year. This millage is used to underwrite the cost of operating the school. It underwrites the salaries of all school employees and the cost of textbooks, teaching supplies, maintenance, utilities, transportation and all other elements necessary to operate the Charlevoix Public School System, Vincent Olach, business manager, said.

The Charlevoix School District does not qualify for membership state aid. It receives what is known as categorical aid of approximately $6,550. Of this amount approximately $1,000 will be applied to the overall cost of transportation anad the remainder to special education and vocational education. The district also receives $2,740 in federal aid.

The second millage request is the renewal of 1.25 mills for one year. Last year this voted millage was used for improvements at the elementary school building including a new roof and heating plant, insulation and related repairs.

"This year we are asking for the renewal of this millage, 1.25 mills, for one year to renovate and update the athletic complex at the high school," Olach explained.

The cinder track was built in the mid-1930s as a WPA project and is now more than 50 years old. It is no longer usable for the purpose for which it was constructed and has resulted in all track meets being held elsewhere for the past two years. It is in such poor condition that most of it cannot be used for practice.

The lighting facility at the football field including the poles and lights were given to the school district in 1954 as a memorial to the late John Knight, mayor of Charlevoix at the time of his death. The poles, after more than 30 years, are in need of replacement and the lighting system itself has become very costly to operate. It is proposed that fewer poles and more energy-efficient lighting equipment be installed and that an eight-lane all-weather track be constructed to replace the cinder track.

"Athletics are a part of the curriculum at the school; they are a part of the learning process. For this reason f feel it is important that we provide facilities for this purpose just as we provide a gymnasium for indoor sports," Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren said in explaining why the renewal of the millage for one year is being requested.

"Many people have asked why we can't have an auditorium or a swimming pool. These would require a large long-range bond issue as compared to the proposed renovation of the athletic complex which would necessatate only 1.25 mills for one year," he explained.

He went on to say that volunteer help and donated materials and equipment would be used to the fullest in the proposed renovation program. "We have had many offers for this support. The Sports Boosters have already raised seed money that will be added to the monies the millage issue would raise, an estimated $250,000, and other monies would come from the general fund," VanWieren explained.

The completion of this project would update all physical facilities of the school district that began with the renovation of the middle school and continued with the addition at the high school and the energy conservation program in that complex and the improvements at the K-5 school.

In addition, the 1959 bond issue for the high school has been paid off and the total millage will be reduced accordingly, Olach added.

Shown above are the girls who will be attending Girls State this year.

Students to attend Girls State

Four Charlevoix High school juniors have been named to attend the annual Wolverine Girls State on the campus of Central Micigan Univeristy June 14-22.

They will attend under the sponsorship of the Charlevoix American Legion Auxiliary and financed by the Charlevoix Women's Club headed by Lucy Wittheoft.

They are Valerie Barnes, Lori Gleason, Sandy Brofoske and Kristen Holmes. Melissa Hansen was named alternate.

Serving on the Girls State Committee were Witthoeft, Gertrude Holt and Toni Felter, high school counselor.

Math student is 4th in state

A Charlevoix Middle School student, Mike Ochs, finished fourth in the state among 1,800 students participating in the Michigan Mathematics League Competitive Test, his instructor, Tori Fisher, has announced. He advanced to state competition after placing first on the regional level.

The six-member team of which Ochs was a member placed fourth in the regional level in the team event Fisher said. The team was composed of six seventh-grade students, Lisa Dixon, Angela Levengood, Denis Mailloux, Mark Newman, Mike Ochs and Amy Shupert.

The Charlevoix Middle School was among the 300 schools from throughout the state to compete in the event which involved written tests done under supervision at the participants's school.

The Middle School seventh grade math team that competed in the Michigan Mathematics League-sponsored competitive test was composed of, front row, left to right: Mark Newman, Michael Ochs.

Standing: Amy Shupert, Lisa Dixon, Denis Mailloux.

In the individual event Ochs placed first on the regional level and fourth in the state among 1,800 students.

Two millage proposals on primary ballot

Two county millage proposals will appear on the August 5 primary ballot.

The first proposal will be for 15 mills to be allocated for four years to: Charlevoix County, 4.70 mills; each township, one mill; each school district, 9.1 mills, and intermediate school district, .20 mills. This is the same millage allocation that has been in effect for the last four years.

The second proposal will be for .25 mills for operation of the County Transit System. This is also a renewal proposal.

Both proposals received the endorsement of the County Board of Commissioners last week, although the Transit System millage proposal received two "no" votes, one from Commissioner Don Smith and one from Commissioner Tom Breakey.

Smith had offered an amendment to the proposal stating that Transit millage collected from residents in areas where the Transit System does not operate should be spent for other transportation purposes, particularly in maintaining the roads in those areas.

Nursing home group hopes for spring construction start

by PEG OHLE

There will be a nursing home facility in Charlevoix some time next spring.

That is the word of Ralph McRae of Charlevoix, who is the field representative for Liberatore Health Care, Inc. of Columbus, Ohio.

Last year, Liberatore applied to the State's Division of Health Facility Construction for permission to building a 107-bed facility in Charlevoix, but approval has been held up by other companies also seeking permission to build a facility.

Liberatore's application was returned to the local licensing agency, Northern Michigan Health Systems Agency in Petoskey, for a second review, which will take place in August along with the review of an application by Dehmel, Ltd. of Flint.

McRae is optimistic about the chances of Liberatore's application being approved because that company has an option on land on which to build the nursing home, letters of support from several local officials, and the necessary rezoning.

The property on which Liberatore has an option is seven acres of land bounded by Garfield and Upright Streets near the Charlevoix Area Hospital and the offices of several local physicians.

The Dehmel, Ltd. application was filed by Marlene Maxfield, who could not be reached by the Courier despite several telephone attempts.

However, that company has not announced the acquisition of a site and does not have letters of support, according to McRae.

McRae says he saw the need for a nursing home facility in Charlevoix several years ago and has been working on the project since then.

He pointed out that there are usually about 50 men and women from Charlevoix and adjoining townships in nursing homes around the area and their relatives would like to have them nearer.

It is estimated that the Liberatore project would cost about $2.6 million, provide 60 to 70 jobs, and pay $20,000 a year in local taxes.

Graduates embrace following Sunday's commencement exercises.

Hayes tells graduates they have been triply blessed

by FRAN MARTIN

Roy C. Hayes, former local attorney and Charlevoix County prosecutor and presently U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Michigan, returned to Charlevoix Sunday to deliver the commencement address at the 98th annual Commencement at Charlevoix High School.

In addressing the students, he said they would never appreciate the sacrifices their parents had made to bring them to this point in their lives until they are parents. "Only then will you realize the sacrifices they have made."

The family is the base of democracy, Hayes said. If the family remains strong the nation will be strong.

Raising a child always reminded him of a kite, he added. You struggle to get it off the ground, you add a long tail, more string, you run harder and finally it takes off. Then it takes more string, more maneuvering and finally it soars and as it does, it goes farther away.

The struggles you go through in raising a child are many and finally, as he or she soars, you know they will soon be on their own.

Hayes told the graduates they were given three unique gifts.

The first, he said, was America. "You inherit this wonderful country - free, noble, good. Truly God has smiled upon you as you live in the best of all times and the best of all countries."

The second gift was Michigan, "the most beautiful of all its states which offers so much with its great inland seas and rolling hills... and the industrial and technological state of the future."

The third is Charlevoix. "It is communities like this that great people come from. You, because you grew up here and enjoyed all it has to offer have experienced the best of Charlevoix. Charlevoix will always remain with you just as you will always be a part of Charlevoix. That will always give you strength."

In conclusion he said to have a full life you must do something for someone else without being asked and without thought of compensation.

School millage passes handily

by FRAN MARTIN

The renewal of two millage issues was approved by wide margins in the annual school election held Monday.

The 15.25 mills for operational pruposes for one year was approved by a 336-69 vote.

The 1.25 mill levy for one year to renovate and update the athletic complex at the Charlevoix High School passed 296-113.

Vincent Olach, business manager, speaking in behalf of the Board of Education Tuesday, said "We appreciate the confidence the voters have placed in the board whose chief interest is in the students. We have been very cost conscious and have not asked for millage that was not needed. The public has shown its confidence by approving millage issues."

The 15.25 mill levy underwrites the cost of operating the school, paying for salaries for all school employees, textbooks, teaching supplies, maintenance, utilities, transportation and all other needs of the school. It supplements the 9.1 mills allocated millage.

The Charlevoix schools do not qualify for membership State Aid and, with a few exceptions, the schools are supported by local millage.

The 1.25 millage approved Monday will finance the renovation and updating of the athletic complex at the high school, the last of several major projects that required voted millage. Other projects included the renovation of the middle school, the energy conservation project at the high school and the updating of the K-5 school that included a new roof and the installation of a heating plant and insulation.

The 1.25 mills will complete the updating of a new track and replacement of the lighting system at the football field and related facilities. "It will be started shortly and readied for next season," Olach added.

Candidates for the vacancies were re-elected without opposition. Ardeth M. Wieland was elected to a fourth term by a vote of 355 and Elaine R. Martin to a third term by 354 votes.

Charlevoix pays last respects to Jeff Drenth, distance runner

by DOUG TRUAX

They came from as far away as Oregon. And they came from the rolling hills south of Charlevoix.

Their numbers included Olympians and they included the friends and neighbors and acquaintances.

More than 800 people in all gathered at the Charlevoix High School gymnasium Friday to pay their last respects to Jeff Drenth, a favorite son of Charlevoix and a world class distance runner.

The town has never witnessed anything quite like it.

Drenth, 24, collapsed and died Monday at the Athletics West track club office in Eugene, Ore. The exact cause of death has not been determined, but Drenth had a history of arrhythmia, an irregular heart beat.

Among those who attended the funeral services in Charlevoix were many of the teammates from Athletics West where Drenth was preparing to qualify for the 1988 Olympics in the 10,000 meter run.

Among them was Joan Benoit-Samuelson, Olympic marathon gold medalist, and steeplechase bronze medalist Brian Diemer.

Friday morning, before the funeral, some 40 runners from Charlevoix, Athletics West and elsewhere quietly circled the track at the high school and then ran through the town, striding along the high bluff along Michigan Beach and working their way through town to the north where they wound through the hills of the Mt. McSauba Nature Preserve.

It was a silent tribute to the young man who lived for running and who loved nature and Charlevoix.

Later at the gym, several relatives and fellow athletes tried to put into words their feelings for the man.

"Jeff was the most beautiful, unassuming person I ever met," said Bepoit-Samuelson, a native of Maine. "He was not only a great runner but a great humanitarian."

Benoit-Samuelson, also a member of Athletics West, recalled how Drenth had visited her in Maine. "He loved the nature and beauty of Maine," she said. She recalled how she returned from church one day to find that he had done all the laundry and tilled the garden. "He was constantly caring about the other person," she said.

JEFF'S BROTHER, Walt, recalled that "Jeff was the most positive guy I have ever known – bar none. And probably the most persistent guy I've ever known. He was real patient, too."

He said his brother's qualities should be an inspiration for young people.

"I've been coaching 16 years and this is the first time I've ever lost an athlete," said Bob Sevene, Jeff's coach at Athletics West.

Sevene said he had experienced the death of a young man only once before, while serving as a troop commander in Vietnam. "I didn't understand it then, and I don't understand it now," he said as his voice broke with emotion.

"Every day I walk out on the track, I'll be thinking about Jeff," Sevene said. He added that he and Drenth had planned to move to

Two robberies under investigation

The Charlevoix City Police are investigating a breaking and entering and safecracking at the Ben Franklin store at Captain's Corner mall sometime overnight on Thursday. The crime was discovered by the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Miller when the store was opened Friday morning.

Entry was gained through the front door. The thief or thieves then tore the safe from the wall and ripped it open. An undetermined amount of cash was taken.

Entrance to the building at the shopping center was made sometime after 9 p.m. on Thursday.

The robbery of the Total service station located at 304 Petoskey Ave. at 7:45 p.m. Saturday by a man on foot is under investigation by the Charlevoix City Police.

According to the police, a tall, white male came to the station on foot and, after other customers had left, punched the attendant, John Francis Murdick, 32, of Charlevoix in the mouth, took an undetermined amount of cash from the cash register and escaped on foot.

The station is owned by the Woodland Oil Co.

Accident takes life of area woman

A former Charlevoix resident was killed and a local businessman seriously injured in a two-car accident on U.S. 131 2½ miles south of Boyne Falls in Boyne Valley Township at 7:45 p.m. Thursday, June 5, according to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

Dead at the scene was Carolyn T. Rader, 68, of Petoskey, a former Charlevoix resident.

Injured and taken to Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey via Boyne City ambulance was Dennis William Kusina, 37, of Charlevoix. Kusina remained in fair but stable condition on Tuesday, according to a hospital spokesperson.

According to sheriff's officers, the Rader vehicle, a 1979 station wagon driven by Rader traveling south on the straightaway and the northbound Kusina vehicle, a 1986 Chevrolet van driven by Kusina met head-on in the middle of the highway. The jaws of life from the Emmet County Sheriff's Department were needed to extracate the victims from their vehicles.

The accident remains under investigation by the sheriff's department.

Dr. John D. Karkosak of Boyne City was the medical examiner at the scene.

Mrs. Rader's body was taken to the Stone Funeral Home in Petoskey.

Charlevoix Yesterday

Charlevoix has always been a sports-minded community that has fielded outstanding teams in the past.

Pictured is a team sponsored by the Glenn S. See Funeral Home in the early 1950s. Many of the team members are now found in the bleachers at local games.

Standing: Ted Ager, Dan Geneit, Henry Supernaw, Harry Ladd, Chick Gallagher, Herb Moore.

Five year old drowns in South Arm

A five-year-old Bellaire child drowned Saturday evening when he apparently fell from a dock fishing in the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix. The location was on the west side of the South Arm, south of Holy Island in Eveline Township according to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

The child was Lewis James Barnard, five-year-old son of Lewis J. Barnard, Jr., of Bellaire.

According to the sheriff's department report, the family was hosting a birthday party for an older daughter at property they own at the site. The child was found missing earlier and after a search of the area, the Sheriff's department was called, at 9:19 p.m. Saturday. The child's father later recovered his son's body a short distance from the dock.

He was transported by East Jordan ambulance to the Charlevoix Area Hospital where he was pronounced dead at 10:10 p.m. by Dr. Reed Freidinger, medical examiner.

The body was taken to the Bellaire Chapel of the Mortenson Funeral Home.

Maine later this summer and coach cross country at Bowdoin College in Brunswick.

Drenth graduated in December 1984 from Central Michigan University, where he was a two-time Mid-American Conference cross-country champion. He was a member of the last three U.S. cross-country teams entered in the world championships; a member of the U.S. team in the 1983 World University games; and a member of the U.S. World Cup team last year.

"He was a beautiful young man," said Walt Schneider, associate athletic director at CMU. "He set phenomonally high standards as an athlete. His influence will be felt forever at Central Michigan."

Ed Eyestone, a runner who competed with Drenth in international competition, said his life was much richer and fuller because of his association with Jeff Drenth. "I feel sorry today for those who didn't know him," he added.

Eyestone concluded by reading A.E. Housman's poem. "To an Athlete Dying Young."

Doug Drenth, Jeff's younger brother, recalled arguing one day about individual will. Doug said he believed you could do anything if you willed it hard enough. Jeff corrected him, the younger brother recalled, noting that "God had to be a part of it."

REV. LARRY GROOTERS of the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix conducted the funeral and told the gathering that Jeff was a product of a strong, loving family. "He was loved and nurtured and he, himself, loved and nurtured others.

"Jeff took his blessings and multiplied them 110 percent by giving to others," he said.

Rev. Grooter's son, John, sang an original composition, accompanying himself on guitar.

At the close of the ceremony, Rev. Grooters asked the mourners to stand, hold hands and sing the words to "Reach Out and Touch."

After the service in the high school, the funeral procession took the young man's body to the Barnard Cemetery where he was buried beneath a stately maple in the simple country graveyard.

Dr. Harry Custer retires after 19 years

Insurance premiums force early departure

by DOUG TRUAX

Dr. Harry Custer is taking down the shingle he put out in Charlevoix some 19 years ago.

The chief of the surgery department at Charlevoix Area Hospital is retiring, effective July 1.

Although he had planned to retire in a few years, Dr. Custer's plans were hurried along by the liability insurance crisis facing the medical profession. He says he would have liked to practice a few more years, but the cost of doing business is just too high.

The liability issue was "a tremendous factor in me retiring," Dr. Custer says. When he first came to Charlevoix, he was paying $2,300 a year for insurance. Two years ago the cost had climbed to $11,000. This year it is $24,000.

"Right now it is an extremely difficult problem for the medical profession," he says. "There are no simple answers.

The high insurance rates are prompting early retirements throughout the country, he notes.

DR. CUSTER came to Charlevoix in the late sixties from Colby, Kansas where he headed the surgery department at St. Thomas Hospital for 14 years. He first came on vacation and, being an avid fisherman, took an instant liking to the place.

The Charlevoix Courier hailed his arrival in town, noting that "the doctor shortage, which has turned into a real nightmare for some Charlevoix-ans in the last few months, may be coming to an end."

There have been dramatic changes in the medical scene in Charlevoix during Dr. Custer's tenure. Nineteen years ago, he says, there was no emergency room and now the hospital boasts a 24-hour After Hours Clinic. Other additions to the hospital include a post-anesthetic recovery room, an intensive care unit, expanded facilities like ultrasound and an increase in staff physicians from six to 18.

The medical scene as a whole is changing too, he says. "There is more specialization now," Dr. Custer notes. When first came to Charlevoix there were no radiologists, internists, orthopedic surgeons, obstetricians, or urologists – all specialists now practicing.

"There is also a greater emphasis on outpatient surgery and shortened hospital stays for those who are hospitalized," he says.

He also notes "radical changes in the health insurance programs," including the need for second opinions and the use of hospital review boards.

Second opinions are not that important in Charlevoix, he adds. "I have never met an unethical doctor up here. But they do give assurance to the patient."

Review boards, which assess the need to continue hospitalization of a patient, "keep the doctor on his toes... keep him alert," Custer adds.

HE INSTITUTED the practice of industrial medicine in Charlevoix and he currently represents 19 different corporations from Elk Rapids to Petoskey with some 2,000 employees.

Industrial medicine, he explains, is concerned with the total health and safety of the employee. It begins with surveys of working conditions and includes physicals and periodic evaluations.

When the program was started 16 years ago, Dr. Custer says, the Charlevoix area had one of the worst records of industrial medical problems in the state. For the last 10 years it has had one of the best.

Industrial medicine is also dependent on ergonomics, adjusting the job to the employee. Back problems, the most important problem in industrial medicine, are often avoided by simple changes in working conditions.

His program also teaches workers Emergency Medical Treatment techniques and mails medical newsletters to all industries involved.

Each year, Dr. Custer says, some 50,000 new chemicals are put on the market that are used in industry. Industrial medicine helps the companies and workers understand the risks and proper uses of these often toxic substances.

Dr. Harry Custer

"THE BOTTOM LINE up here (in northern Michigan) is that you have to be more competitive to make a profit," Dr. Custer says. "The only way we can combat the additional costs of doing business – transportation and such – is to have a healthier, happier workforce."

The importance of a well adjusted workforce is extremely important, he adds, since it is estimated that some 85 percent of all work accidents are self imposed.

His work as a physician and surgeon has also given him a great interest in the American Cancer Society. He is always more than willing to address groups on the subject.

"I am certain that most cancers are caused by our environment," he says. "The improvements in the treatment of cancer have been refinements in the medical and surgical treatment of cancer."

Statistics show that, overall, we are not making progress against the disease. "The big advancement in the treatment of cancer is a change in lifestyle," he says.

"Younger people are much more health conscious," he says, and that will eventually pay big dividends.

Dr. Custer says he will miss the medical practice of working with peers and patients. To fill the void, he hopes to devote more time to fishing for lake trout and salmon in the waters around Lake Charlevoix as well as do some landscaping around his house.

He looks back at the Charlevoix Area Hospital with pride. "It is outstanding for a community of this size. It will continue to improve and expand. They do an outstanding job here."

Due, in no small part, to the efforts of this white-haired physician and surgeon.

Two contests set for County Board

by PEG OHLE

There will be two contests in the August primary for seats on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

Theodore "Bud" Heeres, recently retired transportation supervisor for the Charlevoix School System, has filed a petition to be put on the August primary ballot as a Republican candidate for Commissioner from District 6, the City of Charlevoix.

Heeres, who is 63, was born in Charlevoix County and has lived and worked in the City of Charlevoix for 40 years. He spent 17 years with the School System and before that worked as a mechanic for the Charlevoix Oil Company and for Brown Motors.

He also served in the Navy during World War II.

Heeres and and his wife, Marian, have two sons and two daughters, all of whom they are justly proud. Son Richard Lee teaches in Battle Creek, son Kenneth James is in research in applied physics at Johns Hopkins University and does computer programming for E. F. Hutton Company, daughter Karen Marie Brun is in the real estate business in Richland, Washington, and daughter Laurie Thornhill is accountant for student activities at Michigan State University. They are all graduates of Charlevoix High School.

Bud Heeres

When asked why he is running for public office, his first attempt, Heeres said he thought it was time for a change, and "for a democratic form of government, any incumbent should have opposition to give voters a chance to choose".

He added, "I have no axes to grind".

In his spare time, Heeres likes to garden and do the maintenance work on his home and his cars. At one time, he did quite a bit of fishing, a sport he hopes to take up again in retirement.

Heeres's opponent in the primary will be 1. Lee Moerland, who has served on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners for 20 years.

The other primary contest for a seat on the County Board of Commissioners will be in District 5 between Lee Arnold of Ironton and incumbent Don Smith of Charlevoix Township, both Republicans. Arnold announced his candidacy in early May.

District 5 is composed of western Evelline Township, Marion Township, Norwood Township, Charlevoix Township, and St. James and Peaine Townships on Beaver Island.

Arnold was born in Syracuse, New York and has lived in Eveline Township for nine years. He is 42 years old and self-employed as a carpenter. He serves as Eveline Township Zoning Administrator, the only political job he has ever held.

Letters to the Editor:

Council commended for stand on Eaton Street

Dear Editor:

I have read with interest the self-serving letter of Heck-Lundy Courier May 21 and feel it is time that someone commended the City Council for taking a stand in support of the community at large.

When Mr. Heck and others formed their first development company and acquired the McCutcheon property, they presented plans to the Planning Commission outlining their phased-development marina. In those plans, and also during the course of hearings before the Commission, the Eaton Street right-of-way and lake access were discussed and acknowledged. Why does Mr. Heck now refer to it as the "disputed Eaton Street" and the "alleged rights" of the public?

Free and unrestricted access to the public waters is of prime importance to all of us who are property owners in northern Michigan and also to those who are not. One only has to look at the development situation around Round Lake to see what has happened where former roadway easements were abandoned by the City or usurped by abutting land owners. Public access to Round Lake at the foot of Alice Street is no longer a reality. On the south side of town, the only public access to Lake Charlevoix is at the foot of Eaton Street and Stover Road.

Over the years, members of our family and other city residents were always able to fish or swim at the foot of Eaton, launch boats or canoes, and transport ice shanties onto the lake in mid-winter. There is virtually no way that these activities can be done today at the foot of Eaton Street the way Northwest Marine has attempted to restrict free access to the waterfront at this location.

The issue is not whether or not the present landscaping and development are more "aesthetically" pleasing, but whether the Lundy-Heck Company is attempting to claim this public easement for their own purposes.

The two sets of pilings referenced by Mr. Heck were driven to facilitate the creation and sale of another large condominium slip which I do not believe existed on the original development plan. It is my recollection that at first Mr. Heck agreed that the marine contractor had been in error when he drove the pilings in their present location. If that were the case, then Mr. Heck should have required the contractor to re-drive them at the contractor's expense. It now appears that Mr. Heck has changed his position.

It is obvious that the retaining wall, landscaping and now the planting of trees, have all been specifically designed to restrict or otherwise impede free access to the waterfront on this easement. Surely a competent landscape architect could design an aesthetically pleasing plan that would not infringe upon the public's access to the water at this point. Instead what has been constructed is a blatant attempt to obstruct the right-of-way easement, sever access to the lake and hope that the City would not enforce the rights of the residents, thereby forcing a constructive abandonment of the access site.

If Northwest Marine would refrain from encroaching upon or otherwise obstructing the Eaton Street right-of-way and access, the city would not have to spend tax dollars on a lawsuit. However, one of the many purposes of having a city with its own attorney is so that many small voices can be joined in one voice with sufficient volume to be heard.

The City Council is to be commended for taking a stand on this issue and not giving in to the public pressure campaign being orchestrated by the developers through rabble-rousing in the public press.

Graduation

I proudly sat beside my Dad as happy parent of the grad.
Mom and brother shared my view prepared to shed a tear or two.
My in-laws to the other side and aunts and uncles miles did ride.
Our smiles were broad and hearts were light expecting a momentous sight.
As invocation was delivered suddenly I felt a shiver.
It wasn't from the pride that swelled,
I was aghast when someone yelled.
Then four or six or maybe ten yelled and whistled once again.
The commencement had just begun the celebrating was half done.

With all decorum cast aside embarrassment I could not hide.
Sunglasses, squirt-guns, poppers, and bubbles were only a part of commencement troubles.
Disrespect while speakers shared
I wondered now if anyone cared.
I felt a certain loss and shame for all those grads who proudly came to have a very special day be sent fondly on their way.
Now truly I shed a tear or two for a day that was spoiled because of a few.

Bridge should be called by right name

Dear Editor:

As a favor for one of Charlevoix's senior citizens, and in order to stand corrected, we are writing to explain the beginnings of the Charlevoix Memorial Bridge, its purpose and its gendre.

More commonly but incorrectly referred to as "the drawbridge," the Charlevoix Memorial Bridge was dedicated on July 30, 1949, "to those heroes of Charlevoix and vicinity who made the supreme sacrifice in World War II."

Joining together both sides of the city that are dissected by the Pine River Channel, Charlevoix Memorial Bridge is of the bascule type, which means that it is counterweighed and swings open vertically by turning on its hinges. It is not a drawbridge which keeps level as it is raised. Ours is one of only two bascule bridges in Michigan presently operated by the Department of State Highways. Upon completion of the new Zilwaukee Bridge, ours will be the only one of its kind in the state.

In an effort to give proper credit where credit is due, we ask that you help us with our effort to educate all those who refer to the Charlevoix Memorial Bridge incorrectly. If in your speech and conversations, and in your correspondence and reporting, you could begin saying, "The Charlevoix Memorial Bridge," the Chamber and one senior citizen, in particular, would be very grateful.

Clockwise

Graduation 1986 style

By Bob Clock

For the past 24 hours I have had a bad case of jitters and I think my days as a spectator at high school commencement ceremonies are over.

I simply can't take all the excitement — firecrackers bursting on all sides, clouds of gunpowder smoke rising above the mortarboards, jets of water spraying in every direction (at least I hope it was water), platoons of soap bubbles wafting over the audience.

Probably the most unnerving distraction was a giant beach ball which suddenly materialized among the graduates and was batted about indiscriminately by our brightest and best throughout the solemn exercises Sunday afternoon in the Charlevoix High School gymnasium.

Fortunately I didn't have any kids in the graduating class of 1986. If I did, they would be grounded until they reach senility — diploma or no diploma.

I was also grateful that I didn't have any out-of-town relatives or friends in the audience — particularly my sister Ellen. Ellen retired a few years ago after a lifetime of teaching in Detroit area schools and she doesn't abide any nonsense from young upstarts.

She would have gotten up on the podium and sent everybody home — which is exactly what our school administrators should have done.

But School Board President Max Novak and Superintendent Gordon VanWieren said they thought of all the relatives and friends from out of town who had come to see little Elmo graduate and they just couldn't do it.

For my money, said relatives and friends would have been greatly relieved if someone had drawn the curtain prematurely on the whole ghastly performance.

I have been assured by Novak that parents need not suffer through the agony and embarrassment of having their son or daughter graduate from Charlevoix High School. The march across the stage is a mere formality and diplomas may be picked up quietly at the school office.

I also have been assured by VanWieren that the Roman circus we witnessed Sunday will never be repeated. He intends to sit down with next year's graduates and parents in the fall and lay down the ground rules. If the graduates are unwilling to abide by them, there will be no 1987 graduation ceremony.

Novak believes peer pressure, coupled with lack of parental control, was largely responsible for Sunday's fiasco. He also blames the merchants who sell "poppers," or whatever they're called, to graduates, knowing full well they are going to be used to disrupt graduation. I guess we're just lucky we don't have a napalm distributor in town.

VanWieren has a very interesting theory. He believes something went haywire with peer-pressure dynamics this year, with class cut-ups — rather than academic leaders — emerging as role models. I suspect VanWieren's theory comes very close to the mark. However an analysis of why things went haywire could keep an army of social anthropologists busy for years.

Not all of the graduates were involved in the hi-jinks, of course. But those who were must have felt like hell when they woke up Monday morning and realized what a shambles they had made of their own graduation.

A CHECK-UP ON HAPPINESS
by Rev. Duane Nelson
Church of the Nazarene

The Beatitudes are very comforting scriptures which shed great amounts of light on the Christian life. They are found in Matt. 5:1-12, and are the beginning of a series of sermons preached on a mountainside by Jesus (commonly referred to as the Sermon of the Mount).

If we look at these deeply and sincerely, they can propose a radical change in our volitions, personalities, and even our lifestyles. But, as it is always sad to say, we rarely look at these scriptures deep enough to do any good at all. However, let me suggest a way to look deeply into the Beatitudes. It is by taking the exact opposite of the scripture. Let's begin and look at each one of these prayerfully upon our lives.

"Blessed" contains a meaning of "spiritual happiness, enjoy God's favor, destined to enter His eternal Kingdom." So the opposite would be a spiritual unhappiness.

Unhappy are those who have a self-focused pride, for theirs is not the kingdom of heaven.

Unhappy are those who do not show sympathy, for they will only find discontentment.

Unhappy are those who take advantage of others, for they will inherit nothing.

Unhappy are those who have an unquenchable desire for evil, for they will always be empty.

Unhappy are the cruel and uncompassionate, for they will be shown cruelty and uncompassion.

Unhappy are those who have an impure heart, for they will not see God.

Unhappy are the troublemakers, for they will be called son of the devil.

Unhappy are those who are exalted because of unrighteousness, for theirs is the pit of hell.

The only way that we can be spiritually happy or blessed is to seek a right relationship in Jesus Christ through forgiveness of our sins. To express a positive assurance, the Beatitudes found in Matthew can become a spiritual reality in our lives. And the blessedness will flow throughout our souls. May God Bless!

ALMOST EVERYONE I talk to has peeked through the front store window of what used to be called Mont's on Bridge Street to see the exciting changes Diance Pace is bringing about.

I heard about Mont's long before I arrived in Charlevoix, but that's another story. It was the hangout for the young in the late 20s and 30s and the slogan was, "If she's a queen, take her to Mont's." Mrs. Withers, who owned the place, ran it with an iron fist and if she didn't care for some of the lively shenanigans of the young resorters she would shoo them out. A tough lady.

The new name for Mont's is The Magpie Soda Fountain and the decor is absolutely perfect!. It's opening this week and the specialty of the house is called the Magpie. (If you're a health nut, skip this part.) Start with a Tom's Mom's cookie, add a scoop of natural ice cream with no artificial flavors, cover this with hot fudge, add a large dollop of whipped cream and finish the whole thing off with a cherry on top. Can you stand it?

I wouldn't be surprised if they'll be handing out numbers and people will be lining up outside waiting to get in this summer.

I ALWAYS MARVEL at people who are willing and able to open their homes for a house tour. Imagine having every room in the house in order at the same time - it boggles the mind. Nevertheless there are seven homes that are going to be shown on a House Tour in Birchwood and Harbor Springs on Monday, June 23, between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. The $12 donation is for the benefit of the Crooked Tree Arts Council. A delicious luncheon is planned for an additional $6 at the Arboretum, but this is optional - you can brown bag it if you like and picnic at the state park.

Want to hear about the houses? One has the finest view of Lake Michigan in the north; one has a heated indoor pool; one has an adjoining horsebarn; one is filled with gorgeous antiques; one has a sunken fire pit and wet bar; one has a geothermal heating system; and one is just plain "ducky."

Call your best friend and get up a group today! Tickets are available in Charlevoix at the Apple Tree and in East Jordan at Hite Drug Store.

AFTER DRIVING by the new Nine Mile Point development all winter on the Petoskey Road, and wondering if the condos would survive the elements, I finally stopped by and checked it out. The development seems safely cradled on the scalloped shore of Lake Michigan. When completed, there will be 20 condos, eight residences and two tennis courts. I adore the model unit that Tom Borman has decorated. It's dramatic; it's exciting; it's bold, and a relief from all the safe neutrals.

PEOPLE ON THE south side of town will be delighted to discover Jerry's Meats. It's on East Lincoln where Gebeau's grocery store used to be. Not only does Jerry carry prime and choice cuts of meat, he also has fresh fish and seafood. But best of all, it's so clean you can eat off the floor, as my mother used to say. Jerry's is open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. during the week and from 10 to 6 on Sundays. He'll prepare party trays and cook chicken, ribs, and roasts to order for the busy summer hostess. Hallelujah!

IF YOU'VE BEEN cruising by boat on Lake Charlevoix this spring, you've probably wondered who built that big, new, white house - and I mean BIG! Well, it's a neat family from Cincinnati named Anderson.

Papa Jeffrey played football at the University of Virginia and for the Washington Redskins. He was an original investor in the Mexican Chi Chi restaurant chain, in which he's sold his interest, and now has switched to developing Budgetel chain of motels.

Both he and his wife, Darlene, pilot their own plane, and the whole family skis on water in the summer and on snow in the winter. They love to play tennis on their own court. Son J.R. will be travelling to national tennis tournaments this summer. They plan to make this their retirement home, because they love the people as well as the gorgeous view from their side of the lake.

In the meantime, Darlene spends much of her time in Cincinnati as a volunteer for the zoo, where she is deeply involved in the reproductive embryo transfer program of rare animals. Darlene Tranter Anderson used to summer in Walloon as a child, so she knows the area. The architect who designed the three-level home, Rick Kahler, also spent many family summers in Walloon. Steve and Marylou Smith are delighted to have the Andersons next door as friends and neighbors. Now aren't you pleased I told you?

New jewelry store opens

An invitation to visit Charlevoix aboard a friend's boat. A consequent attachment to boating and the purchase of their own boat. The purchase of a slip in which to moor the boat. The purchase of a condominium in which to live when not on the boat.

The establishment of a jewelry and gift shop in Charlevoix to augment their shop in Lansing and to provide a "reason" for spending so much time in Charlevoix.

That's the story of Jim and Vicki Pereida and their Su Casa Boutique in the Market Mall.

The Pereidas have operated a store in Lansing for 12 years under the Su Casa name and will sell the same type of merchandise and offer the same services in Charlevoix as they have in Lansing.

The local boutique has a complete line of specialty jewelry, including earrings, chains, pendants, broaches, rings, and necklaces.

They will continue to do their custom stone and gem setting work and other manufacturing processes in Lansing but promise one-week service on most items. They will also make jewelry repairs, including new clasps and restringing.

In the gift department, Su Casa features crystal, porcelain, pewter, silver, miniature figurines, ceramic wallhangings; sand castles, and numerous other decorative and useful items.

While their staff of three jewelers and daughter and son-in-law hold fort in Lansing, Jim and Vickie are spending as much of their time as they can in Charlevoix getting their new shop "off on the right foot".

"We're excited about being here", Vickie told the Courier as she awaited Jim's return from Lansing.

Su Casa Boutique held its Grand Opening last weekend and is now offering a 20 percent discount on any item in the shop.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifeck
Executive Director

The month of June brings all sorts of activity to Charlevoix. Friday the Star of Charlevoix will begin its summer schedule providing three cruises a day, seven days a week until mid-October. The actual boat is new for this harbor - allowing for a larger seating capacity and a third level observation deck. If you haven't been out on the Star in awhile, make a point of it this season.

Look for about 80 bass boats to be on the lakes this weekend from the Michigan Bass Federation. Their Spring Tournament runs both Saturday and Sunday, with all weigh-ins at the end of Clinton Street in East Park.

The 75th Michigan Amateur Golf Championship begins Tuesday, June 17 and runs through the 21st. Qualifying rounds will be played Sunday and Monday at the Belvedere Golf Club where some 170 golfers are expected to compete.

The Chamber of Commerce, Lions Club and Charlevoix Area Jaycees will be handling food concessions, and working with Michigan Golf Association Tournament Coordinator, Jeff Rivard. To celebrate the 25th year of play at the Belvedere Golf Club in Charlevoix, there will be commemorative shirts on sale, a players' dinner Monday night featuring Lions Chicken and live entertainment from Bob Bryan. Spectators are welcome to watch golfers form all over the state compete for the state amateur title. There is plenty of free parking provided.

Horton Bay set to frolic

"We Do It Our Way" is the theme of the Eighth Fun and Frolic Fourth of July Parade in Horton Bay.

Scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. on July 4, the parade will wind one-quarter mile through "downtown Horton Bay", beginning at the corner of the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road and Horton Bay Road North, and ending at the Bay Township Hall.

Entries will be limited to the first 100 entries, and awards will be given for the five entries judged the best.

The only ground rule is "No political entries and no commercial entries".

Those wishing to enter the parade may do so by sending their name, address, phone number, and description of the entry to Jon Hartwell, race of the Horton Bay Store, Boyne City, Michigan 49712. Hartwell also has some entry ideas for those needing help. Phone 582-6388.

Yachting Notes

by A. NONY MOUSE

Ya say ya been missin cheese, and hearing ill scurrying noises, and even glimpse a lil tail now an then? Worry Not, Dear Friend - it's just that A. Nony Mouse is back in action after wintering up in the boatyard (we mice are not permitted to stir during the winter - some aneient legend, I believe).

Actually, thanks to the Medieal Mouse we were baek in print last week - but this is the first of the year by the Bald Bard of Boating!

LOTS OF INTERESTING controversy at the Skippers' Meeting, held the night before the First Spring Series Race, resulted in a series of compromise amendments to the original Race Instructions. If you're a spectator (probably skippers should also be aware), the biggest, fastest boats are starting last, there are only five minute intervals between the fleets and the finish is at the windward mark (the old last leg to CYC is eliminated).

So, Spectator - the plaee to see the action is at the weather mark! You find the weather mark by looking for the buoy nearest the shore from which the wind is coming (which means it's the one most beealmed by shoreline effect). With our prevailing winds, it will usually be (SW) "E" (near Water's Edge), (W) "C" (between Fosters Boat Works and Belvedere Beach) or (NW) "A" (CYC - at the Depot).

THE FIVE-MINUTE intervals mean all the yaehts may well arrive at the windward mark at the same time so it may be easier to locate by the sounds (screams?) of "Buoy Room", "You ain't got no overlay" or "Holly Cow!!!". Since Coolwhip tangling with Respite is about as equal as an Altar Boy and the Pope, it does get interesting.

This is also the buoy at whieh all yaehts (except the Jib and Main Fleet) smoothly raise the spinnaker pole, then the 'chute, drop the jib and quietly sail off in a new direction. Not just onee, but later they come baek and do it all over again, even more smoothly - and still later return again to finish.

Brass Taeks, with the ol' man of the sea directing operations, did not one, but two (count 'em)2!), underwater spinnaker sets - something those of us younger skippers (under 65) wouldn't even attempt.

IN THE SECOND RACE of the Spring Series, it was...

"A" Fleet: Respite, by a minute under Traveller, two ahead of Pygmalion, just 6 seconds faster than Plastic Fantastie, 19 seconds better than Elusion, then Columbine, Kritter; Gotcha, Moonshadow, Flying Maehinge, Mint Julep and Tigger.

"B" Fleet: Wing Nut, with almost a minute lead on Brass Taeks, a minute and half later Flash, with Bandit trailing.

"C" Fleet: Tireless, just under a minute ahead of Blasen III, well in front of Cygnus and Spectre.

JAM Fleet: Canusa by a solid six minutes under Ribit, with a big lead on Maureen, Ti-Gi, Coolwhip and Apothecary trailing.

Overall: Respite (1:14:33), Traveller, Pygmalion, Plastie F., Tireless, Elusion, Biasen, Wing Nut, all 1:19:00 or less, followed by five yaehts at 1:19:??. Top 12, inel. A; C and B, within 5 mins. Don't know why no scores on lots of others out there - will eheek.

OVER THE WEEKEND, yaehts from the surrounding area converged on Lake Charlevoix to eompete in the Pine Lake Regatta series. The first raee, scored double, was Saturday's B,B.B.C. & B. (Bumpty Bump to Boyne City and Baek) and was sailed under a wide variety of conditions that some considered less than ideal.

Sunday's two Budweiser Olympic Triangle Races that completed the series, were sailed under clear skies with a good breeze. The top three, in each of the three Fleets were:

Div. I (the larger yaehts): Respite (LTYC), Slick (GTYC) and Traveller (sailing under the colors of the CYC).

Div. II (the rest of us): Plastic Fantastie (CYC), Columbine (CYC) and Pygmalion (CYC).

Div. IV (the Jib and Main Fleet): Maureen (CYC), Cheemaun (CYC) and Vietoria (LTYC).

(CYC) is Charlevoix Yaeht Club, LTYC is Little Traverse Yaeht Club of Harbor Springs and GTYC is Grand Traverse Yaeht Club of Traverse City.)

Hearing on aging services planned

Senior citizens and other persons interested in the welfare of senior citizens will have an opportunity to voice their opinions of the proposed Three Year Area Plan for Aging Services at public hearings scheduled for June 13 in Interlochen and June 27 in Traverse City.

Aging services in 10 northwest Michigan counties provided through Northwest Senior Resources will cost $1.97 million under the three year plan.

The services will include assistance for older persons in maintaining independent living with community and in-home support services in areas such as meal site and home delivered meals, home chore services, home health aide services, and transportation.

The June 13 meeting will be held from 10:30 a.m. to noon at the Interlochen Senior Center, and the June 27 meeting will be held from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the Northwest Senior Resources Conference Room, 1609 Park Drive, Traverse City.

Copies of the summary draft plan are available from Northwest Senior Resources, Inc., 1609 Park Drive, Box 2010, Traverse City, Michigan 49685.

Inwood Creek Gardens gives nature a boost

by AUDREY DIEBEL COLLINS

Bill Garten's tomato plants are a good eighteen inches tall already, with thick, health stems and bushy tops. In a region where the growing season often leaves tomatoes green on the vine at first frost, Garten's plants seem to hold real promise of juicy, red fruits well before sweater weather.

Garten, 56, does have an advantage. He has Inwood Creek Gardens greenhouse at his disposal, and can set seeds in an artificially lighted and heated atmosphere as early as Deeember.

That gives gardeners who shop at Inwood Creek Gardens an advantage, too. Plants they purchase from Garten have been grown slowly so they are not only larger, but have better developed root systems. It's a head start that has kept the eustomers satisfied for the three years Garten has been running the greenhouse business for his daughter, Holly Patenge.

It's a small business, Garten says. He does it more for therapy than for the income. The former owner of the Great Lake Shipwreck company, he was sidelined because of health problems, but not ready to sit out the rest of his days in a rocking chair. Instead, he expanded his gardening hobby into a job where he says he can take it easy and go at his own pace.

This time of year, the pace is rather brisk. He has been building an addition to the greenhouse which will double its present 600-feet space. The plants have demanded no less of this time in the meanwhile, however, and there are the eager gardeners lined up to make their purchases.

"We have our regular eustomers who eome back every year," Garten says. "They like it because the plants are grown right here. Everybody else's are pretty mueh shipped in. And we have larger plants so it doesn't take them as long to mature. I grow them the way my dad did. He had a greenhouse, too."

Garten has lived in the Charlevoix area for nearly a quarter of a century, and during those years established a reputation as a fine gardener. When he and his wife, Kathryn, moved from town to the banks of Inwood Creek five miles south of Charlevoix, they continued to plant a showplace garden on the grounds of their showplaee home – an earth sheltered home they built from plans they saw in "Mother Earth News."

When Garten started selling garden plants, he had a built-in clientele of neighbors who knew his reputation. That reputation continues to grow, as the addition to his greenhouse silently testifies.

Memorial Day is usually the beginning of his busy season, although with the early warm weather this year, Garten says he "had trouble holding people off." He'll be busy with his plant business until about the fourth of July, and then will swing into another garden-related business: the sale of the strawberries and raspberries he grows in his spare time.

Walkamerica raises $1,859 in Charlevoix

The winner of the adult division of the recent March of Dimes 30-kilometer Walkamerica fund-raiser says the walk was made easier because "you know you are walking for something important."

Linda Penman of Charlevoix raised $280 in pledges to lead the adult division. She will receive a weekend at Boyne Mountain Resort with meals at local restaurants.

Runner-up in the adult division was Dean Parker who raised $264 and received a telephone from Kmart.

Papillon Erreca, nine-year-old son of Krista Erreca of Horton Bay, was winner in the under 18 division, raising $710. He received a VCR for his efforts. Runner-up was Michelle Pittiglio of Boyne City who received a gift certificate from Little Red Shoe House.

Charlevoix Area Hospital again won the Battered Boot Trophy for their participation in the teamwalk division. Their pledges amounted to $349.

The $1,859 raised in the Charlevoix Walk will be used to fight birth defects through education, research and counseling. Forty percent of the money raised stays in the area to finance local projects such as a nutrition aide at Char-Em Alternatives, prenatal classes at Charlevoix Hospital and Health Career Awards at NCMC.

Landing reopens with new owners

As young people, David Wilson and Laurie Lounsbury spent their summers with their parents in adjoining cottages at the Sequanota Club. Now, as David and Laurie Wilson, they are operating The Landing at Ironton, just a stone's throw from Sequanota.

The Landing at Ironton is a food and beverage establishment with the special feature of access by water. With docking space for approximately 30 boats, for several years it was a favorite destination for boaters as well as motorists.

The Wilsons re-opened The Landing after it had been closed down for some 18 months. They have renovated the kitchen, bar, and bathroom areas, painted the exterior of the building, and doubled the size of the popular outdoor deck eating area.

"We think it has a lot of the flavor of the old Ironton area, and we want to keep it attractive and exciting for local people as well as visitors on a year-round basis", Laurie explained.

The "old Ironton" flavor, of course, is the ferry chugging across the narrow channel and the sail and motor boats traveling up and down the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix. Diners at The Landing can watch this constant maritime action.

The food menu will be kept simple, with emphasis on fresh perch and whitefish, large hamburgers, and Mexican dishes. At the present time, lunches and dinners are being served, but breakfasts will be added within a week or two.

For the convenience of boaters, The Landing sells marine gasoline, and for those who want to spend some vacation time in Ironton, their four cabins will soon be ready for use.

David and Laurie Wilson

City Band seeks help

One of Charlevoix's most enduring traditions is in trouble.

Unless more musicians are found, the city's summer concerts in East Park will have to be discontinued, Warren Shapton, president of the band, said.

The Charlevoix City Band has entertained residents since before 1900.

Shapton said there will be an organizational meeting for the band on Wednesday, June 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the band room of Charlevoix High School. All musicians from Charlevoix and surrounding towns and areas are welcome, he said. The band pays mileage to musicians from outside Charlevoix.

If enough musicians can be found, the band will conduct four concerts this summer. There will also be two rehearsals prior to the concerts.

Anyone seeking more information, or those interested in the band but unable to attend the organizational meeting, can contact Shapton at 547-5144.

Marley receives officer rank

An advancement from enlisted to officer status was the event of the day recently as all hands aboard the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite assembled to witness the event Lt. Cdr. Robert E. Young, commanding officer of the ship announced.

Chief Machinery Technician Robert C. Marley, a veteran of 18 years in the service, was formally promoted to the rank of Chief Warrant Officer as the oath of office was administered by Chief Warrant Officer John Burkee. Burkee is the present Engineering Officer of the U.S.C.G. Cutter Mobile Bay homeported at Sturgeon Bay, Wisc.

This is Marley's second tour of duty in Charlevoix. He had served on both the Sundew and the Mesquite when the two ships were exchanged in the summer of 1978. Marley returned to the Mesquite in 1983 as the senior enlisted man aboard, Young said.

Young went on to say that although the oldest of its type in the Great Lakes, the 43-year-old Mesquite has avoided the major engineering casualties which have plagued this aging fleet of cutters in the past few years.

After 18 years of enlisted status, Marley will travel to the Coast Guard Yard at Curtis Bay, Md., for his first officer assignment.

Marley is a native of Dover, N.H.

Nearly two-thirds of class of '86 plan to attend college next year

Sixty-four percent of this year's 101 graduates at the Charlevoix High School will be continuing their education. The remaining 36 percent have jobs, are seeking a job or entering the armed services, a survey of the class conducted by Charles Bentley, high school counselor, reveals.

In the class that has 60 males and 41 females, the college-bound portion of the class consists of 36 males and 30 females. Bentley said the vast majority (59 percent) will be attending four-year programs, the highest proportion in the last 10 years.

The lowest number continuing their education was in 1981 when only 49 percent of a class of 147 went on to college. That year only 31 percent attended a four-year school; 18 percent enrolled in a two year program.

Bentley called attention to the fact that 63 percent of the class of 1982 represented 81 students whereas 64 percent of this year's class represents 65 students.

The colleges Charlevoix students chose continue to be of interest. Seven plan to attend Central Michigan University as compared to 1983 when 78 students enrolled. Michigan State, six compared to 11 in 1983; University of Michigan two compared to five last year; North Central Michigan College, nine as compared to 19 in '85; Albion College, two compared with six in '85; Ferris State College, six to eight in 1985; Hope College three compared to none last year; and Northwestern Michigan College, five compared to three in '85.

Two students will attend Lake Superior State College, Alma College and Lansing Community College, and one each has enrolled in Davenport College, Aquinas College, Grand Rapids Community College and Kalamazoo College.

Out of state colleges in which others have enrolled are Colorado Springs College, Ricks College, Utah, Miami University, Ohio, and Manchester College, Ind.

Serenity House opens doors for alcohol-free relaxation, meetings

Serenity House, home of the Alano Club, located at 104 Mason Street, will host an open house Saturday to acquaint the residents of the area with this new facility.

The open house will be held from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m.

The Alano Club is an organization designed to serve area residents and those from throughout the tri-county area by providing an alcohol and chemical free setting for group and individual relaxation.

The local Alano Club is the result of an observation of a summer resident who recognized that the community would benefit from such a facility. He established the Mason Street Shelter Company, organized a nine member board of directors and purchased the building at 104 Mason St. that formerly housed the Edward Heise antique shop.

The building has been completely renovated and furnished and now boasts an attractive exterior as well as an interior that offers a club atmosphere. When the project is completed, it will be deeded to the Serenity House board of directors who will be responsible for its maintenance and operation.

The club will provide, meeting places for Alcoholics Anonymous, Al-Anon and similar support groups that, until now, have had to meet in church basements and public buildings. The club offers meeting places to such organizations at a modest rental fee.

Memberships are open to all interested persons for $5 per month. Funds from this source will be used to finance utilities and insurance on the building. The Serenity House board of directors report that other financial support has come from founders donations of $100 each and a substantial number of $500 donations by people who realize the value of such a club to the community and area. There have also been numerous smaller donations according to a board member who said "Any support is appreciated."

The hours at the Alano Club are from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. seven days a week. There is a club manager present during these hours and visitors as well as club members are welcome. "The coffee is good and you can relax in the atmosphere it offers," said one person who frequently visits the club after a day's work at a local business.

Literature relating to AA and other support groups is available at the club. Information about meeting times of AA and the other groups as well as references for professional assistance are also readily available to those people who think they may have a problem with alcohol or other drugs.

"What is unique about the Alano Club is the absence of pressure. Unlike many situations in which people may find themselves, the Alano Club offers a 'no pressure' setting," one frequent visitor commented.

Charlevoix's Alano Club is among the many found nationwide.

It is the desire of the board of directors to have the public attend the open house on Saturday and see for themselves this fine new facility now available in the community.

Seniors outline program

When some 60,000 senior citizens, many of them from northern Michigan, recently met in Lansing for Senior Power Day, they endorsed a platform calling for government action on several top priority needs of older Americans. Those needs, as expressed by the group, are:

Expansion of state programs allowing senior citizens to live independently in their own homes. Budget increases were requested for case management of those living alone, for home-delivered meals, and for other similar services.

More effective controls on hospital and insurance costs, continuation and expansion of the Medicare program; increased emphasis on the quality of health care, defeat of the Blue Cross-Blue Shield mutualization proposal, creative ways of financing long term care, and new programs to support health promotion.

Housing options for senior citizens which give them maximum independence without isolation, and which prevent premature placement in nursing homes.

Allowing local governments to use their taxing authority to support transportation programs, a task force to study existing transportation systems and recommend improvements, and continuation of the Small Bus Program (as in Charlevoix County).

Shoreline work studied

City Council reviewed three proposals to shore up the badly eroded beach at the end of West Dixon Avenue at its working session Monday night.

Formal action will not be taken until next Monday, but council appeared to favor a bid of $12,150 from Hammond and Associates of Cross Village.

The Hammond Associates plan, which would include Manthei Development Corporation of Charlevoix, would use concrete bags 15 feet long and five feet wide placed in Lake Michigan to create a "perched beach area."

The shoreline would be further protected by the addition of 50 tons of 8-12 inch quarrystone added to the existing stone and rubble.

There is currently a city-owned stairway at the end of W. Dixon which provides public access to the beach, but high water and erosion have washed away the sand at the foot of the stairs.

Another proposal submitted by Hammond and Associates calls for 66 feet of concrete bags placed six feet from the existing wall and the addition of 118 tons of stone to stabilize the shore. City Manager Michael Wiesner said this option would result in more disruption of the city-owned property.

R. B. Lyons, Inc. submitted a bid to construct a steel bulkhead along the waterfront at the foot of Dixon Avenue at a cost of $17,460.

COUNCIL ALSO informally agreed to charge all non-city sewer users 50 percent over the city rates for sewer hookup and use. Currently, the city charges most non-city customers 100 percent over the city rates.

A special sewer district on the city's south side, however, was formed using the 50 percent formula and City Manager Wiesner suggested it be applied to all such customers to provide more equitable treatment.

Council also:

– Reviewed a renewal of the contract with City Assessor Bob Potter. The new contract calls for a 5 percent increase which would pay the assessor $12,035 for the part-time job.

– Gave tentative approval to Sue Gengle to operate the Ferry Beach concession stand this summer. Councilman Earl Muma suggested the stand's advertising space be used to fund a person to help clean up the park.

– Reviewed a proposed transfer of the 12-month dance-entertainment liquor license from Ricciardi's Inn to Jon Hisey of Charlevoix and William E. Martin of Flushing.

– Received a request from Tom Erber to purchase the city-owned parcel in back of the Clark gas station on U.S. 31. Erber said he presently owns the property to the east of this lot which he is tentatively planning to develop.

The additional land, Erber said, would insure space for septic and parking. Council said it would receive offers on the land, but several councilmen objected to the idea of installing a septic system on the property.

Medusa settles dust dispute, permit approved

A three-year-old dispute over pollution of Charlevoix's air by Medusa Cement Corp. has been formally settled.

The stipulations of an out-of-court settlement, first reached between the state and the cement company in July 1984, have been met and a permit to operate has been issued by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Air Quality Division.

In addition to the 1984 agreement, Medusa Corp. has agreed to install additional dust control equipment and begin a four-part program to monitor its emissions levels and pollution control systems.

The moves culminates a lawsuit brought against Medusa in November 1983 by Michigan Attorney General Frank Kelley and WATCH Inc., Water and Air Team Charlevoix. WATCH also agreed to the settlement.

PLANT MANAGER Elbert Kaiser said the settlement continues dust control measures instituted at the plant, and makes them part of the operating permit at the facility. He said Medusa will add dust collection equipment to its clinker domes, which should be in operation by 1987. A cost estimate for the equipment has not been finalized, he said.

"The settlement calls for a program of road sweeping, a program on unpaved roads of adding water and additional material to control dust, and a detailed maintenance plan and inspection scheduled on all the equipment," Kaiser said. "It is very detailed in setting forth what the plant will do and at what frequency. We will have to report monthly what our activities are.

"It doesn't change the way we've been operating, we have been doing these things. It does give us an operating permit, and allows us to deal with the Department of Natural Resources on something other than a court basis."

Medusa has been operating under a "permit to install" license for the past 2½ years. The plant began its summer production Saturday, and should be in continuous operation through the remainder of this year.

UNDER THE CONSENT agreement signed in July 1984, Medusa had to establish a malfunction abatement program and a fugitive dust control program, provide extensive testing and continuous stack emission monitoring, and reimburse the state's general fund $15,000 for surveillance and enforcement of the agreement.

Medusa has cooperated in all areas of the decree, said DNR Air Quality official Richard Alexander.

The state will continue its normal monitoring program, too, Alexander said.

Water plant costs continue to rise

by DOUG TRUAX

City Council agreed Monday to spend $338,457 to have Comstock Construction Company build the addition to the new municipal water treatment plant.

The water plant expansion will increase the capacity of the water treatment plant from 2 million gallons per day (mgd) to 3 mgd to allow for future demands. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is funding 90 percent of the cost of constructing the 2 mgd plant to replace the city well which is contaminated with trichloroethylene (TCE), a suspected cancer causing agent. The state is paying the additional 10 percent.

EPA refused to pay for any capacity beyond current use rates.

Council originally planned to have the plant expansion handled by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers which is overseeing the EPA project.

WIESNER INFORMED council Monday, however, that using the Corps for the project would cost some $493,000 because of delays in getting the paperwork approved.

He said the less expensive and quicker method would be to contract directly with Comstock Construction which is doing the EPA work. Comstock originally quoted a figure of $359,746 for the additional work, Wiesner said, but negotiations with the company brought the figure down to the $338,457.

The city is also paying $28,000 to McNamee, Porter & Seeley for engineering on the expansion.

Wiesner said two items the McNamee, Porter & Seeley said were not necessary for the water plant expansion, a flocculator and a mixer, were required by the health department and added to the cost of the project.

The use of city crews to do the work on the expansion was also investigated, Wiesner said, but the cost of materials was only $12,000 less than the bid from Comstock. He said a contract with the construction firm would give the city a one-year warrantee on the work and would be a better, surer deal for the city.

JOHN ADAMS, project manager for McNamee, Porter & Seeley, said he could prepare a contract between the city and Comstock by next Monday. He asked and was given permission to give the contractor verbal approval for the additional work on Tuesday.

Hal Hill wanted assurances in the contract that if the work was late or the equipment defective it would be the responsibility of the construction contractor. "The city has to be protected," he said.

IN OTHER ACTION, council passed a resolution authorizing the city to act on a ruling issued by Judge Richard Pajtas in Circuit Court in which the city waives its deed restrictions on a parcel of property on the north end of Lake Charlevoix in exchange for $1,000 and the waiver of rights to the railroad right-of-way adjacent to property owned by John and Lynne Malpeli, Jr.

The Malpelis now own the Lake Charlevoix property in question and are selling residential home sites. The city, however, had a deed restriction on the property stating that no more than two residences could be built on the property. The original intent of that restriction was to allow for a travel trailer park on the site.

According to a 1978 charter provision, the city is prevented from selling, disposing of or waiving rights on property located within 100 feet of a lake.

Judge Pajtas agreed with City Attorney Jeffery VanTreese that the city could bargain away these deed restrictions.

In exchange for the property, the Malpelis agreed to waive any ownership claims on the abandoned railroad right-of-way adjacent to property they own near Ferry Beach. The city plans to relocate Ferry Road along the old railroad bed to provide more parking space

Planners consider lower height limits

by PEG OHLE

Members of the Charlevoix Planning Commission last week took heed of the comments they have heard about the increasing number of variances being granted for building projects as well as the large scale of most of the projects.

Chairman Walter Hufford had earlier stated he thought one reason for the many variance requests was the 35-foot height limit. Developers are trying to get four floors into the 35 feet and end up asking for variances for appurtenances, he noted.

Hufford suggested that if the height limit was 32 feet, developers would know they could not get four floors in and would have a chance for more creativity with rooflines, etc.

The discussion continued at last week's meeting, with John Friedly proposing reducing the maximum height to 30 or 32 feet, agreeing with Hufford this would prevent developers from attempting to build four-story structures that require variances. This height would also permit varied rooflines instead of the flat ones now being built, Friedly told the Commission.

He also cited the controversy on the density of the Edgewater Inn, now under construction, as well as the Ryzberg Inn, scheduled to be built right across Michigan Avenue from the Edgewater.

"Maybe we should consider our ordinance with the thought of being more conservative...With the small amount of remaining land, there will be more pressures, and the Planning Commission has to be careful as to how it is to be used, in order to preserve Charlevoix's character", Friedly concluded.

Barb Fells said she heartily concurred with Friedly's sentiments and felt the Commission should work toward reducing the density and scale of buildings so they would conform with the size of Charlevoix and also preserve lake views for residents and visitors.

Alvin Ranger told the group he agreeed with many of Friedly's views but believed that away from the lake there are properties that could handle 35-foot high buildings without blocking views and bothering neighboring properties. He agreed the waterfront should be protected and it would be appropriate to put a lower cap on property near the lake, but permit higher buildings away from the lake.

City Planner Gerry Harsh told the Planning Commission that an ordinance permitting different building heights in different areas would be possible; in fact it was accepted practice in some places. He said he would check into the matter and report back at the next Planning Commission meeting.

Lake levels remain at record levels

Detroit - Lakes Michigan and Huron remained at record levels in May, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers reported recently.

The May monthly mean level was some 29 inches above the long-term average and 2 inches above the all-time monthly means high for May, which was set in 1985. Current lake levels are 61 inches above the all-time low May monthly mean set in 1964.

The elevation for Lake Michigan-Huron at the end of May was 2 inches above what it was one year ago and about ½-inch above one month ago. The end of May level of the two lakes was at 581.69 feet above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec.

For mariners, the end of May level was 51 inches above chart datum.

The Corps' six-month forecast says the lakes are expected to be above the long-term average level during the next six months. The forecast predicts that at the end of June, Lake Michigan-Huron will be about 3 inches above what they were at the end of May the lakes are expected to continue their seasonal rise into July.

At the end of November 1986, the lakes are expected to be 2 inches below what they were at the same time in 1985. The November mean would be above the long-term average for that month but 1 inch below the all-time high mean for November, which was set in 1985.

New Charlevoix House moves closer to reality

by PEG OHLE

A new "Charlevoix House" came one step closer to reality last week, when the Charlevoix County Building Authority announced it would serve as the funding vehicle for the home for young adults with minimal mental or physical impairments.

Lou Hollow, a member of the Building Authority, appeared before the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners to ask their concurrence in the matter, which he received.

Under the plan, the Building Authority will purchase the house at 209 East Garfield for $80,000 and make necessary modifications to bring it up to State Code at an estimated cost of approximately $20,000. The total cost of $100,000 will be borrowed from a financial institution at a rate not exceeding eight-and-a-half percent, with amortization of 10 years.

After the Building Authority purchases the house, it will immediately sell it to Charlevoix House on a land contract on identical terms, calling for payments sufficient to meet the amortization as well as required insurance and repairs.

Charlevoix House is operated by the Northern Michigan Health Services Board. When they announced their interest in the Garfield Avenue house this spring, they were presented with a petition with 20 signatures of neighbors objecting to the house being used as a shelter home for handicapped persons. They said it would reduce property values and pointed out that for years the Bergmann Center Workshop was located in the neighborhood.

However, when a public hearing was held to give neighbors a chance to voice their objections to Charlevoix House no one appeared to object. Instead, a number of neighbors of the present Charlevoix House on Sylvesters Avenue appeared to say they had nothing but praise for the way it was operated and the conduct of its residents.

The new Charlevoix House will replace the house at 225 Belvedere Avenue which has been rented for 10 years, but which has now been sold and is scheduled for demolition.

Charlevoix House has been a shelter home to many young adults through the years. It is limited to six persons at a time, and recently they have been supervised by a married couple with two children who give the residents a home living atmosphere.

New art gallery draws on talent from throughout nation

by DOUG TRUAX

Artists Chuck and Nancy Koucky have had their fill of art shows. For 10 years they traveled throughout the Midwest each summer, doing up to 25 shows to display Chuck's pottery and Nancy's weaving.

They have also maintained a studio-gallery at their home on M-66 north of East Jordan.

With two small children, ages 13 months and 4½ years, their thoughts started to turn toward something a little more, rooted. That train of thought soon led to the idea of a permanent gallery in Charlevoix and without much further ado the Koucky Gallery on Bridge Street was born.

THE IDEA for the gallery took hold in November and the couple was looking at locations for it by the first of the year.

Chuck's father purchased the building which previously housed Bergeon's clothing shop and the adjacent buildings on April 21 and Chuck and Nancy became renters immediately. A few days later they were gutting the building and by Saturday, May 24, the stunning new gallery was open.

The Kouckys say they were able to accomplish the transformation of the building in such a short time with a lot of help from their friends. Not only did they draw on the construction talents of longtime pals like Milan and Linda Plsek, but of the many area artists they have been associated with over the years.

The Koucky Gallery represents a mix of a strong contingent of local artists with an eclectic selection of artists from throughout the country.

It is by design. "We want to show local works of art and yet expand on it with a lot of things that are not normally shown in the area," Nancy says. "We want to maintain high quality and a wide variety."

THE KOUCKY GALLERY already includes over sixty artists, 17 of them from northern Michigan. The works range from the realistic nostalgic paintings of Charlevoix's Jim Annis to the large, bold abstracts of Marion Mackay.

The gallery, they say, reflects their own tastes and their combined judgement about the market for art in this area. "After 10 years of doing art fairs, we have seen a lot of work," Chuck says.

Other area artists included in the gallery include Russ and Sue Bolt, Meredith Krell, Walter and Peggy Midener, Jan Glass, Cara Hochhalter, Harry and Kathy Boyer, Ron and Cynthia Tscbudy, Steve Toornman, Jackie Woolf, Lynn Fisher and Susan Pacer.

The gallery owners say their tastes compliment each other. Nancy's preference is for the bright, bold abstracts, and Chuck is inclined to like the more realistic works as well. He says he is more inclined to pick out something traditional than is his wife.

WORK DISPLAYED at the gallery is not limited to the fine arts. There are numerous examples of crafts including master woodworker Tony Lydgate from California, several glass blowers, jewelers and a wood carver.

The Kouckys plan to handle the volume by displaying some of each artists work and keeping other pieces in their large inventory.

They are having no problem finding artists to fill the gallery. "We get at least one call a day from new artists," Nancy says. "We look at everything.

"Our problem is we are out of space." Saying no, they note, is very difficult.

Still there are niches in their collection they would like to fill ... someone to do contemporary basketry, a neon artist, a contemporary metal worker.

THE PAIR hopes to keep the look of the shop fresh by regularly rotating the works. "What I'm going to like about this is we can change the look of the gallery as styles change," Nancy says.

Certain artists will also be featured from time to time. This summer the gallery will have a special display of the work of two artists doing collage boxes in wood – Peggy Midener and Jean Beach. This special display will run from the end of the second week of July through Venetian weekend.

Next summer they are planning two special showings.

The work in the gallery is divided about 50-50 between items on consignment and those bought outright. The willingness of friends in the art world to give them art on consignment has been a major help in increasing the inventory of this fledgling adventure.

"Part of our good relationship with our artists is that we have been on the other side," Nancy says.

The reaction to the gallery so far has been "real, real good," Chuck comments. "Everybody is so friendly," Nancy adds. "It's really nice."

Now that the Kouckys have put the art show circuit largely behind them they are, well, getting ready for another art show ... this time as buyers. They will be attending the American Crafts Council show in W. Springfield, Mass. soon in search of new artists.

They hope, however, to keep the travel to a minimum and by the looks of the traffic in their shop the first few weeks they have been open, they should have little trouble staying busy in Charlevoix.

Luke Buck paints Charlevoix but calls open road home

by DOUG TRUAX

Charlevoix images abound in the work of Luke Buck, one of the artists featured at the new Koucky Gallery on Bridge Street.

There are watercolors of the Charlevoix pierheads, the Parkside Restaurant, The Landing, a boathouse in Ironton, an old farmhouse in Ferry Avenue...

You'd be inclined to think Luke was a native.

But in truth the only hometown the Hoosier native can claim these days is a 27-foot motor home which he and his wife, Coleen, use to travel the country, painting and exhibiting at local art fairs as they go.

The Bucks make Charles Kuralt look like an old stick in the mud.

THEY TOOK to the road three years ago when their daughter moved out on her own. Luke for many years operated a studio and art supply store in Nineveh, Ind., some 35 miles outside of Indianapolis.

With no family responsibilities, the Bucks decided it was time to act out the fantasy of many and hit the road for good.

"We felt like the world was passing us by," Buck said.

They sold their business and studio the first year and went on the road with a van and house trailer. The next year they sold their house and bought a motor home and then to the even larger motor home they have now.

THE ITINERANT LIFE is suiting the Bucks just fine. "I just love it," Coleen says. "I wouldn't live anywhere else."

The Bucks first experience with Charlevoix was three years ago, at the beginning of their odyssey, when they were accepted in the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair. Prior to arriving for that event, they ran into Chuck and Nancy Koucky at another fair and asked if they knew anything about Charlevoix. Well...

One thing led to another and the two couples became close friends. Each year the Bucks park their motor home at the Koucky's house and Luke paints local scenes for several days or weeks. Luke Buck's watercolors are also featured at the Koucky studio next to their home on M-66.

A TYPICAL WEEK for the Bucks starts with the drive to the next show on their schedule. They set up shop and Luke usually paints or photographs local scenes for three days. They do the show on the weekend and then are on the road again for the next art fair.

Despite the seemingly freewheeling schedule the Bucks are at the mercy of the weather and often don't hear of their acceptance in a show until a month or two beforehand.

They enter only juried shows: about three a month, beginning in Florida in the winter, gradually working their way north as the weather warms.

It is a life that also demands a lot of discipline, Coleen says. "It is too easy to take a day off."

The Bucks have put 12,000 miles on their motor home since last September and Luke has produced 137 watercolors. Nearly everything he paints, he sells. "Very seldom do I carry a painting for a full year," Luke says.

HE PAINTS at a table on the inside of the motor home. When he is done, Coleen sets a board across the kitchen sink and puts together the frame and glass. Voila, another painting ready for the next art show.

Buck, who was born and raised in Indianapolis, learned his painting from his artist father, Harold Buck, a traditional landscape painter who works in oils.

Luke has been in art all his life. He worked as an artist in the Army, did commercial art for a time and opened his studio in the Brown County area in 1970.

His enthusiasm for art has not waned. "It gets better every year," he says. "I like it more and more all the time."

Nor has being on the road taken its toll. "We've got the bug now," Coleen adds. The couple plans to travel to the West one day and is thinking of a trip to France in a couple of years.

They have high praise both for Charlevoix and its art show. "The little Charlevoix show is one of the most sought after among exhibitors," Luke says. "It is the best one-day show we do."

They also exhibit in the Portside Art Fair in East Jordan.

WHERE NEXT, he is asked. Let's see, Buck says, thumbing through the engagement calendar. Chicago's Old Town next weekend... Cincinnati... Manistee... St. Joseph... Grand Haven... Traverse City... East Jordan... Charlevoix... Michigan City, Ind. and then out East...

There is a lot of country out there and Buck is doing his best to paint as much of it as possible.

Belvedere readies for tourney

by Edith Gilbert

THE SCAFFOLDING has finally come down on the corner of Bridge and Antrim Street, the Villager Candies Inc. officially opened last week. The new, young owners of the building are Paul and Barbara Bandrowski, both graduates of Central Michigan University. Some of you might like to know that Barbara grew up in Cheboygan, and Paul in Milford. Both majored in business administration, met at school, were married last year, and moved into the upstairs condo in January.

The little ice cream parlor will feature a concoction called Flurry, which is made with ice cream mixed with Villager chocolate candy, or cookies or brittles, all blended together. Now if that doesn't suit your fancy, you might sample a banana split or a large ice cream soda. (Will these equal the sodas I used to sip at the Golden Pheasant in San Francisco? Those were world famous–)

Summer visitors will be pleased to know that the Villager will mail anywhere, so bring your Christmas list with you when you go. And finally, let's hope the Bandrowskis will find the time to go downhill skiing this winter, because this is the problem for those who successfully settle in this area. It's happened to the best of us.

DID YOU KNOW that if you have your dog with you in the car when you go to the drive-in window at the Charlevoix County State Bank, the teller will hand you a dog biscuit along with your deposit slip? Just ask my dog, Tyke, and he'll confirm it with a loud woof!

I STOPPED by the pro shop at the Belvedere Golf Club the other day, and had a very interesting chat with Jake White and Perry Smith. While reminiscing, they reminded me that Sam Snead liked this course so much when he played it a few years ago that he went an extra 9 holes! Tom Watson, they tell me, also enjoys playing here when he can squeeze in the time.

Old-timers know that this is the 25th consecutive year of the Michigan State Amateur Golf Tournament on the Belvedere course and that is is the 75th year of the State Tournament.

What many people don't know is that these exciting matches always include many former champions. This year, John Morgan of Birmingham will be defending his title and our local golfers, none of whom made the cut this year, will all be spectators. Too bad!

Last year was the first year players had to pre-qualify before they were eligible to play in the State tournament. The dates this year are set for June 17 to 21. And if there is no rain, the finals will be played on the 21st. Mark your calendar–it's free!

You are more than welcome to watch the fun. The crowds here in Michigan, as opposed to other states, are very small. Never more than 400-500. On Saturday and Sunday, tee-off time is at 8:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. On the final day, the outdoor award ceremony is usually held at 3:30 p.m. when the Staghorn Trophy is presented.

Bet you didn't know it's the oldest amateur trophy in the U.S., according to Jake.

A tip of the hat to the community minded Belvedere membership, who give up the course for one whole week, to bring this popular tournament right here to Charlevoix. In case you're wondering, it doesn't help the Golf Club piggy bank one bit either.

YOU MUST HAVE noticed the new sign on Belvedere Avenue, next to the Grey Gables: Maison de Belvedere!

Well, this new bed and breakfast place is owned by Jan and Gordie Meyers. It's opening this week and is already 60 percent booked. And no wonder. The large chintzy living room, filled with plants, is cozy and inviting. The high ceilinged bedrooms are bright and cherry – all freshly painted and papered. The bathrooms remodelled. And you may enjoy breakfast in the dining room, on the front proch or on the patio. What a treat.

I can remember when Charlevoix was filled with rooming houses, which in turn were filled all summer with very fancy resorters. The decline of the rooming house coincided with the advent of the motels. People wanted service and especially breakfast, which few rooming houses provided.

Now the blossoming of Bed and Breakfast places offer guests the luxury of even having breakfast in ones' robe, if one wishes, and when one is on vacation (or on rainy days, heaven forbid) this service surely meets our pampered need.

As the French say, the more things change, the more thay remain the same.

Basic dirt farmer

By Bob Clock

There is a strange dichotomy out at the city gardens, and if you think that's a new variety of string bean you had better get another seed catalog.

Here's the situation:

The city gardens are located cheek-by-jowl with the Charlevoix City Airport. The juxtaposition of the two facilities works out just fine, because the people who plan airports don't like tall buildings on runway approaches. Besides, the land is being put to a good, low-level use. At least I have never heard of an airplane crashing into a hill of cucumbers.

It so happens that most planes landing at Charlevoix use the east-west runway, which brings them in right over the city gardens. Each new arrival gives me an opportunity to look up from my grubby work in the potato patch and marvel at the world of free-wheeling aviators.

I DON'T FEEL so out-of-joint with the times when the planes are ancient Piper Cubs. But when the newer jets pass over, fully instrumented and with a fortune in computerized equipment aboard, I can't help but wonder how our two worlds – one so old and one so new – can exist only a few hundred yards apart – if only for a few seconds.

As your basic dirt farmer, I am not mechanized in the least degree. Some of my colleagues at the city gardens have gasoline-powered rototillers; but my tools consist of a spade, a hoe and a rake – implements that have not changed a great deal since the days of King Tut.

Furthermore, I don't have a garden hose long enough to reach the standpipe, so I carry buckets of water by hand. Sometimes I wish I had one of those fancy foot-powered waterwheels that Pharaoh used to irrigate his crops, but Holy Moses! A fellow can't have everything. Besides, it never hurt anyone to carry a few buckets of water a few hundred feet.

Someday, if I ever conquer my fear of theatrics, I am going to get a big earthen jug and carry water on my head, as they did in Biblical times.

IN ANY EVENT, there I stand, summer evening after summer evening, leaning on my hoe, clumps of earth clinging to my boots, sweaty brow pushed back like that of a Neanderthal man, gazing skyward as the sleek eagles of modern aviation zoom in for a landing.

Sometimes I wonder if any pilot ever looks down – like a god from Mount Olympus – and is struck by the strange dichotomy we make, he and I, in that brief moment our paths cross.

I also wonder if he ever notices whether my rows are straight. I can't tell, even from the top of my cucumber hill.

FOUNDATIONS OF FAITH
by Philip G. Schairbaum
First Congregational UCC

Recently our ninth and tenth graders were asked to write down their beliefs about the Trinity as part of their course of Confirmation. The responses showed exceptional understanding and insight into the things of faith. Here is some of what they wrote:

- God is the Father of everyone and everything.
- God has always been around and always will be.
- God is the biggest, most powerful spirit in the universe.
- God created the universe and he looks over us, but in a silent way.
- I believe God is among us. If we pray, most times the problem we have works out. But God gives you the first thought to get you on track and solves your problem. You think you solved it; well you did, but God started you.
- God creates us, protects us, loves us, and guides us. He is forgiving and fair and kind.
- God is the means by which the world will find peace, and satisfaction in the knowledge that there is always at least One who cares.
- Jesus is God's son, born of Mary, and put on earth to preach God's word.
- People could relate to Jesus, better than to God, because they could see Jesus–he was a person.
- Jesus came to bring peace to the world and to show us that there is a God, that He is divine, and that His way is best.
- Jesus came to give us a backbone for our belief in God.
- Jesus came to help us repent our sins, and to forgive and redeem us.
- Jesus died for us, and this is why we rejoice that he rose from the dead.
- His resurrection is just as important as his dying because it represents that if we let Christ into our hearts we can put away the old sinful self, let it die, and be born again, like in his resurrection.
- Jesus is still alive today. He lives everywhere in Christian hearts.
- I believe in Jesus because he believes in me.
- The Holy Spirit is one dimension of God.
- The Holy Spirit is God's spirit in us.
- The function of the Spirit is love. It brings hope and its will help our lives.
- The Holy Spirit is a being that can understand people.
- The Holy Spirit is God's way of getting into us.
- The Holy Spirit is our teacher, our comforter, and our guide.
- The Spirit affects us by making us more loving, gentle, and patient.
- The Spirit acts as a guide to holiness that helps us in our daily life.

These are the Foundations of Faith that all of us–young people and adults together–can affirm and celebrate. Three cheers for the youth in our churches who are working hard to grasp and live out their faith.

An open letter to fourth-grade children of Charlevoix Public Schools

Dear Children:

Your letters of appreciation for what you learned during your May 28 visit to the Andrew J. Blackbird Museum were so beautiful and sensitive that they almost made me cry.

Allow me to thank you for being well behaved and polite, for asking intelligent questions, for showing an enthusiastic interest in what you say and heard. This is also true for the fourth-grade class of 1985. Your community can and should be very proud of you as young representatives.

My people, our culture and our history, are very important to me and I enjoy sharing what I know with such bright youngsters as yourselves. Young people, for soon you will no longer be children, may I ask that you always keep an open mind and positive attitude toward cultures not your own. Try to look at your fellow person and his-her actions from more than one point of view, for as my people say, "You cannot know your neighbor until you have walked one full day in his-her moccasins."

May the Great Spirit walk with you all the days of your life, this is my prayer for each of you.

And children, be thankful for teachers such as Mrs. Meier, Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Smith, and Mrs. Chew for considering a trip to an Indian cultural museum an important part of your education.

With love,
Veronica A. Medicine, Curator

If you haven't already submitted your entry for the 1986 Venetian T-Shirt Design Contest now is the time to do so. The contest winner will receive a $75 cash prize, and this year's shirt will carry the official winning logo.

To enter, just submit your original design of black art work on white letter-sized paper to the Chamber by June 30. Judging will be the first week of July.

One of the services provided by local volunteers is "step-on-guide" tours of Charlevoix. The Chamber receives a lot of calls from tour bus groups from all over the state, many of which are scheduled for a Star kine cruise.

Already we have scheduled 10 tours. Shop of the Gulls owner, Jeannine Wallace, Mayor Hal Hill, and Mayfair of Charlevoix owner, Don Dannecker, have all volunteered to give these guided tours of Charlevoix. The average tour is approximately 45 minutes long and highlights the recreational facilities, the Belvedere and Chicago clubs, Memorial Bridge, the Earl Young homes, Boulder Park and other amenities in the area. Any group desiring this service, should contact the Chamber.

The 75th Annual Michigan Amateur Golf Tournament is in full swing. Thursday the "Sweet Sixteen Dinner" hosted by the Golf Association of Michigan will be held at the Grey Gables Inn. Saturday the new champion will be named. Be sure to stop out and watch the action. Plenty of free parking is provided.

Open house planned for Charles and Henrietta Weisler

Charles and Henrietta Weisler will celebrate their 50th Wedding Anniversary at the Norwood Friendship Hall from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday July 12. Family and friends are invited to attend.

The open house reception will be hosted by their four children: Martin Weisler, Sr. of East Jordan, Raymond Weisler Sr. of Charlevoix, Rosalie Elliott of Weidman and Shirley Magsig of Gaylord.

Mr. and Mrs. Weisler have lived near Norwood since 1947 when they bought the Will Alward farm. Both are now retired and have a home on Gennett Road.

Charles formerly worked as a farmer and an employee of the East Jordan Iron Works. Henrietta formerly worked as a teacher and as a Licensed Practical Nurse. Both were members of the National Grange. Charlevoix served as the Master of Barnard Grange and as County Deputy of the Grange.

Henrietta served as Lecturer of the Barnard Grange. She has been an officer of the Norwood School Board, Norwood Township Board, and of the Practical Nurses' Association. Both are members and former officers of the Norwood United Methodist Church and of the National Campers and Hikers Association.

Charles and Henrietta are enjoying their retirement with their four children, five grandsons, five granddaughters, one stepgranddaughter, five great grandsons, and five great granddaughters.

William and Jennie Zitka

William and Jennie Zitka celebrate 50th anniversary

The children and families of Norbert Nachazel (deceased) Ellsworth; Robert Nachazel, Boulder, Colorado; Edward Nachazel, Reston, Virginia; and Margie Nachazel Ewton, Denver, Colorado are inviting all relatives, friends and neighbors to attend an open house in honor of the 50th Wedding Anniversary of their parents, William and Jennie Zitka.

William and Jennie have resided in East Jordan most of their lives, living in the Bohemian Settlement until their marriage on May 10, 1936, at which time they bought a farm near Eveline Orchards and have been living there ever since.

Will and Jennie are still very active with their many friends, playing cards and traveling. They belong to St. Joseph Catholic Church and the Senior Citizens Club in East Jordan. They have 11 grandchildren and 7 great grandchildren.

The open house will be held on Sunday, July 6 from 1 to 5 p.m. at their farm at 10659 Phelps Road, East Jordan. This location is near the old Eveline Orchards between East Jordan and Charlevoix just off of M-66 highway.

Illinois leads list of states with visitors to northern Michigan

The largest percentage of nonresident overnight visitors to northwest Michigan come from the State of Illinois and the adjacent St. Louis, Missouri area.

A Family Opinion Service survey indicates that 35.4 percent of northwest Michigan tourists in 1982 were from this non-adjacent stated. The next largest number, 30 percent, were from Indiana and the Louisville, Kentucky area; followed by Ohio and the northern Kentucky area surrounding Cincinnati, 24.2 percent; and the Minnesota; Wisconsin, and Iowa area, 10.1 percent.

When asked why they chose northwest Michigan as a vacation spot, these nonresident overnight visitors replied variously: For beautiful scenery, peace and quiet, commune with nature, uncrowded, good place for water recreation, friendly people, always go there, relatives live there, lots of things to do, good population.

Down near the bottom of the list of reasons for these visitors choosing northwest Michigan for their vacation were: Night life and entertainment, good hotels and motels, good restaurants, romance, and have second home there.

It would seem, therefore, that vacationers in northwest Michigan are mostly outdoors people seeking to get away from big city influences.

Building permits issued

Fifty-three permits were issued by the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection during May, bringing the year's total up to 192.

Estimated construction costs for the new projects are $858,373, bringing the total for the year up to $5,487,101.

May permits included 10 for new houses; two of which will be built in the City of Charlevoix. Three others will be built in South Arm Township and one each in Bay Township, Chandler Township, Eveline Township, Marion Township, and Boyne City.

CHIP Counseling focuses on substance abuse in '85

by PEG OHLE

CHIP Counseling Center served 380 men, women, and children in five counties of northern Michigan during its fiscal 1984-1985 year. Of these, 280 were counseled for substance abuse, either by the person counseled or a member of his-her family.

This information and other related facts were contained in a report delivered to the County Board of Commissioners last week by Kari Walker, executive director of CHIP.

The largest number of clients for substance abuse counseling came from Charlevoix County, probably because CHIP Counseling Center maintains its headquarters in Charlevoix and Charlevoix County Courts send most of their counseling subjects to CHIP.

During the period covered, 98 Charlevoix County residents, or 35 percent of persons counseled for substance abuse, came from Charlevoix County. Figures for other counties were Emmet County, 84 clients (30 percent); Antrim County, 76 clients (27 percent); Cheboygan County, 11 clients (four percent); and Kalkaska County, eight clients (three percent).

Six percent of those counseled were men and forty percent were women. The largest number (21 percent) were in the 30 to 35 age group, but all age groups were represented, from a five-year-old suffering the consequences of an alcoholic father to senior citizens. Teenagers accounted for about 25 percent of the number.

Almost half of CHIP's clients were referred by District, Probate, or Juvenile Courts. Relatives or family members made the next largest number of referrals, followed by self-referral, schools, employers, and social service agencies of various types.

Forty-two percent of the clients were employed full time, 30 percent were unemployed and not in the work force, 15 percent were employed part time, and 12 percent were unemployed and looking for jobs.

Most of the people referred to CHIP Counseling Center (64 percent) were victims of alcohol abuse. Marijuana, used by six percent of the clients, was the only other drug specifically mentioned. They were all lumped into one category as "other", accounting for 30 percent of the abuses.

Forty percent of the costs of counseling was paid by insurance groups, including Blue Cross, 23 percent; other commercial insurance carriers, five percent; and Medicaid, 12 percent.

While CHIP spends much of its time counseling known substance abusers, it also has a program of substance abuse prevention which it is developing for all schools in the area, including the Charlevoix Middle School.

Bass anglers converge on Lake Charlevoix for tourney

Charlevoix is no stranger to boats of nearly every variety.

But last weekend Charlevoix witnessed an invasion of boats unlike its usual stock of sailing sloops and big water trollers as members of the Michigan B.A.S.S. Chapter Federation gathered in Lake Charlevoix for one of their six annual tournaments.

Sixty-two of the low-slung bass boats, with metal fleck-paint and high powered outboards, cruised the lake on Saturday and Sunday hoping to come up with some of the prize mooey offered by the B.A.S.S. chapter.

The boats, with two fishermen per boat, took off from Ferry Avenue at 6:30-7:00 a.m. each day and returned to East Park for the weigh-in at 3:15 p.m.

The bass fishermen boated 231 fish on Saturday and 138 on Sunday; nearly all of them smallmouth bass.

The biggest fish for the tournament was 4.62 pounds.

Duane Zack, president of Michigan B.A.S.S., said that all fish are kept in aerated live wells in the boats and are returned to the water alive after the weigh-in. Only one fish was brought in dead during the tournament, he said, and that cost the fisherman points.

Zack said eventual mortality of fish caught and returned to the water is no greater than 5 percent. Even during practice, he added, the tournament fishermen return nearly all their fish to the water.

Fishing rules require the use of artificial lures.

Many of the bass contest fishermen started arriving in Charlevoix two and three weeks ago to scout out the water. Several had been staying the week.

Taking first place both days of the tournament was the team of Kevin VanDam and Don Stevens. They brought in 18.10 pounds of fish on Sunday and 23.46 pound on Saturday, pocketing well over $3,000 in cash and prizes.

Stevens and VanDam, who had not ever seen Lake Charlevoix before last Thursday, said they did most of their fishing near Young State Park. Hot baits, they said, were silver rapalas and small jigs. Most of their fish were taken in three feet of water.

"Everything's been fine, for a town that hasn't ever heard of B.A.S.S. tournaments before," tournament official Andy Nowyorkas Jr. said.

Zack echoed those sentiments. "The town has treated us very nice." He said the group hopes to return in September when some 100 boats, and twice that number of fishermen, will participate.

Grey Gables take league lead

Men's Softball League

Home runs have become the norm rather than the exceptions in most games in the men's-softball league this season.

In Monday's games a total of seven round-trippers were hit. Rich's Topside Café defeated Pine Hill Nursery 12-9; Grey Gables downed Glen's Market 23-12 and Townhouse beat North Country Sanitation 10-9.

Pine Hill Nursery took advantage of the 18 hits allowed by Alex Niedzialkowski to defeat North Country Sanitation 8-7.

Ken Peebles, the winning pitcher, gave up 12 hits.

Grey Gables took over the lead with a 6-1 record. Rich's Topside Cafe and Paul Bunyan Lanes with a 5-1 record, share second place followed by Townhouse and Pine Hill Nursery (3-4), North Country Sanitation (2-4), Glen's Market (2-5) and McLelland Home Furnishings (0-7).

Yachting Notes

by A. NONY MOUSE

JUST AFTER the last column, stating the prevailing winds were SW thru NW, along came last Wednesday's Race. Strong, and right up Lake Charlevoix (from the Southeast, of course).

A messenger is some one or thing that carries a message - in sailing terms, it's the light line designed to follow the end of a halyard up through the mast, when it's necessary to replace the old halyard. It's supposed to then be used to feed the new halyard. The particular messenger this mouse used last week carried a message! It broke the afternoon of the race, saying, in effect; "You don't really want to sail tonight, do you?" We didn't.

SO WE BECAME spectators - and there were lots of special acts put on for the discriminating viewer! While a man overboard is not a subject for humor, since it all turn out okay; Kritter gets the award for the Outstanding Performance - the crewmember gets the award for Hangin In There, both while airborne and while water-borne!

Pygmalion did a "bottoms up" number that would have made My Fair Lady green with envy. Lots of torn sails, bent poles and hardware freed from its designated mounting.

On the Detroit River, it was called, in Ghettto Gab, the "Merchants Wind"; not strong enough to bring out the storm canvas but just right to bring plenty of business to the Sailmakers, Chandlers and Yards.

The top Speed Merchant might have been predicted: Traveller (and Dave, I suspect) has always liked the wind. The next best and more of a surprise; Wingnut, the little 22 from B Fleet was just 3 minutes later and more than a minute ahead of Charlie Brown with the next six all in A Fleet.

The system doesn't do as well in this air, as only the three named were within the first five minutes.

A Fleet: Traveller (1:06:23), Charlie Brown (1:09:37), Flying Machine and Plastic Fantastic (both 1:11:31), Pygmalion, Mint Julep, Columbine, Gotcha, Tigger and Kritter.

Area law enforcement officers receive national medals of valor

Five area law enforcement officers were presented with medals and certificates of merit from the National Sheriff's Association at a recent meeting of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

Sheriff George T. Lasater, his Deputies Donald Schneider and Donald Sproul, and Michigan State Police Troopers Steve Gutierrez and Mike Bottorff, were cited for their acts of bravery in helping subdue an armed man in his home near Ironton last June 22.

Responding to a telephone call, Deputies Schneider and Sproul found the man smashing windows, walls, and furnitures. In a subsequent telephone conversation with Sheriff Lasater, the man told the Sheriff he would talk to him if the Sheriff came unarmed. When the Sheriff appeared at the house unarmed, the man pointed a gun at him. After the arrival of the State Troopers and much verbal persuasion by the Sheriff, the man finally gave up his gun.

The certificates of merit commend each officer for performing "an act of outstanding personal bravery, intelligently performed, an assistance to a member of a Sheriff's Department in peril of life and safety."

Puppeteers to entertain

Bethany Lutheran Church of Charlevoix will host the Trinity Troupers, a teen group of puppeteers from Millington, Ill. on Sunday, June 22, at their 9:30 a.m. worship service. During the 10:45 a.m. Bible class, the group will present several puppet skits on substance abuse.

Organized in 1984, the group of young people have been sharing the truth and joy of the gospel through Christian plays, skits and songs, and have developed a sizable repertoire.

A light lunch will follow the program. The community is invited to attend. For more information, call 547-9446 or 547-2691. Bethany is located on Bridge Street across from McDonald's Restaurant.

Master guitarist to present concert

Robert Guthrie, Master Guitarist, will present a concert featuring his students and other professional classical guitarists on June 27, at 7:30 p.m. in the Presbyterian Church of East Jordan.

The concert, which is free, will culminate Guthrie's two-week Masterclass teaching session in East Jordan and provide an opportunity for former students from throughout the country to get together for a musical re-union.

Guthrie has studied under such guitar greats as Andres Segovia and Jesus Silva and has performed extensively throughout the world. He has also recorded for National Public Radio.

This is the third year that Guthrie has conducted Masterclasses in the area. Further information about the concert may be obtained by calling 547-6667.

CARDS OF THANKS 071

To all of you who—gave us a hug,
cried with us,
or said a prayer for us—
Thank You!!

To those of you who—brought in food, sent cards, wrote letters,
gave gifts, sent flowers,
or lent us sleeping space—
Thank You!!

You loved us and gave us strength!
We cannot begin to comprehend
how much we will miss Jeff.
When we think of the almost 25 years we shared with him
we cannot help but smile
because Jeff CELEBRATED LIFE everyday!

We are thankful for his quiet faith in God, his love for people,
his sense of humor,
his smile,
his love for nature, and his stubborn per-sistance!

We live with hope
knowing we will see Jeff again.
He is still running races only now as a messenger for Christ our Lord.

School Board reviews budget

by FRAN MARTIN

A tentative budget was approved and the recent distruptive commencement exercise discussed at length by the Charlevoix Board of Education, at its meeting Monday.

The board adopted a tentative budget of $5,023,710.

The budget will be finalized in October and at that time there will be a hearing. This budget is one we must have, but until we have an audit and know where we stand, we cannot complete it," said Vincent Olach, business manager.

The budget includes the entire cost of all phases of the operation including the Charlevoix Public Library, he said. It would be between a three and four percent increase over the 1985-86 budget.

The subject of commencement exercises was discussed at length, Supt. Gordon VanWieren said it was important that the board recognize the problem and to do something about it.

It was suggested that a meeting of parents of students be held, guidelines drawn up by a committee of students, parents and school personnel and a decision made regarding the event before next spring.

At the same meeting, the board amended the general appropriations in preparation for the annual audit. "It is more or less a matter of adjusting the budget, taking funds from one account where they weren't used and placing them in one where there was an overrun," Olach explained.

TWO DEBT RETIREMENT payments were also approved, a $107,863 payment to the National Bank of Detroit for bonds dated July 1, 1968 (for the elementary school) and the final payment on the bonds dated April 1, 1959, (the high school) in the amount of $61,381 to the First of American Bank-Detroit.

New bed and breakfast homes spring up in Charlevoix

Maison de Belvedere in 99-year-old house

Maison de Belvedere (Belvedere House) is a new bed and breakfast accommodation in Charlevoix.

Located at 306 Belvedere Avenue, next to the Grey Gables, the 99-year-old house has been completely renovated, newly carpeted, furnished with period pieces, and decorated in warm, restful colors.

Maison de Belvedere has a large common living area, a dining room, and a kitchen on the first floor; an old-fashioned porch that wraps around two sides of the house; and a cement patio surrounded by flower beds.

Guests may eat their breakfast almost anywhere – in the dining room, in the living room, on the porch, or outdoors on the patio.

There are six sleeping rooms, each with its own bath, and each distinctly decorated and color-coordinated.

One room is part of an efficiency apartment, which consists of a kitchen as well as the bedroom and bath. This apartment has twin beds but the other sleeping rooms are furnished with queen-size beds.

Two of the sleeping rooms are connecting rooms, which may be rented as a suite or separately.

Maison de Belvedere is run by Jan and Gordon Meyers. Gordon told the Courier they have been working on renovating the house since last fall. Next year they plan to remodel the basement into a recreation and exercise room.

Charlevoix Country Inn overlooks Lake Michigan

The old Victorian house at 106 West Dixon Street, which has seen many neighborhood changes throughout the years, has been the object of many changes itself during the last few months and now has a new purpose in life.

Re-named the "Charlevoix Country Inn", the house has been professionally redecorated from tip to toe and is ready to receive guests for lodging and breakfast.

The latest bed and breakfast establishment in Charlevoix has eight single bedrooms with shared baths and two apartments consisting of living room, kitchen, and bedroom with private bath. Many of the rooms have a wide-open view of Lake Michigan.

Every room is handsomely carpeted, wallpapered, and curtained in coordinating colors; and in a corner of each room there is an old-fashioned washbowl with running water. The furniture is Country Inn style, but the beds are all new to provide utmost comfort.

The hallway wallpaper of pineapple design (the symbol for "welcome") sets the theme for the whole Charlevoix Country Inn. Guests may eat their breakfast in a bright little kitchen on the second floor, in a combination sitting room and gift shop on the first floor, or on the front porch sitting in a rocking chair that once was on the porch of The Inn, a long-ago hotel that was located across Dixon Avenue from the Charlevoix Country Inn.

Owners of the Charlevoix Country Inn are David Campbell, a Charlevoix attorney, Kathy Engle, an interior decorator with Bartlett's Decorator Center, and Douglas Goulait, a high school vice-principal in Royal Oak. This summer, Mrs. Engle's daughter, Sarah, who recently graduated from the University of Michigan, will be innkeeper.

She will enter the law school at the University of Michigan in the fall.

Garden Club plants petunias

The "island" committee of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club planted colorful petunias in the island in the highway at the intersection of Petoskey and Michigan Avenues recently.

Nancy Wood heads the committee composed of Nancy Fowler, Mary Helen Riggle, Kay Ball and Keith Morris.

The island is planted with tulips which are replaced every two years. After the blossoming of the early tulips, petunias are purchased from the Project: Petunia.

The workers removed bushels of weeds and prepared the soil before planting the petunias, Wood said.

The beautification of the island is one of several such projects sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club.

Garden Club receives state, national awards

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club received two prestigious awards, a state and a national award, at the 55th annual convention of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan.

The club was awarded the "Michigan Gold Award" issued to two state clubs of more that 21 members for the best standard flower show without commercial aid.

The second award was the "National Purple Rosette Award" given for the best flower show without commercial aid.

The show for which the awards were given was the second annual standard flower show entitled "Our Town: Charlevoix the Beautiful" chaired by Derith Lane and Phyllis Block. The show, held at the Community Reformed Church in August 1985 at the time Julia Leedy was president, was judged by a panel of state judges. Because of the fine quality of the show, the club was advised to apply for an award.

A Book of Evidence which included a record of the attention given the show by the local media was one of the major requisites for the prizes and played an important role in the final decisions.

The recent convention which Mrs. Lane, now president of the club, and Mrs. Block attended as delegates, was held in Ann Arbor. The theme of the convention, which offered speakers, workshops, and demonstrations, was "M-Go-Blue: Sky and Water."

Legion hosts pizza party

The Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, and its Women's Auxiliary, sponsors of Charlevoix High School junior boys and girls to the annual June sessions of Wolverine Boys State at Michigan State University and Wolverine Girls State at Central Michigan University respectively, hosted a pizza party at the post home for both those who attended in 1985 and this year's candidates.

Joining them were the chairpersons of the selections committees, Louis McKenzie of the Legion and Nancy Wood of the Auxiliary, and their respective committees.

Summer reading program begins soon at library

The Charlevoix Public Library will again be sponsoring its popular summer reading program, Marybeth Wallick, librarian has announced.

The theme of this year's program will be "Celebrate Liberty.... Read" in observance of the 100th anniversary of the Statue of Liberty. Anne Pfuecke has volunteered to be in charge of the program, Wallick said.

The party which launches the program for all elementary school age children is scheduled for 1 p.m. Thursday, June 26. All youngsters in this age group are invited to attend and participate in this program which will be an adventure in reading.

If anyone has questions regarding the program they may call Wallick at 547-2651.

MUCC urges final push for wine cooler deposit petitions

The Michigan United Conservation Clubs is strongly urging all citizens who are distributing petitions on the wine cooler deposit issue to get the completed petitions back to MUCC state headquarters in Lansing as soon as possible to meet the early July filing deadline with the Michigan Elections Division of the Secretary of State's office, according to Executive Director Thomas L. Washington.

"Michigan residents have very little time remaining to circulate the petitions, gather the signatures and get those petitions back to MUCC for checking and tabulating," Washington acknowledged. "It's imperative that the petitions start coming back to us in large numbers so that MUCC staff can check each petition and tabulate the number of signatures."

In the first three weeks of the campaign, Michigan's largest conservation organization has distributed more than 410,000 petitions to individuals and groups in every county of the state. Statewide associations like the Michigan Interfaith Council of Alcohol Problems (MICAP), the Michigan Farm Bureau, the Michigan Environmental Council, the Audubon Society, and the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan (PIRGIM) have sent volunteers to public events around the state to gather voter signatures.

Another 110,000 petitions will be distributed with the July issue of Michigan Out-of-Doors, MUCC's monthly outdoor magazine, which will include a special appeal to petition circulators on the cover.

"Despite the fact that five wine cooler and mixed spirit deposit bills have been introduced in the Michigan Legislature, it's apparent that there will be no substantive action on these measures in the foreseeable future," Washington declared. "Unless we can secure the signature of 300,000 registered voters by July 1, our chances of including containers of wine coolers and mixed spirit beverages under our state's successful 'Bottle Bill' will simply disappear."

So far the MUCC has received petitions bearing the signature of more than 30,000 Michigan voters, or ten percent of the total needed. In addition, the hundreds of Michigan citizens have sent contributions totalling more than $5,000 to help in the drive to place the wine cooler and mixed spirit deposit issue on the ballot.

"If every person who has received a petition will simply sign their own name and send that petition back to MUCC headquarters, we will have more than enough signatures to trigger a vote on this issue in the November election," Washington observed. "Our right as citizens to cast our vote on this important conservation issued depends entirely on our willingness to get actively involved in this campaign. I'm optimistic that the people of Michigan will respond in a very positive manner."

Persons interested in obtaining petitions to put the deposit issue on the ballot are urged to call MUCC at 517-371-1041 during regular business hours.

Wine coolers littering the roadsides have caused Michigan citizens to push for their addition to the "Bottle Bill."

Coast Guard pair receives lifesaving awards

Two members of the crew of the U.S.C.G.C. Mesquite were recently presented with the prestigious Professional Police Association's Lifesaving Award by the Manitowoc (Wisc.) Professional Police Association.

The award was presented for the pair's efforts in rescuing a drowning man from the waters of the Manitowoc River on June 30, 1985, while the ship was moored at the Municipal Pier in Manitowoc during a lighthouse restoration project.

The men are Boatswain's Mate, First Class, Eric Kyvik and Health Services Technician, Third Class Grant Waldron.

The lifesaving incident occurred when Kyvik, crossing the Eighth Street Bridge in Manitowoc while returning to the ship, saw a man in the water and dived from the bridge 25 feet above the water to his rescue. Waldron, aboard the ship saw what was happening and dived in to assist.

The two crewmen and the victim were later picked up by a passing pleasure craft and taken ashore where the man was taken to the hospital via ambulance after being given artificial respiration by the pair until the ambulance arrived.

Earlier the two men had been cited by the U.S. Coast Guard for their heroism and bravery and presented with the highest honors the Coast Guard can bestow on its personnel when not involved in combat, the Coast Guard Medal.

Kyvik is a veteran of nine years in the U.S. Coast Guard and came to Charlevoix following a tour of duty at Holland. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kyvik and a native of Boulder, Colo. Waldron is a veteran of three years in the U.S. Coast Guard and prior to that time served as a U.S. Army Airborne Medic at Fort Bragg, N.D. He came to the Mesquite from the U.S. Coast Guard Academy Hospital in June 1985. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jon Waldron of Sheboygan, Wisc.

Large Castle Farms crowd draws mixed reviews

by DOUG TRUAX

The season's first rock concert at Castle Farms on Monday, June 16, brought a mixed reaction in Charlevoix.

Some residents said it was the most disorderly, poorly controlled group in the controversial history of the rock concert facility. Several, but not all, local businesses prospered during the concert and found the crowd little different from other concert groups.

The Monday night concert by ZZ Top drew a crowd of some 14,300 according to Joanne Bandoni of Charlevoix Productions, the group which runs the Castle under a lease agreement with Arthur Reibel. She said capacity for the Castle is 15,000.

The concert was not particularly disorderly as far as she was aware, Bandoni said. "Maybe there was a little more energy in that group," she added.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY Sheriff George Lasater said he would let the department's post-concert statistics speak for themselves.

One man was stabbed and hospitalized following an altercation at the Castle Monday. The alleged assailant was charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

The sheriff's report also cites five arrests for operating under the influence of liquor; two arrests on warrants; and one arrest for an open intoxicant.

In addition, there were five ambulance runs and 11 cases of property damage accidents, according to the report.

The sheriff's department issued five speeding citations, two for no motorcycle registration, one for following too closely and one for an improper turn.

The 10 sheriff's officers assigned to the concert – the entire staff – were also kept busy issuing warnings. The warned 894 people about urinating in public, a trespass violation. Another 454 were warned about urinating on Castle Farms property. The majority of the other warnings were for: consuming alcoholic beverages on a public highway (172), parking on private property (126), minors in possession of alcoholic beverages (126), disorderly or disruptive behavior (90), careless driving (12), failure to signal (11), open containers of alcohol (10) and warnings to Castle Farm security (8).

The sheriff's department received 145 citizens complains during the night of the concert.

IN ADDITION TO the full complement of sheriff's officers, the concert was policed by the entire city police force available that night (four officers) and four officers and two patrol cars from the Michigan State Police post in Petoskey.

Acting DNR director speaks out on environmental issues

Guyer summer resident here for past 14 years

The Charlevoix Courier recently had the opportunity to sit down and discuss issues with the new interim director of the Department of Natural Resources, Dr. Gordon Guyer.

In April, the state Natural Resources Commission named one of its members, Guyer, a scientist at Michigan State University, as acting director.

He replaced Ronald Skoog and was immediately ordered to find out what is wrong with the 2,700-employee department which critics say lacks direction and resolve and is suffering from serious morale problems.

One of his first acts was to appoint an "A-team" of resource experts to investigate the problems and report back to him in early July.

Guyer's appointment as interim chief was greeted with enthusiasm from nearly a quarters, including the governor's office, where Gov. Blanchard said: "He is a superb choice and I look forward to working closely with him in the difficult transition period."

Blanchard's environmental aide, David Dempsey, said, "This will restore public confidence and turn loose the (DNR) to protect the environment."

Guyer, 59, is no stranger to Charlevoix. He has owned a cottage on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix for the last 14 years. He is an avid fisherman who likes to fish on the Great Lakes for salmon and trout and was once a stream angler. He also loves to hunt turkeys.

Guyer's frequent fishing companion, from ice out in the spring to the fall salmon runs, is his wife, Norma. The couple has two children, Daniel and Dawn.

The acting DNR director was from 1973-85 first assistant, then associate dean and director of the Michigan State University, Cooperative Extension Service. In 1985 he became director of the MSU Kellogg Biological Station.

He joined the MSU faculty in 1953 and was chairman of the entomology department from 1962-73.

How has your tenure as interim director been going?

I've never had a job I didn't like, but I've enjoyed these eight weeks as much as anything I've ever done.

Have you had any major surprises in what you have learned about the DNR since taking the job?

I'd say the key features of the department are the professionals, particularly those at the field level. Almost without exception, everyone of the divisions are absolutely first rate. This has been a pleasant surprise.

I was surprised how hungry the legislature was for someone to spend more time with them. That's something I really enjoy, so I've spent nearly a third of my time over in the legislature. Their response has been tremendous.

Has the director of the DNR been bogged down in a lot of unimportant detail in the past?

Yes, I think that is where a lot of the criticism has come. It is important to look at the structure so the director has a stronger hand in setting policy and to get away from some of the less important items.

What would you do to change that?

I can only speculate until three weeks from now when the A team gets through with their work. It really wouldn't be fair to them. I've been thrilled beyond expectation with what they've done. It's the best bargain, in my estimation, the department ever got. I'm not going to make any commitments to anybody until I have all the pieces put together.

In your travels as interim director, do you find the department has some problems with the public, or that the public supports the DNR?

I find both. I've found more support than I would have anticipated. But you don't hide a bit of the overall general concern that has developed over a long period of time. Even though I understand it and I've tried to hit it head on, I've been really pleased with how many quality people have said, "You've got a whale of a bunch of good people in our area." Most of the concern is general rather than about individuals or specific programs. You can get at that. I think I know why it happened, but I think the important thing is to put that behind us and get on with it. I honestly believe we are making some progress already.

Was DNR morale as low as it was reported to be?

There was a lot of concern. The staff were frustrated. There was a disastrous overcommitment by some, almost all the way up and down the line. What happened was that during the demise of the Michigan economy, our department took more of a sacrifice than any other. At the same time, we got all this new legislation ... the wetlands bill, for example, and a number of others.

Instead of getting resources to handle these, the staff just dug in. Conservation officers are way overcommitted. You've got land resources people that are trying to carefully review permits that are way overcommitted.

What can you do to solve that?

I think you get some priority packages that are attractive to our support groups and to the legislature and the governor, rather than trying to come up with a menu that's so large and impractical that you are just not going to get the kind of support you need.

Tell us what you think some of the priorities should be?

First, expanded opportunities for inland fishing. This is primarily an priority for southern Michigan.

Second, as long as we got this unbelievable genetic material for Szechwan pheasants, I think we ought to put whatever resources with it needed to get that off to a flying start.

I think some kind of a package to revitalize our state parks. This department is really at the heart of Michigan tourism. I think it's time to get our state parks back to where they are unquestionably the best in the Midwest.

There should be some ways to improve opportunities through access sites and other ways for the metropolital area. It's important to our metropolitan friends, particularly legislators, to see some physical evidence, because that's where the votes are.

I think this is the time to look into some sort of a package to fund habitat and to encourage volunteerism. You've got Ducks Unlimited, you've got the MUCC, you've got the Conservation Foundation and you've got the Michigan Habitat Foundation and there are others.

Then you encourage more volunteers to become involved. It's a little bit like my old 4-H program...31,000 volunteers. That's why that program works. In our department people are hungry to volunteer.

That's only in the natural resources area. I'll say right here that one of the reasons there is so much pressure to split the department is that for some reason the budget interests of the natural resource area have been sadly neglected during the last few budget periods.

Our budget has been almost doubl-

Charlevoix County youth care costs are highest in state

by PEG OHLE

It cost local, state, and federal governments $758,869 last year to care for Charlevoix County's delinquent, neglected, and abused young people.

This averages out to $127 for every child and teenager in the county, the highest average for any county in the state. Wayne County, at $109, had the second highest cost.

The youth population (under 17 years) of Charlevoix County is 5,991. During fiscal year 1984-1985, 88 of these young people were served under the Child Care program of the Department of Social Services.

So, only about one-and-a-half percent of the youth population were found to be delinquent, neglected, or abused to the extent they were brought to the attention of juvenile authorities.

However, these 88 young people received 32,090 days of out-of-home care in foster homes or institutions at a cost to the public of $23.65 a day per child, for the total of $758,869. Of this amount, $312,376 came from county funds, and $446,493 came from various state and federal agencies.

These costs in Charlevoix County have risen steadily in recent years despite efforts of the County Board of Commissioners to "get to the bottom" of the child care problem. In April, 1985, the County Board invited Richard Knapp, Child Care Consultant for the Michigan Department of Social Services, to appear before them to make any suggestions he might have to alleviate the problem.

Knapp's only suggestion was, "To reduce costs you must reduce the number of days of out-of-home care". He specially noted the costs of caring for state wards, handled through the local Department of Social Services. Richard Tillen, director of the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services, replied that the costs had gone up because he could not turn down Juvenile Court orders for child care, which had increased considerably. Juvenile Officer Brad Campbell answered this statment by telling Tillen, "But you don't have to keep them as long as you do".

All this happened over a year ago. Early this month, County Commissioner Donald Smith, who is Child Care liaison person for the county, received a letter from Knapp citing the above 1984-1985 figures for child care in Charlevoix County, which represented an increase of 8,696 days of child care over 1983-1984.

"This one year increase of 8,696 days of out-of-home care is rather surprising since the various interested parties in Charlevoix County expressed a real concern over increased days of out-of-home care and increased cost when I spoke with the County Board of Commissioners on April 10, 1985", Knapp Wrote.

"(This) and the three years increase of 9,840 days of care would strongly support a conclusion that neither the court operated In-Home-Care program nor the County DSS operated Basic Grant prevention program has had any meaningful impact in keeping children in their own homes. Neither program has been successful in reaching the stated goals of reducing out-of-home days of care", he added.

The In-Home-Care program to which Knapp refers consists of a case worker under the jurisdiction of Juvenile Court who makes regular visits to families whose children have appeared in Juvenile Court for minor offenses. It was felt the case worker could work with the parents and the youthful offenders to provide counseling and other help, thus keeping offenders at home and making outside placement unnecessary.

The In-Home Care worker, Linda Mansfield, was added to the Juvenile Court staff in October, 1983.

Addington in 103rd District race

by PEG OHLE

Ellen Addington of the East Jordan-Ellsworth area, who describes herself as a "young senior citizen" in her early 60's, has announced her candidacy on the Democrat ticket for the 103rd District seat in the State House of Representatives.

Miss Addington will oppose incumbent Republican Ralph Ostling in the November General Election. Neither candidate has party opposition in the primaries.

Ostling, of Roscommon, is serving his 7th term in the legislature and is vice-chairman of the appropriations committee.

Miss Addington is seeking her first elective office, although she is a descendent of Antrim County officeholders and says she has really been a politican all her life.

A retired school teacher and musician, Miss Addington has recently spent much of her time traveling and working for world food and peace programs. She was formerly hunger coordinator of the Grand Traverse District of the United Methodist Church, for which she visited Africa and studied the church-supported projects in Senegal, Kenya, and Egypt.

This year, Miss Addington has made two trips to Nicaragua as a member of a Witness for Peace short-term team. While there, she interviewed opposition leaders and those supportive of the present government, as well as government, business, political, and religious groups. She also lived and worked Second annual St. Mary's Parish Festival in the parking lot of 1003-7 Bridge St.

Built in 1895 for E.H. Green whose name it bears, Murdick's Famous Fudge is made in what was initially a bank at the corner of Bridge and Clinton Streets. The building with the gingerbread trim is presently occupied by Coldwell Banker-Schmidt Realty. The small structure to the left was later moved to 104 Clinton St. where it houses the LeBlanc Insurance Co. The large dwelling was apparently the Green home. The Apple Tree gift shop and Cinema III are at these locations today.

Murdick's Fudge is a northern tradition

The building that houses Murdick's Famous Fudge was constructed in 1885 as a bank. During the ensuing years it has been the site of a saloon, office building, hardware store, delicatesen, a retail liquor store and since the 1950s, the fudge shop.

The original recipe for the famous fudge now made there came into being 50 miles away on Mackinac Island. Newton Jerome Murdick, looking for a way to make a living after the Grand Hotel was completed in 1887, opened what is believed to be the first fudge shop in the north on the island which was then fast becoming a thriving summer resort.

The famous candy maker first brought his fudge to Charlevoix in the mid-1920s when he brought his sons, Jerome and Jerrold, here to finish high school because the island school had only 10 grades. Their stay lasted only for two years however.

A depression and a world war later, the Murdick boys returned, Jerrold as the manager of a Michigan Liquor Control Commission wholesale and retail outlet, and Jerome with the recipe for fudge in his pocket. Together they opened a fudge shop at the site of Coldwell Banker-Schmidt Realty on Bridge St. Jerome operated the candy store and his brother helped when he could. Later the present site on Bridge Street was purchased and when he retired as manager of the liquor store, Jerrold took over the business. Jerome in the meantime, had moved on to other things.

Last spring the building underwent a face-lift, one of many through the years.

Today a third generation of Murdicks is making the fudge which still bears their name. Jeryl who joined the operation in 1965 and her brother, Gary, in 1968. Together they carry on the family business.

Just as the look of the building has changed so has the recipe for Murdick's Famous Fudge.

"Candy making isn't as easy as it looks," Jeryl said. "The product is only as good as the ingredients you use. We have experimented through the years and now have what we think is an excellent product. We use only the finest ingredients including real cream and butter.

"The process is just as important. That is Gary's job. He's worked with it so long that he knows exactly how it's done. 'Sonny' (their half-brother, Harold Lang) and I make the other candies we sell," she said.

Today Murdick's Famous Fudge offers 13 choices of fudge plus three kinds of brittle, pecan rolls, dipped chocolates of various kinds, toffee, caramels, taffy, two kinds of bark and a new one, rocky road. "The biggest trouble people have is making a choice from the side selection" Jeryl said.

The shop is open from mid-May to mid-October and again at holiday time, depending on the date of Hanukkah and remains open until the end of the year.

"We have customers from throughout the states and Canada as well as many foreign countries. Our mailing list includes names from all the states and even some overseas. At holiday time, especially, parents and friends order candy for their servicemen and women all over, even overseas. Parents tell us it give them a taste of home, Jeryl added.

The shop also offers caramel corn and popcorn. "The seagulls and the ducks are the best customers for the popcorn. That is, people buy it to feed the gulls and the mallard ducks in the park" she added with a laugh.

Area youth care costs highest in Michigan

Her 1986 annual salary is listed at $15,599.

The Basic Grant prevention program provides the services of Michael Davis, County Youth Activities Director. He spends his time running sports and other recreational programs for young people throughout the county, referring children to other agencies and organizations for the help they need, writing grants and drawing plans for recreational facilities such as beach and park areas, and operating a "hire-a-teen" employment service. Davis has been on the job since October, 1978. His 1986 salary is listed at $18,013, of which the state pays $7,500.

Early this spring, the County Board of Commissioners appointed a Youth Services Board to try to coordinate the efforts of all agencies responsible for child care in the county, to study the costs and methods of handling child care. That committee has just begun its work.

Commenting on Knapp's letter, Commissioner Smith said wearily, "I don't know what else we can do. Maybe we'll have to quit paying the bills or budget only the state average".

County Board Chairman Lee Moerland expressed the county's problem this way, "We are asked to generate money for these programs carried on by the state (Department of Social Services and Juvenile Court) and we have to pay bills that we cannot audit".

One puzzling factor about the out-of-home care provided to Charlevoix County young people is revealed in a comparison of Charlevoix County and Emmet County.

These two counties share a Juvenile Court Judge, although they do have separate Juvenile Officers, law enforcement agencies, Departments of Social Services, school systems and other socio-political units which are part of the child-care process.

Emmet County has a youth population of 6,717 as compared with Charlevoix County's 5,991. Emmet County, in the year 1984-1985, provided 11,535 days of out-of-home care for its youth, while Charlevoix County provided 32,090 days.

Somehow, the whole philosophy of child care differs one county from the other county in these adjoining communities.

The only explanation voiced for this difference in philosophy, nebulous as it may be, is that the Juvenile Officer in Charlevoix County is more aggressive in handling juvenile delinquents. One person in Charlevoix is known to have remarked, "I live in fear that my son will be picked up for jaywalking and put into the Juvenile Court system". One individual familiar with operations of both Social Services Departments believes that the Juvenile Protection division in Charlevoix County is "more on the job" than the one in Emmet County.

Be that as it may, Charlevoix County also has other child care problems. In his letter, Knapp notes that he did not receive the 1985-1986 Child Care Plan and Budget from Juvenile Court until April 21, 1986, seven months after the start of the fiscal year. This has happened before, and, as Knapp points out,

"Submission of a Plan and Budget some seven months after the start of the fiscal year provides little opportunity to work on the stated goals and objectives for the entire year".

Suspect charged in concert stabbing

A Lima, Ohio, resident, James Eugene Johnson, 31, stationed at Camp Grayling with the U.S. Army, has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon in a stabbing incident at Castle Farms recently.

He has been released to his commanding officer on a personal recognizance bond and scheduled to appear in 90th District Court at 10 a.m. Tuesday, July 1.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, Johnson stabbed a fellow serviceman, Don Travis Jones, 24, also of Camp Grayling, during a scuffle following the concert at Castle Farms. Jones was transferred from the Charlevoix Area Hospital to Munson Medical Center at Traverse City.

The men are members of a cadre of regular U.S. Army personnel stationed at Camp Grayling.

Charlevoix trucker says renegades threaten road safety

Charlevoix truck driver Barry Pfister believes the place for cowboys is on the back of a horse, not in the cab of an 18-wheeler.

Cowboys are what Pfister calls the bad truckers on the road – those who doctor up travel logs, drive too fast, harass motorists and operate unsafe vehicles.

He says they has been an influx of these renegade drives since Washington's deregulation of the trucking industry in 1980. And he is not thrilled with sharing the road with them or with the bad image they create for the many safe and responsible truckers.

Pfister's views are featured in the June issue of Michigan Living magazine, the official publication of the Automobile Club of Michigan.

The article on Pfister is Part IV of a series being done by writer Bill Kulsea for the magazine entitled "Cars and Trucks – They MUST Mix Safely." The series explores the problems trucking is causing on Michigan roads and solutions to those problems.

"Many are the pill-popping, dope-smoking types," Pfister was quoted as saying in the article. "They speed, they ignore bad brakes, ride on thin tires. They call it competition but it comes closer to catastrophe.

"You can always pick out a cowboy or jockey on the road. His shirt is dirty, his hands are dirty, his blue jeans haven't been washed in a week, and his truck looks like it should be an anchor for a boat."

The article on the Charlevoix truck driver was the result of a letter Pfister wrote to Michigan Living editor Len Barnes after Barry read the first article in the series. "I saw an injustice done with Kulsea's article," he said. "They were basically putting every truck driver into one category – illegal and unsafe."

As a member of AAA since 1967, Pfister felt the safe, responsible drivers should get equal time. As a trucker, he has logged more than one million accident-free miles in the past 16 years. He currently works for Central Transport, Inc., a private common carrier.

Barnes liked the idea and decided to give Pfister's side of the controversy. He assigned writer Kulsea to ride with Barry on part of his regular run between Charlevoix and Romulus. Kulsea boarded Pfister's Kenworth tractor-which he refers to as the Rolls Royce of Truckdom, in Lansing and made the run to Detroit and back to Lansing via Jackson.

"I left Barry with the distinct impression that his real self-interest is driving safely and driving a safe rig," Kulsea wrote.

"Pride and professionalism showed through, all the way. I had one final question before dismounting from the Kenworth tractor-cab.

"'Driving a truck for more than one million miles without an accident surely is an achievement,' I said. 'But what I don't know is how many traffic tickets you piled up over the past 16 years.'

"With a wry smile Barry replied. 'One. For noisy exhaust.'"

Pfister says he is pleased with the results of the article. It's even brought him a fair amount of renown on the road. Often, he says, another trucker will see his rig and call over on the CB, "Hey, blackbeard, read your article." To the man, their reaction has been favorable, he says. They are pleased that someone got up and had a chance to voice the concerns of the legitimate truck drivers.

The article has had an additional benefit. Recently Barry received a letter from Central Transport notifying him that he had been nominated for the 1986 Michigan Trucking Association's Driver of the Year competition. The program is designed to recognize drivers who have achieved excellence in avoiding accidents throughout their driving careers.

"With the recent publication of your article in the Michigan Living magazine and your attitude toward safety on the road, we feel you would be an excellent nominee," Betsy Fowler, safety supervisor at Central Transport, wrote.

Pfister is honored by the nomination, and he hopes the Michigan Living article will help clear the air on good truckers and bad.

The cowboys, he believes, should be limited to a one horsepower animal somewhere out on the open range.

Historical museum receives old lumber company safe

by PEG OHLE

"The mill of Hon. John Nicholls starts up today".

This single sentence news story appeared in an issue of the Charlevoix Sentinel in April, 1879.

John Nicholl's mill was located on the north side of Round Lake. Through the years it changed hands many times and eventually became a retail lumber yard, most recently called the Finn Lumber Company.

Now, demolition of the lumber company building is almost complete and soon another unit of the Edgewater Inn will occupy the space.

Charlevoix is fortunate, however, in having an original piece of John Nicholl's office equipment preserved for all to see and touch. The safe used by this pioneer merchant is starting a new life in the Charlevoix Historical Society Museum in the Harsha House at 107 State Street.

Historical Society member Bill Price reports that he and the late Bob Miles were walking past the lumber company building as it was being torn down and noticed the safe resting on its side in an open area. The society had been looking for a safe in which to keep some of its more valuable relics, including several glass photographic plates, so the existence of the old Nicholl's safe was duly noted.

Historical Society president Lou Orlowski told Jon Hisey of the Edgewater Inn of the society's need and asked if the Nicholl's safe would be available to the society. Hisey not only gave the safe to the society but had it delivered to the museum.

John Nicholl's century-plus old safe now occupies an important corner of the museum, and its many pigeon holes and brass-handled drawers are ready to protect important items of Charlevoix's past.

The safe joins many other pieces of Charlevoix area history in the museum, including the steam whistle from the old Charlevoix Steam Generating plant, an adding machine used in the frontier Post Office in 1904, a coin changer from the Charlevoix County State Bank dating back to 1886, an iron toy train found in the attic of the Harsha House, the original light from the

Opinion

Letters to the Editor:

Beaver Islander objects to tax without representation

Dear Charlevoix Co. Bd. of Commissioners:

As a retiree, I can appreciate and applaud the service supplied by the county transit system. However, as a resident of Beaver Island, without representation on your commission, and without access to the benefits of the transit system, I am disappointed by the recent action of the County Commission. Only two members, Donald Smith and Thomas Breakey, supported an amendment which would have returned our share of the tax millage for road improvement here. The present condition of our roads and sidewalks actually constitutes a hazard.

I believe a legal case can be made with respect to the non-availability of a service for which we are being taxed. I ask reconsideration of the amended proposal.

May I expect your reply soon.

U.S. tax dollars misspent in Central America

Dear Editor:

Most Americans are good and generous people—they open their hearts and their purses when there are natural disasters anywhere in the world such as earthquakes, volcanic eruptions and famines. They are also concerned about civil rights and civil liberties; many support such organizations as Amnesty International which seeks to bring an end to torture and to free religious and political prisoners of conscience whether they are being held in communist or capitalist countries.

In the USA, the media seems to do a thorough job in reporting human rights violations which take place in the USSR and the Eastern Block nations. Unfortunately, there is much less reportage in the media about what our own government is doing by proxy—supposedly all in the national interest. But what the national interest turns out to be, especially in Central and South America, is our investment and banking interests.

Even before the advent of communism, even before the Russian revolution, our Marines were being sent south of the border to quell uprisings of the peasants who were trying to better their lot and to kill off or imprison their leaders, thus safeguarding the United Fruit Co., the Rockefeller Enterprises et al.

In this day and age, there is a ready-made bogey man; all a military junta or a beseiged repressive government has to do to get help is to cry, "The communists are coming" and weapons start flowing in a mighty river to the rescue. An additional $500,000,000 for aid to El Salvador is being requested by the administration this year. There, the same type of American-made planes flown in Vietnam are saturation-bombing villagers who have not yet cried, "uncle". There, American supplied anti-personnel bombs, white phosphorous and napalm are being used by American-trained Salvadorans against other Salvadorans, this to keep the country safe for American investments.

And this very week another vote in the House of Representatives on $100,000,000 for aid to the Contras is scheduled, the Contras being mostly left-overs from the Somoza Regime who are seeking to overthrow the Sandinista government so they can return to power themselves.

This aid is being requested by the administration despite the fact that the Contras cannot account for half the funds given them the last time around and despite the fact that their mode of operation is criminal. Ordinarily they do not attempt to engage the Sandinista regulars. Instead, they sneak into the villages while the men are at work in the fields, burning the huts and schools and health clinics after torturing and killing the civilians too old, too young or too sick to get away.

Amnesty International has authenticated the practices of these so-called freedom fighters - gouged-out eyeballs, slashed off ears and genitals, broken bodies dumped near the leveled villages as a warning to those who survived the onslaught.

If the American people were fully informed as to what is being done with their tax dollars, I do not think they would return to Washington any senator or congressman who voted for such aid. Call the toll-free number of Bob Davis, 1-800-682-8382, and let him know how you feel about what is being done in Central America, indirectly in our name. Let him know that you are a taxpayer and voter of conscience!

County should act on Sheriff Lasater's Castle Farms proposal

Dear Editor:

A recent article appearing both in the News Review and Courier caught our eye, George Lasater, Charlevoix County Sheriff, has requested the Marion Township Board to consider several recommendations to better control the concerts at Castle Farms. If the usual pattern of past requests by Sheriff Lasater is followed, this is the last we will hear about restricting events that have brought upward of 15,000 people to Castle Farms on a single night during the past summers.

As taxpaying, non-voting summer residents of Charlevoix County and Marion Township, we applaud Sheriff LaSater's continuing effort to keep Charlevoix safe and thereby out of national headlines as the home of heavy metal and hard rock for northern Michigan.

The concert area has for many years seemed to be outside the law for controlled substance consumption. Fights, stabbings, rapes, drug overdoses, and fatal car accidents have often gone unreported by the local and fortunately national press. The Marion Township Board in several valiant attempts has passed ordinances that have either been ignored or overthrown by a former district judge.

Many lawsuits have been filed only to be met by counter-lawsuits that depleted the township treasury to the point that continued attempts at control seemed useless.

We taxpayers pay the costs of additional police control and protection to enable the concert promoters to make a profit without regard to their neighbor's rights. The township does not have sufficient resources to unilaterally keep Charlevoix the Beautiful safe and the community we all love. Is there real and genuine community support to control a difficult and dangerous situation?

Inner tubes can be unsafe at beach

Dear Editor:

I've never written to a newspaper before but I haven't had the need to either. Yesterday I took two of my boys to Ferry Beach and was there about a half hour when a small boy started to call for help.

This boy was sitting on a solid rubber innertube when the wind picked up and carried this little boy out into the lake. The mother tried to go after him and couldn't. I looked around and all the people just stood there and there was no lifeguard.

I got out to the boy and after reaching him I realized how cold that water was. My son was almost to the boy and was worried about me because I was further out than I had thought I was capable of going.

This so-called water toy could have cost a life and within a half hour this same child and the same toy were back in the water.

People think these toys will save a life and forget they can also take lives. Needless to say, Ferry Beach is off limits to my children. I just couldn't stand the thought of having to go into that freezing water again because of a silly toy.

Thank you for letting me get this off my chest.

Clockwise

Thus spoke Izod

By Bob Clock

Have you noticed all the people who go around talking to themselves in public?

Medical science probably has a name for the problem, but it must be a harmless affliction because most of the non-stop talkers I have encountered look fairly healthy.

However, they all have one thing in common. As soon as I approach, they start talking louder, as if they had been talking to me all along. Then as I move away, they continue mumbling to themselves.

Although age doesn't seem to be a factor, the anomaly seems to hit men more than women.

I was tooling through a Petoskey grocery store the other day when I noticed a man with long gray hair standing at the meat counter addressing a package of chicken wings. As I approached he attempted to draw me into the conversation.

"Now this looks like a dandy package of chicken wings, doesn't it?" he asked.

I agreed that the chicken wings looked appetizing.

"But that ground chuck has a lot to recommend it too, don't you think?" he persisted.

I told him the ground chuck looked even better than the chicken wings, if that were possible.

As I moved away he continued to debate the merits of the two possible purchases with himself until I was out of earshot. "Now if I fixed the chicken wings for dinner tonight, I would have enough left over for a snack on Sunday. But then again..."

I didn't wait to learn how he resolved his dilemma. But I found out at the checkout counter. He pulled into line directly behind me, still discoursing eloquently with a phantom audience. He had both chicken wings and ground chuck in his grocery cart.

I DON'T BELIEVE I talk to myself, but I do have a very disconcerting habit of speaking to dumb animals, such as the three cats who have commandeered living quarters in my home. For some reason, it hardly seems right to get up in the morning to fix their breakfast without offering them some kind of salutation and perhaps making a polite inquiry as to how well they slept.

My problem, doctor, is that I often am tempted to supply the answers.

"We slept just fine, Uncle Bob," Izod, the husky male, will say in his throaty, cat-voice. "Except when Rotunda caught a mouse. She wouldn't give me any so don't give her any breakfast. She's too fat already."

Rotunda is Izod's roly-poly sister.

Fortunately, no one else in the house is up at that hour to hear our little morning dialogue.

I also tend to address inanimate objects, a habit which drives the kids bonkers.

"Are you done yet?" I will inquire of a leg of lamb roasting in the oven.

"Not yet, Uncle Bob," the leg of lamb will answer in a bleating voice. "Just give me another 15 minutes."

I don't know why cats and dead sheep always address me as "Uncle Bob." But there a lot of things I don't understand.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kennack
Executive Director

The 1986 edition of "Charlevoix the Beautiful Visitors Guide" is hot off the press. Many thanks to the local merchants who advertised and made this publication possible. The Guide is the single most popular handout at the Chamber. Any participating business wishing to have them available in their establishment is welcome to come and pick them up at the Chamber.

It seems that some people don't appreciate the effort our local businesses have made by planting window boxes, oak barrels and the like. Vandalism has been running rampant. Certainly our youth have better things to do.

Don't forget the $75 in cash could be yours, if your entry in the Venetian T-Shirt Contest wins. Deadline is June 30.

The Chamber is seeking two responsible youths between the ages of 12-14 to be the host and hostess for the Chamber this summer. Anyone interested please contact the Chamber.

Summer solstice celebration

by Edith Gilbert

ANOTHER NEW STORE is opening on Bridge Street this week. Andy and Kathy Bultman are proud owners of the Rocking Horse Toy Company. They are both former elementary school teachers from Grand Rapids. Andy started making toys, including rocking horses, in his spare time, and this led to the Bultman's opening a summer shop during vacation. They both enjoyed the business so much, they decided to give up teaching and run the toy store on a year-round basis.

The major decision was where? The Bultman's were familiar with the Little Traverse Bay area because they cruised here on their boat. So in '81 they opened their first year-round store in Harbor Springs and four years later they opened their second store in Petoskey, and this year, Charlevoix. They have a beautiful view of Round Lake, but do they cruise between Charlevoix, Harbor Springs and Petoskey? Unfortunately not. Their boat is too slow.

You'll find a wide price range of toys, including imports such as LGB electric trains, and the largest kite selection in the north. Daughter Sara, age 8, spends a lot of time in the stores and has her own clientele, I'm told.

Please make a note, and point Grandma and Grandpa to the Rocking Horse Toy Co. on rainy days. They'll love it!

DICK AND GINA LEPMAN are again hosting the luncheon at Loeb Farms for the popular mixed doubles, tennis tournament – Racquet for the Arts. Anyone who has ever attended knows what fun this group has eyeing the "friendly" matches, slurping on watermelon, and watching the sailboats on Lake Charlevoix racing against the clouds above.

Not only is Gina an A tennis player, but I'll bet you didn't know she bicycled to Petoskey and back last week! Grandmothers ain't what they used to be, are they?

This year's tournament has a new category besides the A, B and C divisions. It's called the Centurion class. Players must be 50 and over in combination of 100 years plus. Everyone I've talked to thinks this is a neat idea. The tournament is held on Saturday, July 12. Charlevoix winners will compete against all finalists from Harbor Springs, Petoskey, Walloon, etc. on Sunday at the Little Traverse Racquet Club.

For those who are not already on the invitation mailing list, the entrance fee per couple is $35 including luncheon, tennis balls, and prizes. Call Gunnar Lundteigen at 547-2402. All proceeds go to the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

Too bad Jody Cockfield won't be able to play, but she'll be sitting in the park selling her hand painted crafts in the Hobby Craft Show that day.

THE THEME OF THIS month's show of the Off Bridge Street Artists is the celebration of the Summer Solstice. Barbara Godwin showed me the work of Steve Kendall, whose bright watercolors have captured the theme in his sunny paintings. Linda Aydlott has created an amusing Sundog and Rebecca's popular hand-painted silks glow with color, to name a few.

New in the gallery is Craig Brown, who does fine mahogany boxes with wooden hinges. Not new, is The Ewe to You. I'll explain – Luanne Henry breeds the sheep, spins the mohair, and knits the sweaters. It's like baking a cake from scratch - only more so. Luanne, my hat's off to ewe.

If you are planning to look for Barbara Godwin's wonderful, non-stick, porcelain casseroles at the Art Fair this year, you'll be disappointed. She's taking a sabbatical from all art fairs this summer and spending time with five-month-old Samuel, and recharging her creative juices. Before I left the gallery, Barbara confided that next month's theme is Splash! Guess on which Charlevoix beach she'll be looking for inspiration?

Beacons of Blessing

MEEKNESS ISN'T WEAKNESS
by Jeb Brusherd, Youth Pastor
Charlevoix Assembly of God

Matthew 5:5 Blessed are the meek for they will inherit the earth. The essence of a christian heart is meekness. But the problem of so many is that meekness is associated with weakness, and nothing could be further from the truth. Jesus was meek, but was he weak?

Let us consider a stallion in the wild, he runs free, does as he pleases. He is strong and fearless, he leads the herd and is a law unto himself, and then one day a new master captures him and begins to break his stubborn pride and will. This takes a lot of time and love, but finally the day comes when the stallion is obedient to his master's voice. Has the stallion lost any of his strength or his fearlessness?

Meekness is a yielded will unto Jesus and while in the hand of a loving Lord, there is no place to go but onward to inherit the earth. Remember Jesus asks nothing of you that he himself has not done. Jesus had meekness being worked into him when he said in the garden, "Father, let this cup pass from me, but yet not my will be done but yours," and with those words he proceeded to the cross to die for you and me.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Keie

Miller - Keie

Vera M. Miller and Jerry R. Keie exchanged marriage vows on Saturday afternoon, June 7, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix.

The bride is the grandaughter of Vera Zillmer of Charlevoix, and her bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Keie, also of Charlevoix.

Approximately 200 guests witnessed the ceremony in which the bride was given in marriage by her cousin, Warren Belding. Father Casimir Zawacki read the double-ring rites.

The bride's gown was fashioned in tea-length of ivory satin and lace. Her headpiece was a satin hat accented with satin roses and lace, and she carried a bouquet of long-stemmed pink and bridal white roses, baby's breath, and ferns.

Sherry Fiedorek served as maid of honor, and Sally Keie and Jackie Belding were bridesmaids. They wore tea-length gowns of pink satin. Krista Meggison, as flower girl, also wore a tea-length gown of pink satin.

Tracy Olmstead served as best man, with Tom Keie and James Keie assisting as groomsmen. John Fiedorek and Jerry Sladek were ushers.

Music for the ceremony was provided by organist Jeanie Lignell and St. Mary's choir.

A reception at the American Legion Hall followed the wedding ceremony. The bride and groom's friends and families helped with food preparation and decorations.

The newlyweds have postponed their wedding trip until a later date. They are now at home at 10981 Old US-31, North, Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. Tad Malpass

Towne - Malpass

Some 250 guests witnessed the marriage of Brenda M. Towne and Tad M. Malpass on June 7 at the East Jordan Presbyterian Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond G. Towne of Boyne City, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Bruce Malpass of East Jordan.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of organza with beaded silk venise motifs and a high neckline. Her veil of illusion was attached to a headpiece of silk venise lace, and she carried a bouquet of white silk carnations, pink roses, and baby's breath, with ivy.

Elizabeth Towne, sister-in-law of the bride, served as maid of honor, and Brenda Kuzmik, Kathy Mentzer, and Theresa Skop were bridesmaids. They wore candy pink gowns and pink and white carnation hairpieces. They carried bouquets of pink and white silk carnations.

Sara Malpass and Lindsey Malpass, nieces of the bridegroom, were flower girls. They wore pink gowns fashioned with white satin sashes, made by Brenda Malpass. They each carried a white wicker basket with silk flowers. Michael Mentzer, nephew of the bridegroom, served as ringbearer.

Brad Lynch served the bridegroom as best man. Tracy, Tim, and Todd Malpass, brothers of the bridegroom, were groomsmen, and Brian and Alan Towne, brothers of the bride, were ushers.

Following the marriage ceremony, the parents of the newlyweds hosted a reception at Hilton Shanty Creek in Bellaire. The rehearsal dinner, hosted by the parents of the bridegroom, was held at Stafford's One Water Street in Boyne City.

Following a wedding trip to Florida, the new Mr. and Mrs. Malpass are at home in East Jordan. She is a registered nurse at Northern Michigan Hospital, and he is employed by the East Jordan Iron Works.

Pete Green becomes oldest to win Amateur

by DOUG TRUAX

Pete Green seemed almost melancholy as he stood in a cold drizzle at the 16th green waiting for the championship trophy.

By all rights he should have been ecstatic for he had just made history on the Belvedere Golf Club.

In winning the 75th Michigan Amateur championship with a 3 and 2 victory over Greg Reynolds of Grand Blanc, Green, at 45, had become the oldest player ever to win the tournament. He had also become only the second player in history to win the title three times in three different decades.

But Green obviously had more sober thoughts on his mind and that quickly became evident after he accepted the trophy from tournament officials. "I dedicate this to Jeff Drenth, who caddied for me here for many years," he said.

Holding back tears, Green hugged his caddy and Jeff's brother, Doug Drenth. Jeff, a highly rated distance runner collapsed and died suddenly in Oregon two weeks ago at the age of 24.

Afterward in the locker room, Green remembered Jeff as a "kindred spirit" who had caddied for him from 1979, when Green won his second Amateur, through 1983. The following year, Jeff missed the Amateur because of the '84 Olympic trials in California.

"I was really heartbroken when he passed away," said Green, who attended the funeral in Charlevoix. "He was a good kid. He became a world class runner, but he was always a world class person."

GREEN SECURED his third Amateur title with an impressive spurt on the last three holes of the match – 14, 15 and 16. The tide turned on 14 with the match even. Reynolds, a 39-year-old project manager at General Motors, hit his tee shot to the right of the green and then attempted to use his putter from the fringe of the bunker. The shot sailed past the hole and stopped on the opposite fringe. He two putted from there for a bogey and the loss of the hole.

"I hit the right shot, I just hit the ball way too hard," he said. "That shot really hurt."

Green, 1-up going to 15, sensed his opening. On the tricky dogleg right, par-four hole, Green drove straight and safe to the top of the steep fairway hill at the dogleg. Reynolds narrowly missed disaster when his tee shot sailed to the right, dangerously close to the out-of-bounds mark.

Green's advantage seemed to slip away as he put his second shot in the bunker, but Reynolds, too, was off the mark and ended up in the right rough.

Then the senior golfer pulled the shot of the tournament out of his bag of tricks – a sand wedge that landed within 2 feet of the hole. He made the put for par and Reynolds bogied the hole to fall two behind.

"I didn't feel bad 'till Pete hit that sand shot on 15," Reynolds said. "That shot made me lose my concentration a little bit."

The killer instinct that Green said he lacked in losing last year's final to John Morgan was with him this year on 16. He drove safely down the fairway, then knocked an 8-iron to within 6 feet. A birdie put then won the hole and the tournament for the veteran golfer.

Wednesday Night at the Races: June 18, 1986 - otherwise known as Wednesday Night Test of Luck! Delightfully crazy breezes ranging from the pure depths of frustration of "Oh Boy, oh boy, oh boy!" Sure is great to be sliding smoothly around a parked fleet - sure sad to be parked, watching the fleet sail around you. After the crapshoot was over, it was ...

A Fleet: Pygmalion (1:44:08), Gotcha (1:48:30), Mint Julep (1:51:22), Plastic Fantastic, Flying Machine, Traveller, Columbine, Kritter and Charlie Brown.

B Fleet: Maranatha 1st by a mile - but just practicing for the Summer Series - so officially it's Bandit, Wingnut, Merry Hell and Flash.

C Fleet: Spectre (Oh Wow!), Blazen III, Tireless, Ti-Gi, Nullisecundus, Cygnus and Phoencia.

Jib and Main: Rubit (1:59:34), Canusa, Cheemaun, Sandpiper, Maaureen, Apothecary and Coolwhip.

Only the four yachts with the times shown were under two hours and Gotcha was the only one within five minutes of Miss Piggy.

Last race of the Spring Series this week (6-25) with the big (Summer) Series starting July 2.

NOW HEAR THIS - Saturday July 5, 6:30 p.m. the 40th (roughly) Annual Pig Roast and Party. Don't miss it, your only chance to make up for the Club being closed Friday night the 4th. Rush down to the Club this Friday (6-27) as the Havermans will be the hosts; 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. and any persons interested in the Club are most welcome.

Meet the Mice Night, July 11, same hours, with Josh Barnes and Gloria Norman hosting - A Nony and the Ghost Mice will be there - as long as the cat's away.

The First George LaBlance Memorial Regatta will be that same weekend. Expect a Skippers' Meeting the evening of the 11th, departure for St. James Saturday morning and return on Sunday. Lots more details next week - but All offshore Charlevoix boaters, power and sail, racing and cruising should be writing down those dates. Despite the high water levels, the Island's still fairly easy to find - but, once there, it's sooo easy to get lost! Could be the weekend of the year.

HELP! Still not getting copy on non-racing events - how about you (yes, YOU) becoming a reporter! Box 569, Charlevoix.

Addington announces candidacy with peasants in remote areas of the country.

Miss Addington's political heritage is all Republican and her only previous experience in politics was working for General Eisenhower in the Democratic stronghold 42nd ward in Chicago. Asked how she became a Democrat, she explained:

"It's been a process of change. In the last few years, I have become disenchanted with the narrow views of social problems taken by the Republicans. I don't like their stance on heavy weapons. I'm upset about their going ahead with a nerve gas program. It's unconscionable. I question their judgement in cutting social programs in deference to the military. I'm upset that poor people can't be sick and that we dump mentally ill people into the streets instead of putting them in half-way houses so they can get necessary medication.

"In the legislature, nobody seems to be willing to be counted when it comes to real issues. We have to develop a program for older people so they don't have to be institutionalized because they are infirm. If we can support wars, we should be able to help keep our older people at home.

"When they go into nursing homes, their savings are so depleted they become the new poor. A retired couple living on a pension suddenly find their savings are gone by a catastrophic illness or nursing home costs".

Miss Addington taught behavioral problem boys and girls in Detroit schools for 23 years and later worked with socially maladjusted children in Chicago. In addition, she served as a teacher consultant for the Grand Traverse Intermediate School District for five years.

Trained as a composer, conductor, and vocalist, Miss Addington presently serves as director of the choir at the Charlevoix Congregational Church and conductor of the Charlevoix Chorale and Orchestra.

In addition to her work for the cause of world peace, Miss Addington has time to serve on the board of the Charlevoix Area Hospice and is coach in a women's recreational baseball league.

Probert gets scholarship

Norman Probert, teacher at the Charlevoix Middle School, has been named the recipient of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club's annual scholarship to the Higgins Lake Environmental School operated by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Probert, who teaches health and physical education, incorporated information relating to the environment into the health phase of his classes.

"Michigan Environment: A Look at the Issues" will be the theme of the week-long seminar taught by Dr. Ben Peyton of Michigan State University. The week will feature expert speakers and field trips on Michigan topics such as Great Lakes fishery problems, endangered species, toxic substances, wetlands, oil development, solid waste, recovery and other topics related to local problems.

The seminar opened Sunday and will continue through June 27.

The scholarship is financed in part by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club. It is a continuation of the planting project done earlier at the Charlevoix Middle School by sixth-grade students who attended classes taught by Mrs. Anna Belle Webb and others.

Applications for the scholarship were screened by the Youth Group Project committee.

Gordon Guyer discusses local, state resource issues

ed in the environmental protection area, which it should have been. In the natural resource area, it has remained the same, which is a major loss.

Is the department too large to manage as one unit? Should the natural resources functions be separate from environmental protection?

I want to give er a whirl. I've made it clear that I think we should put that behind us until we're absolutely sure it can't be managed.

I think it can be managed, but it's going to take a very strong director and a very streamlined administration and some understanding of the legislatire and the governor. I was thrilled that the governor came out this weekend at MUCC extremely strong in favor of not spliting it.

There is so much advantage. You take here in Charlevoix with a questionable wetlands issue. You're not going to have just a land resource person, you're going to have probably a wildlife biologist and you're certainly going to have a fish biologist involved. If you split that you've got them in two completely separate departments. It's tough enough to get them together now.

You said earlier the department plays a critical role in tourism and yet, on the other hand, it has to protect those resources from people. Do you see a conflict there and do you think at some point we may oversell the state?

That's why the department ought to be a very active partner in the tourism situation. I think that part of our job is to maintain quality in the environment, whether it's in camping or wilderness or sand dunes. When I talk about tourism and updating our parks, I am looking at it as this agency being a very active partner in making sure that we have quality tourism. I think there are areas where expansion can be the major priority and other areas where we ought to slow down.

There is a lot of controversy over the development of condominiums in the Charlevoix area and along the lakeshore in particular. People criticize the DNR for failure to enforce the wetlands act. Do you think the wetlands act is being administered effectively by the department?

I have tried, in the time I've had, to become as informed as I can in the local area. I think it's a good example of what we've got in hundreds of other areas across the state.

I have reviewed, visited and questioned the land resource people – their priorities and decision-making process. That's probably one of the groups that is most overtaxed. They have such a backlog of decisions they have to be made. I think it's administered rather well. I would like to encourage them, if they err, to err on the safe side and that's for the sake of the environment.

I would think, for example, that even though some developers would not admit it, the greatest favor we can do is to make sure they don't utilize quality wetland. When you see high water like we're seeing now, you see a lot of development that never should have occurred.

It's unfortunate that the wetlands bill wasn't in effect before.

I'm going to watch this very carefully. I think that the wetlands bill is a good bill. I think it is one we must enforce honestly, accurately and evenly. I've indicated to the staff that I have a particular interest in this, not just here.

I think we'll look back on the wetlands legislation and realize it was a piece of legislation that was way overdue. But there will always be controversies because we've covered up wetlands for decades and now we have the responsibility to protect them. It won't please everybody.

Do you have an opinion on the Water's Edge wetland?

I've indicated to our staff that I'm anxious for them to be very professional in reviewing that particular issue, and I'll be anxious to be personally informed on what's going on. I think that's a typical example of a possible precedent-setting case.

As you know, Charlevoix water has been known to be contaminated with TCE since 1981. We hope soon to have a new water treatment plant. The governor, however, has pushed for cleanup of the groundwater even after the treatment plant is completed. Local people maintain that is going to cost a tremendous amount of money and cause a lot of disruption and do virtually no good, since there are no chemicals that can be traced as having migrated to Lake Michigan. Do you think that is a wise decision?

My feeling is that if it is practical we should always attempt to clean it up. But we also have to prioritize the state's groundwater contamination issues. This one may not be nearly as important as some other much more intense problems.

I'm not ready to say that we shouldn't continue to look at this, but it's got to be looked at in the context of all of the state issues.

The Jordan River has suffered greatly in recent years from salmon and sediment and other problems. Can the DNR finally resolve the weir issue and get the Jordan restored as a trout stream?

If we can get the right weir in the right place it will benefit East Jordan and the Jordan River. The Jordan is one of the unique spots in northern Michigan. The chemical treatment of the river for lampreys has destroyed a lot of the big mayflies. There has also been a lot of degredation from salmon. And we have to do something about the sand in that river.

We've got to sensitize our road-building people and our general public – all terrain vehicle people and everybody else. If we're going to protect our rivers across the state, we've got to stop the erosion and then get something like the sand traps.

I think you could start to see major recovery of that river very quickly.

With a weir, certainly the fishery for the people locally is going to improve, both on the lake there and inland. But it's got to be something that conservation officers can manage.

But the department has said that's a priority for some 10 years now.

I'm not sure whether we got off on the wrong foot in our public relations campaign or what, but there were enough irritated local people that you shouldn't have.

I'm a great believer in solving as many problems locally as possible. That's the way the Cooperative Extension Service has prospered over all these years. God, I wouldn't think of making local decisions. We set policy at the Lansing level, but local decisions were made by local county agents and others including advisory groups.

Do you think the DNR has to return more authority to the field staff?

Again, I'll wait till the team gets through but I personally feel you've got to have the authority out there to coordinate and expedite. That means the regional district staff have a significant amount of authority and the related responsibility.

As a lake trout lisberman, what do you think of former DNR director Dr. Howard Tanner's recent statement that the state should cut back on the planting of lake trout and brown trout because of the accumulation of toxins.

I think two things. One, if you're going to do that because of the toxic problem, then you get at the problem – the cleanup of the toxins – rather than eliminate the trout.

Second, the residues are going down rather quickly. Also, I think if we look at the last three weeks it would be a Lake Michigan disaster for our charter boat people if we didn't have lake trout fishing. The salmon have just dropped right off in the last three weeks.

Is the state going to be able to enforce the Indian fishing agreement? I really am not in a place to discuss that. I hope that it can be worked out, that we can continue to maintain progress on the original compromise.

In your own lisbing have you noticed a reduction in your catch in recent years.?

Oh, hell yes. I've kept records ever since we moved up here 14 years ago. After the first major Indian netting, the fishing dropped from about 80 fish a year – that was just weekends – to less than 15 the next two or three years. And of course the size class were just greatly reduced. Merl Keller's data (from the Great Lakes Fishery Station) indicates exactly that. His data shows that close to 80 percent of the lake trout population in these areas was decimated.

Do you stick by your statement that you are not a candidate for the permanent job of DNR director?

Yes.

Police officials reported that the concert area was not cleared until approximately 2:30 a.m.

"It was a busy night," said Charlevoix Police Chief Jack Mol. "We had a great deal of problem with people who had cars towed to gas station.

"It was a mess," he concluded. Mol said there were no major incidents in town, but the force was kept busy with crowd control, traffic and several altercations.

Many observers said parking problems were the worst ever for a concert night. The sheriff's department ordered 49 cars towed to local garages. Ron Gates of Charlevoix Shell Service hauled 33 of them. "It was much worse than any other concert," he said. "If there had been 100 wreckers in town, we wouldn't have been able to haul them all."

"They need to do something better with parking," he said. "If that was organized better, I don't think they would have half the problems."

Gates said the number of crashes was down because the traffic was so dense the cars couldn't travel fast enough to get in trouble.

"Over five years of concerts, the people feel that because they are spending money the county roads are for them," Gates added.

BUSINESS REACTION to the concert aftermath was mixed. Some bars closed before the concert let out in order to avoid drunken and unruly customers.

One bar owner expertencing her first concert night crowd was Yolanda Reinhardt of Richard's Topside Cafe. It will be her last, she said, describing the crowd as "extremely rowdy."

"All in all, I was quite disappointed with it. For the aggravation, it wasn't worth it."

Ron Weislek, owner of the Town House, had a different reaction. He was open during and after the concert and reported no significant problems, "nothing we can't handle." He compared the crowd that came in after the concert to a crowd that would go to a bar after a Detroit Tiger or Lions game. "They were a normal crowd that had a good time," he said.

"We appreciate their business and enjoy their customers before concerts as well," Weislek said. He noted that some concert goers were in town a day before the event.

Michael Greeley, owner of the Wharf Side Market, reported no problems with people. "It was a good day for me," he said.

KEN GRAY, owner of the 7-Eleven store, also found it a profitable night. Gray is a veteran of concert nights and said he plans his staffing accordingly, using up to 10 employees during the peak hours after the concert lets out.

There was no rowdiness at his business, Gray said. "Most had been drinking and were either hyper or drunk," he commented. "Some were a bit snippy and smart alecky."

"I didn't see it as different from any other crowd we have after concerts," Gray said. The police were called twice – a normal concert brings three to four calls, he reported. One incident was for shoplifting and another for disorderly conduct.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital emergency room reported four persons treated and released the night of the concert. One other person was held overnight for observation. The hospital would not release the nature of the injuries suffered by the victims.

Museum gets valuable safe north pier of the Pine River Channel, a chain link measuring device used in the early 1900's, the 1905-1906 account book of S. Orlowski & Son's grocery store, a turn-of-the-century sleigh, and a restored lamp from a 1904 Cadillac, the third automobile in Charlevoix.

All museum pieces are arranged by categories, including Navigation, Transportation, Sports, Resorts, Indian Heritage, and Fashions.

The Bob Miles collection of pictures of early Charlevoix is a museum treasure. The pictures were all collected, identified, covered by glassine, and filed in an indexed cabinet by the late Bob Miles, a founding member and benefactor of the Historical Society.

Another treasured collection is the oral history library which contains over 40 interviews in cassette form of long-time Charlevoix residents. Listening equipment is available for those seeking information from the interviews, and tapes of the interviews may be purchased.

The Charlevoix Historical Society Museum will open this Saturday, June 28, for the season. Thereafter, it will be open Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday afternoons from one to four o'clock.

Last year, 763 people visited the museum during the summer months. According to Orlowski, it has become a regular tourist attraction in Charlevoix and has done much to promote interest in local history in northern Michigan. Now that the Historical Society has finished its remodeling work of Harsha House and the museum, it is looking forward to restoring the landscaping around the building to look as it did at the turn of the century.

"We are asking for a grant under the State Commerce Department's 150-YES (Sesquicentennial) program to help us construct a period fence, plant some bushes of that era, and refurbish the lawn", Orlowski said.

Christian Science Society to hear lecturer

"Confusion, doubt, and bitterness sometimes seem to camouflage God's clear direction and guidance," says Morris Trevithick, a Christian Science lecturer scheduled to speak in Charlevoix on June 29.

The local Christian Science congregation is sponsoring this free lecture for the community at 4 p.m. at 215 Clinton Street. According to the lecture committee at the Society, the speaker, a native of New Zealand now residing in Boston, Massachusetts, has devoted many years to the practice of Christian healing.

Young students get a taste of college in summer program

by ANNE KELLY

For nearly 300 area elementary and middle school students, the first two weeks of summer vacation means not only more school but a sampling of college courses.

Sponsored by North Central Michigan College and the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, (Char-Em I.S.D.) "College For Kids" is a program for talented kids in grades three through eight. It is held for two hours each afternoon on the North Central Michigan College campus and lasts for two weeks beginning June 16.

Seventeen interesting and mind-tempting mini-courses are offered in a variety of areas from money management, to biology to photography, providing explorations into areas students may only have read about in their regular school year.

Highly motivated students are able to make a quantum leap into a curriculum as intriguing as it is varied.

"Kids in attendance are not just those identified as 'gifted' children," according to Kathy Martinchek, coordinator of Char-Em's Gifted and Talented Program. "These kids have been identified by their teachers and parents as having high interest in one of the areas offered and are able to work harder and faster than they would in regular school."

What are these "college kids" learning? A scan of the course selection gives an indication:

-ABC's and Pitter Patter with Patterson: reading and discussing books by a famous and interesting author, producing a book of their own. (Maury Cohen instructor.)

-Advanced Art: experimentation with various mediums and the elements of design (Sandy Deldon).

-Advanced Computers: programming and word processing (Ken Bartlett).

-Architectural Design: basic principles of design and drawing based on OM balsa wood model (Sue Sheets and Nancy Miller).

-Chemical Capers: Laboratory experiments and learning the scientific method (Jim Helmer).

-Costume Construction and Design: Learning procedures necessary to design and make a costume for state presentations (Jill Leestma).

-Creative Writing: writing exercises and group discussions of student writings (Tony Dunaske).

-Financially Yours: learning about banking, checking, investing and the stock market (Jerry Hawes).

Galaxy: a simulation of a future space society with its skills and problems (Carol McDonnell).

-A Glimpse Into the Future (Future Proplem Solving): based on a Future Problem Solving Problem from State competition (Roberta VaanderBreggen and Sue Sherk).

-Horsing Around: at The Black Forest Equestrian School, horsemanship, and stable management (Allison Cram).

-Inside Out: laboratory, dissecting experience (Tim Leach).

-Michigan Geology: Learning about rocks and their compositon (Betsy White).

-Outdoor Biology: study of plants and animals (Cheri Leach and Fred Kohler).

-Photography: picture taking and developing (Jerry Martinchek).

-Small Animal Care: pet care, field trips (Alice Kneipp).

-Yarn Spinning: exploring traditional stories and creating some new ones (Patti Knapp and Carol Spaulding).

College for Kids is one of several programs sponsored by Char-Em for gifted and talented youngsters throughout the year. Co-ordinating these programs in addition to providing information and resources to teachers and parents is a challenging job for Martinchek, but one she enjoys immensely.

"When I was a classroom teacher," she explained, "I always felt that the gifted child was short-changed. Some of my brightest students became drop-out statistics. I eventually became involved in OM (Olympics of the Mind) and then two years ago, had the opportunity to co-ordinate the Gifted and Talented Program for Char-Em."

Martinchek is constantly on the alert for the latest programs available in the area of gifted and talented and becomes involved in writing grants to fund programs as well as organizing conferences and workshops for parents and teachers.

College For Kids, like any successful program, doesn't just happen. People like Martinchek make it happen.

KCB plans annual meeting

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc. will hold its annual meeting on Saturday, June 28, at the 218 Bridge Street restaurant in the new pub. The Downtown Development Authority will make a presentation at the meeting which begins with a buffet breakfast at 8:30 a.m. and the business meeting at 9 a.m.

The board of directors of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc. met Thursday, June 12, and on recommendation of Mike Greeley, chairman of the recycling committee, agreed to write the state in support of adding wine coolers to the "Bottle Bill."

The KCB board also authorized Sue Fowler to update the group's 1985 list of wooden signs on Charlevoix businesses. In April of last year, KCB calculated there were 52 wooden signs in town, 26 of them put up since the sign ordinance took effect.

In other business, the board:

– Heard that two MSU students, Bonnie Beauchamp and Heather Hopkins, have concluded an inventory of the trees in Charlevoix. They were assisted by Mark Hergen of Charlevoix.

– Approved a request by the Chamber of Commerce to standardize the booth facades at the Venetian Festival.

– Asked its executive committee to come up with a recommendation for a for "period landscaping" at the Charlevoix Historical Society in honor of the late Bob Miles.

Women's Club set for annual book sale

The members of the Charlevoix Women's Club heard about the proposed Sunshine Club, a facility to care for schoolage children from the time school is dismissed until parents return home from work, at a meeting held recently at the home of Mrs. Darrell Linder.

Jan Boss, head of youth activities at the Community Reformed Church told of the need to care for young children during these hours. She said the Sunshine Club will be operated at the church from the time school is dismissed until 5:30 p.m. The fee is $1.50 per day or $5 per week. Julie Smith, a local resident, has been named as director.

At the same meeting, plans were made for the annual Book Sale, the club's chief fund-raiser. It will be held at the Charlevoix Public Library Aug. 8 and 9. Books for the sale may be left at the library during the regular hours. Lucy Witthoeft has been named general chairperson; Julia Baer is in charge of paperbacks and Nancy Wood will arrange for tables. All members will assist with the sale.

Wood reported on a recent pizza party held for candidates to Wolverine Girls' State which the club supports and Wolverine Boys State.

The club also made memorial donations to the First Congregational Church chairlift fund in memory of a former member Carolyn Rader, and to the Shrine Hospital Burn Center in memory of Robert Murray.

The next meeting will be a potluck at the Norwood home of Mrs. Murray at noon on July 15. Members are asked to bring a dish to pass and their own table service.

County asks state's help with child care costs

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners is "going to the top" in an effort to get help with its burgeoning child care load.

Last week, Board Chairman Lee Moerland sent a letter to Agnes Mansour, director of the State Department of Social Services, in which he wrote, in part:

"The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners is extremely concerned that our child care expenditures are proportionately way out of line with state-wide averages. The child care costs in this County for the fiscal year 1984-1985 amounted to $312,000, which represents 16 percent of the revenues we generate from property taxes.

"Due to the tremendous burden placed on our budget by the ever-increasing child care costs, our County is reaching the point of financial crisis. Though there certainly must be an explanation for our disproportionate costs and a way to address the problem, the Board of Commissioners has not been able to get a handle on the situation alone.

"We are asking your assistance in remedying this problem. We are being repeatedly encouraged and warned to do something about our run-away child care costs by State officials, but we are not getting the direction we need to cope with the situation. The latest letter from Mr. Knapp (Richard Knapp, Program Consultant, Child Care Resources Division, Office of Children & Youth Services, State Department of Social Services) suggests only that our State funding for the In-Care and Diversion programs will be cut, but offers no positive guidance on how to address our problem.

"What we would like from you is to send in some type of investigation team to conduct an audit or complete review of our DSS-Probate Court Programs and make recommendations that will help us with the situation. Cutting state funds to the County would appear to be a punitive response to a problem we may not be responsible for. We simply would like some assistance in determining why things are like they are in this County and suggestions as to how to alleviate this crisis."

At the same meeting of the County Board that this lettter was discussed, County Juvenile Officer Brad Campbell appeared to defend his In-Home Care Program, which is designed to keep Juvenile Court wards in their own homes rather than place them in foster care homes or institutions at great expenses.

Bringing child care figures up to date, Campbell said that during this fiscal year, which began in October,

Marion Township wants new waterfront development curbs

by DOUG TRUAX

Officials in Marion Township are currently working on revisions in the township's zoning ordinance designed to better protect lakeshore property.

The zoning changes being studied would include a lakefront setback from the water's edge of 100 feet for any residential development.

In addition, the township planning and zoning board is considering a minimum elevation of 599 feet above sea level for any building. For lakes with no established high water mark, a minumum of five feet above the existing water level would be required.

Marion Township includes frontage on Lake Charlevoix south of the Water's Edge development and also encompasses several inland lakes, including Lake 26, Adams, Skinner, Matchett, Cunningham, East and West Twin and part of Nowland.

The intent of the zoning changes, says John Frey, chairman of the Marion Township Planning and Zoning Board, is "to provide more respect for the resource and to put things in balance."

Several large condominium developments have raised the issue of lakefront zoning in other areas of Charlevoix County. A proposed development at Water's Edge in Charlevoix Township was recently the subject of mediation which provided for more controls on lakefront development.

The Marion Township zoning changes, Frey says, are among the issues the township has to address to be current with the zoning requirements of the Michigan

Villager offers taste of past

by DOUG TRUAX

Enter the new Villager Candies shop at the corner of Antrim and Bridge streets and you may feel as though you've just walked through a time warp.

The bright blue awning draws visitors into an interior reminiscent of a simpler, quieter era. Owners Paul and Barbara Bandrowski have tried to recreate the atmosphere of a simple country village in their sumptuous new confection shop.

In the front corner of the building, in full view of the pedestrian traffic, is the familiar marble-top table where Paul and his employees paddle the large bricks of fudge into shape. They offer 14 different flavors. Directly across the tile walkway is a long counter bursting with jars of candies of every description. There are 40 varieties of the original Jelly Bellies, and everything else from truffles to long strings of licorice to chocolate chunks.

Take a stroll farther along the path and you will see a gift shop on the left with boxes and assortments of candies and chocolates. Proceed and you are in an old-fashioned ice cream parlor where you can order one of the 16 flavors a Melody Farms ice cream – the rich, high butterfat variety, of course.

The Bandrowskis, both of whom graduated from Central Michigan and majored in business administration, began the renovation of the old See Building, built in 1911, just one year ago.

They first converted some deteriorating apartments upstairs into an apartment for themselves and five offices.

Big Rock shuts down during test procedure

The Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant shut down automatically from power operation at 10:22 a.m. Tuesday, company officials reported. The shutdown was initiated by the plant's Reactor Protection System.

The event did not require activation of the plant's emergency plan, Charles MacInnis, Big Rock public affairs director, said, and has no impact on public health and safety.

Early indications are that the shutdown was not caused by any failures of plant safety systems, MacInnis added. The cause of the shutdown was not known as of Tuesday afternoon, but the shutdown appears to have occurred in the course of routine testing being done on portions of the electrical sensors in the Reactor Protection System.

The testing may have created a situation where a signal to shut down the reactor was generated, causing the automatic shutdown, company officials theorized Tuesday.

Marion Township develops controls

Township Association.

Proposed changes in the zoning ordinance were the subject of a public hearing at the Marion Township hall on June 18. Frey said this was the third or fourth meeting on the subject and additional meetings would be needed before the changes are ready to submit to the township board.

Among the other changes suggested at the hearing were a prohibition on the use of boats as "dwelling units," a definition of "buildable land," a reduction in the number of units that can be built in a planned residential zone, and a limitation on the number of moored boats allowed per residence.

The proposed changes would eliminate the use of boats as dwelling units, although several people testifying at the hearing raised questions on how this would be enforced and whether boats moored on Lake Charlevoix were within the jurisdiction of the township.

The township planners are also considering limiting multi-family development to "buildable land" which would exclude property having a slope of 15 percent or greater and land classified as a wetland.

The board is also considering reducing the number of units allowed in a planned residential development from 15 per acre in the current ordinance to five per buildable acre. The minimum size for a condominium or apartment in a planned unit development would be changed from 780 square feet to 800 square feet.

The change would also require a setback of 100 feet from any commercial or industrial property – the ordinance currently allows 40 feet – making it the same as the setback from residential and agricultural property.

Also proposed is a section which states: "A maximum of two moored boats shall be permitted per dwelling unit."

The changes received a mixed reaction from those attending the June 18 hearing. Sberman Chamberlain, a partner in a land surveying firm, suggested adding a 40-foot greenbelt to the zoning ordinance. He objected to the exemption of all wetlands from the "buildable" acreage, telling the board it should recognize different types of wetlands.

Chamberlain also suggested setting the elevation limit based on the "floodplain limit line" rather than on 590 feet above sea level. He said the floodplain limit line was set by the Department of Natural Resources and is an estimate of the highest level a lake will reach under a variety of weather conditions.

County Planner Larry Sullivan told the board the issue of whether the township could control moored boats was a "grey area which probably will be settled in the courts in a couple of years." He suggested the township rewrite the change to apply to "docked boats."

Jim Keller, who said he is soon to be a resident of Marion Township, also objected to the limitation on two moored boats per residence. He said the township would "have an awful time policing it and making it stick ... If you have an unenforceable ordinance, why have it at all?"

Edith Harris -- storyteller:

A gift of imagination and a head full of tales

by AUDREY DIEBEL COLLINS

Not for her were the precision of mathematics and the rigid rules of spelling. Edith Harris had the gift of a lively imagination, and her mind was never more at home than when she let it wander through the plots and characters of a storybook.

The daughter of a nomadic civil engineer, she moved with her parents "from pillar to post and back again," carrying in her head the tales and adventures her mother continuously told.

When she wasn't listening to stories, she was reading them. And somehow, the brain that could not grasp the times tables held firmly to every word she read, every story she heard.

Today, Edith Harris's age is probably the best-kept secret in Charlevoix. One can guess, based on a deeply lined face, frail body, eyes and ears that don't work as well they once did. But ask her for story, ask her for a poem, and her mind reaches back across the decades to deliver a bit of literature that lodged there when she was a youngster.

Suddenly she is that youngster again, the blue eyes flashing, the hands animated, the voice strong, the smile bright.

Generations of Charlevoixans remember that Edith Harris – the Edith Harris who sparkles vigorously when she tells stories.

In her heyday, Edith Harris visited classrooms to tell stories and show puppet plays. She delighted students with her answer to their questions about where she kept her stories and how she remembered them:

"I always carry this bag of stories with me," she'd say, holding an imaginary tote high above her head, then pulling out the next fable to relate to her fascinated audience.

"The children just adored her," says Cara Hochhalter, a former fifth grade Charlevoix teacher who invited the storyteller to class numerous times.

"The class would quiet right down. Her whole character is so unique you just want to listen, to hear what she's going to say."

Hochhalter says it was always a treat to have the tiny woman visit her pupils.

"We're not used to seeing a person just sit down and tell stories like that.

"The thing that stands out in my memory is not the stories, but her. The personality of the teller brings out the story. And she was always so fragile. It was the most rambunctious boys who always wanted to help her."

Those rambunctious boys – now grown and working in the community – often stop her in the grocery store or on the street to let her know they remember.

Harris laments the passing of storytelling from the mainstream of life. She relates how ancient minstrels passed news in story form, and how African grandmothers carved ivory figures, each representing a story her grandchildren could request.

Once, while on a storytelling assignment in the Detroit schools, Harris met with a credibility gap when students learned she lived alone in Northern Michigan, without benefit of a television.

"Nobody believed it," she says. "I told them if I had a television and kept my nose stuck to it all day like they did, I wouldn't have any stories to give them."

Harris never married, and spent her life selling books, working for an insurance company, and caring for children. At one time she considered becoming a librarian, but, she said, "they don't pay too much in libraries, and you have to have college."

During one brief stint as a library assistant the Charlevoix native says she discovered she didn't like all the "silence" signs hung about the stacks.

"One day I took all the signs down and hung them in the board room," she laughs. "They never noticed."

She laughs too, at attempts to ferret out her age. She will tell you she retired when she got old enough, and she will admit her birthday is December 25.

"If I told them how old I am, people would say, 'Well, wouldn't you think she'd act her age!?'" she chuckles, refusing to be cajoled out of any clues that would give away her game.

She still lives alone, in a three-room apartment on Antrim Street, where she is surrounded by books and furnishings that have come through the years with her, and with her family before her. Yet it is not things she treasures.

"Other people may have had parents who gave them gold and silver," she says. "I had a mother who told me stories."

Coast Guard Wives Club becomes active again

Brenda Kyvik, president of the Charlevoix Coast Guard Wives Club, told the Courier last week that the club has been re-organized and now is ready to take an active part in community affairs.

"We intend to be community oriented and provide community service as well as foster camaraderie among Coast Guard wives", she explained.

The club presently has about 20 members, according to Mrs. Kyvik. They have done some things for the Women's Resource Center and are now buying two car seats for the Charlevoix Area Hospital to loan to parents of young children. The club will also operate a hot pretzel and juice booth at the Venetian Festival and have some garage and bake sales to add to their Glen's slips monies to build up their treasury.

Besides Mrs. Kyvik, officers of the Coast Guard Wives Club are P. J. Smart, vice-president; Valerie Ewing-Metz, secretary; Lynda Ward, treasurer; and Dawn Weschler, hospitality chairman.

Any organization wanting the Coast Guard Wives Club to help it with a project should call Mrs. Kyvik at 547-4248 or Mrs. Weschler at 547-4081.

Parish Festival has something for everyone on July 4th weekend

A tent city will rise out of the parking lot at St. Mary's Church and School, located in the 1200 block of Bridge St., to house the second annual St. Mary's Parish Festival.

The festival is scheduled to open at noon both Friday, July 4, and Saturday, July 5, and remain open until midnight both days.

There will be a Las Vegas tent, a beer tent, bingo games, Las Vegas Big Six, and a tent where area bands will provide a steady flow of music. There'll also be a chicken barbecue with Jack Malpeli serving as chef and a dunk tank where, for a small fee, you can dunk one of your "favorite" people.

Festival-goers can try their hand at a putting green and a basketball throw with Terry and Arlene Blissett showing how it's done, or visit "sweet wheel", an arcade, sample homemade pies and pastries, and much more.

"It's the kind of festival where there will be something for everyone," Dr. James Gels, co-chairpersons with Mrs. Gels and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Dreyer.

The familiar voice of Louis McKenzie will be calling for the bingo game, Patti Sitzema will be seeing that your sweet tooth is satisfied.

FIRST STATE BANK OF CHARLEVOIX

CHARLEVOIX — First State Bank of Charlevoix is among 28 Michigan banks judged to be superior in a three-month evaluation by IDC Financial Publishing Inc., Holland, Wis.

"It's good to be in the top, I tell you," said Louis J. Hollow, bank president.

Hollow said his bank doesn't subscribe to the IDC report and learned of the bank's high rating through a story in The Detroit News June 10.

The study, covering the fourth quarter of 1985, showed the quality of Michigan banks as a whole is well above the national average.

The banks were ranked on a numerical scale starting with 1 (weakest) and rising to 200 and over (strongest). First State Bank received a rating of 200.

The highest-ranked bank in the state was Peoples State Bank of Hamtramck, which scored 252. The lowest were Cass City State Bank which rated 1, and Old State Bank of Fremont, rated 2.

The ratings were based on computerized analyses of 32 types of statistics that banks file with regulatory authorities.

Hollow attributed his bank's high standing to the fact that "we have a good staff and a good town."

Castle concerts need more control

Concert promoters for the Castle Farms music facility on M-66 tell us this may be their biggest season ever.

And if the recent ZZ Top concert is any indication, it may also be the rowdiest and most expensive for the residents of Charlevoix County.

The crowd behavior before, during and after many of the concerts at Castle Farms, particularly the hard rock concerts, is an outrage. The county, Marion Township, the City of Charlevoix and especially the management of Castle Farms must come to grips with the problem.

The crowd which attended the ZZ Top concert, numbering almost 15,000, was responsible for everything from urinating on private property to massive parking violations to a stabbing and fights. The citizens of this area should not have to endure such behavior.

What can be done? For one thing, we believe the township and the county should give serious consideration to enacting several of the recent suggestions of Sheriff George T. Lasater. Among his recommendations were a security fence around both parking lots, construction of a pedestrian crossover walkway across M-66, restriction of the concerts to daylight, limits on the numbers attending the concerts, and a head tax to pay for traffic control and public safety services during the concerts.

The latter is a significant expense to the taxpayers, given the fact that the entire Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, the entire City Police force and several State Police are required to manage traffic and keep the peace during these concerts. Heaven forbid we ever need the services of the various police agencies for something other than controlling the crowd on a concert night.

People, both young and old, certainly have a right to enjoy outdoor concerts. But the mayhem and madness that infect Castle Farms during hard rock concerts is something we should not tolerate in this county.

Restaurant update

by Edith Gilbert

FIRST THEY BOUGHT a 42-foot Trojan. Then they needed a slip to keep the boat. Then they bought a condo to go with the boatslip. And then, to keep Elizabeth "Jeanie" Martin interested, they bought a building so she could open up a store, to go with the condo that goes with the slip that goes with the boat in Round Lake.

And that's how Bill and Jeanie Martin landed in Charlevoix with their five grown children, and three two-year-old grandchildren.

Elizabeth's Country Store is the charming pink building next to the post office surrounded by a white picket fence that opened last season. The trendy "country look" in case anyone doesn't know, consists of things like pine furniture, baskets, knitted afghans, heart designs and crochet work. Young married couples love it.

The building, when the Martins bought it, was occupied by a family of skunks and the plaster had fallen completely off the walls. The Martin family booted out the skunk family and they pitched in to renovate the building – one son painting the exterior and a daughter sterfeilling the interior walls.

The Martins' winter home is in Flushing, Michigan. Although petite Jeanie is a graduate nurse, the only nursing she did was at home while raising her large family. About six years ago, a friend coaxed her to enroll in a two-year course in interior design at Delta College. Now her know-how is in great demand in Charlevoix and she helps clients achieve the country look in their own home. She's never been happier.

GOOD RESTAURANT NEWS: Your favorite Weathervane restaurant is under new ownership, and in the fall you'll see many changes, including a return to its original name.

The Argonne, you'll be pleased to know, has been completely whitened and brightened. Lots of healthy greenery, and tho' the dining room looks smaller, Steve tells me they've added two tables.

Nanny's, for those of you who haven't been there lately, has glassed in the porch, which now seats 80 people - and that's become a pleasant rendezvous in town, overlooking the yacht basin.

FANTASY BUFFS will be interested to know that the newly released movie, Labyrinth, produced by George Lucas, directed by Jim Hensen, and conceptually designed by Brian Froud (rhymes with Proud) has strong links with East Jordan. How? Because author, Brian Froud is married to puppet designer, Wendy Midener Froud, who is the daughter of sculptor Walter Midener and painter Peggy Midener. Both Wendy and Brian have worked on movies for Jim Hensen for years and annually visit her parents for a little R and R.

ATTENTION NOSTALGIA BUFFS! You can now get a Jeff at Dockside Pharmacy. Served only in the summer, this Charlevoix favorite soda fountain concoction orginated when the Dockside was called Fessenden's in the 20s and 30s. It cost 50 cents in those days - today it's $3.25, but just as good as ever!

If you've never had one, this is how it's made, according to pharmacist Jim Williams. He starts by making his own marshmallow sauce, then adds a mixture of powdered Dutch imported bittersweet chocolate mixed with a special secret cream. To this he adds a pint of vanilla ice cream. The whole thing is so thick it has to be mixed by hand! Someone once got the bright idea to use a fancy electric drill with the result that the chocolate goo flew, and landed in Suzi Reis's purse.

The Jeff was named after an individual, but there seems to be several versions of exactly who this individual was. Was it the resorter, Jeff Feebleman of New Orleans? Or was it the night-watchman who used to patrol Bridge Street?

After the Jeff came the Concrete, which is a Jeff with malted milk. Confidentially, we hear that Tommy Loeb holds the record for eating TWO Concretes at a sitting! Wow...

Clockwise

Eastern sojourn

By Bob Clock

Gov. Blanchard's "Say Yes to Michigan" campaign seems to be working. At least very few Michiganians appear to be traveling outside the state.

On a recent 2,300-mile trip through the East, the Clocks seemed to be the only Michiganians on the road. Aside from a short section of highway in Ontario just east of Port Huron, we counted only three vehicles with Michigan plates — and one of those was on a motorcycle.

I really don't know what it means, since Michiganians have never had much of a reputation as home-bodies. But Michigan license plates are as scarce as free road maps in New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio and Washington D.C.

And little wonder. This old state with its miles of wilderness and picturesque lakes has to be one of the prettiest of all. True, we may not have the towering mountains of our eastern neighbors, but what we do have more than compensates for the deficiency.

THE BIGGEST surprise was that normally lush southern Maryland is bone dry and had been for weeks. Lawns are brown, the tobacco crop appears stunted and backyard gardens are limping along, even with occasional irrigation from the garden hose.

But the long drought has one backhanded advantage: The water of Chesapeake Bay is more brackish than it has been in years and some species of fish that thrive best in very salty water are returning — including the bluefish and the croaker.

Of course, the salty water also means more jellyfish — which are a nuisance to anyone who works or plays around water. Down in Maryland they call them sea nettles, since they can give you a nasty sting if you tangle with one.

ANOTHER SURPRISE is that the East is finally moving to clean up its waters. Three years ago, the Patuxent River which empties into Chesapeake Bay at Solomons, Md., was almost opaque. However new sewage treatment plants have been constructed along its banks, Maryland has started to work closely with farmers to prevent fertilizers from their fields from entering the water and the state legislature has enacted a tough anti-litter law. Offenders are slapped with a $250 fine.

As a result, the Patuxent and adjoining waterways look almost clean — not as crystalline as Lake Michigan or Lake Charlevoix, but vastly cleaner than they were in 1983.

Of course, the health of the Chesapeake Basin is important to all of us, since it is the nesting ground for so many species of waterfowl that migrate all over the eastern United States.

Chamber Chatter

1985 Venetian Queen Mary Camilleri and her court, Cheryl Hartnett, Kristin Foster and Karolyn Bearss will be participating in several local parades before the new 1986 Venetian queen and her court are named the night of July 24.

Volunteer Ed Smalley will pull the girls on the Charlevoix float in the Boyne City parade on July 4, the East Jordan Freedom Festival parade on July 5 and the Gaylord Alpenfest parade on July 19. We are proud to have such beautiful young women representing "Charlevoix the Beautiful."

On Saturday, July 12, the 18th Annual Hobby Craft Show will once again be in East Park. Hours of the event are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. All sorts of great items will be for sale; country painting and crafts, finished and unfinished wood products, handmade dolls and doll clothes, baskets, dried flowers, stained glass, pottery, jewelry, and more. Be sure to mark your calendar for this one.

The 1986 Charlevoix Directory featuring a pull-out "birds eye view" map of Charlevoix, listing participating shops, services, and businesses is now being circulated. Over 11,000 copies have been shipped to the 11 Welcome Centers throughout the state, and just about everyone stopping at the Chamber receives one. This bright two-tone purple brochure is a real information eyecatcher.

This weekend be sure to get over to the St. Mary's Parish Festival at the Catholic Church. Food, games and fun will be available for people of all ages to enjoy.

To better serve the needs of the summer people, the Chamber will open seven days a week starting this weekend and continuing through Labor Day weekend. If you wish to know more about the area, or need "rainy day" ideas for things to do, stop in at the Chamber. We are ready to serve you.

Letters to the Editor:

Beaver Island represented

Dear Editor

Referring to the letter in last week's Courier (June 25) from the Beaver Island resident, the statement was made that residents of Beaver Island were without representation on the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

Donald Smith represents all the people in the townships of St. James, Peaine, Charlevoix, Norwood, Marion and one half of Eveline Township. Donald Smith has the interest of the residents of all these townships in mind.

He presented the amendment to return funds to the two Beaver Island townships. However this proposal was turned down by the majority of the Board of Commissioners. Don will continue to work on this matter for the benefit of the townships concerned.

What a little paint will do

Dear Editor:

Miracles of miracles what a little paint will do! I think the downtown merchants have done a super job of beautifying the area. The few new businesses we have seem to have set the pace and now older businesses have followed suit. Good for you.

It is a pleasure to drive or walk through - clean, bright and happy looking. How about our trash containers? Wouldn't they look nice a little brighter, rather than "state park" green?

Anyway, thanks to all who are responsible for the new look. Its great!

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Bradley

Hater-Bradley

St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix was decorated with calla lilies and white orchids for the June 21 evening wedding of Linda M. Hater and Lawrence J. Bradley.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Hater of Charlevoix and Cincinnati, and the bridegroom is the son of Captain and Mrs. John C. Bradley of Charlevoix and Citrus Springs, Florida.

The Reverend Francis H. Niehaus of Cincinnati officiated at the ceremony, in which the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride's gown was fashioned of candlelight satin with re-embroidered Alencon lace embellished with seed pearls and featuring a six-foot train. Her illusion veil fell from a pearl starburst headpiece, and she carried a single white orchid.

Patricia A. Hater of Cincinnati, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor, and Beth Hater of Charlevoix, her sister-in-law, and Suzy McGuire and Cathy Ray of Cincinnati, and Shanna Valenzuela of Los Angeles were bridesmaids. They wore modified versions of the bride's gown and carried white orchids and cascading ivy. The attendants' gowns were fashioned by Willie Holmes of Charlevoix.

Jennifer and Kristen Hater, nieces of the bride, were flower girls, and wore dresses similar to those of the bridesmaids. Brian Hater, nephew of the bride, was ringbearer.

Steve Michael of Charlotte, North Carolina, assisted the bridegroom as best man, and Jack Sutherland, Gary Novotny, Tim Bradley, and Brian Brady were groomsmen.

Steve and Jim Hater, brothers of the bride, and Tom and John Bradley, brothers of the bridegroom, served as ushers.

Mary Mintz, harpist with the Grand Rapids Symphony, and Susan Burgess, flutist with the Symphony, provided traditional music for the marriage ceremony. Mary Ann Stephan sang "Ave Maria".

The bride's parents hosted the wedding reception aboard the Star of Charlevoix. The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at the Weathervane Inn.

The newlyweds are now on a Caribbean cruise.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Grosskopf

Breidenstein-Grosskoph

Linda Carol Breidenstein and Gerald A. Grosskopf exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, June 7, at St. Francis Xavier Church in Petoskey. Father Medard Buvala, OFM, assisted by Pastor Mike Conklin, performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Breidenstein of Boyne City and the granddaughter of Mrs. Bud Gill of Charlevoix. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Grosskopf of Petoskey.

For her wedding, the bride wore a gown of satin accented with self-fabric roses on the bodice and overskirt. The skirt extended into a chapel-length train, and the veil was attached to a headpiece of small satin rosebuds.

Nancy Dole served as maid of honor, and Val Rice, Susan Grosskopf, sister of the bridegroom, and Renae, Michelle, Brenda, and Jennifer Breidenstein, sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids. They wore cameo pink tea-length dresses with sweetheart necklines, and each carried a long-stemmed pink rose. Evelyn Meyer was flower girl and also wore a cameo pink dress. Michael Flynn served as ringbearer.

Richard Grosskopf, brother of the bridegroom, assisted as best man. Steve Grosskopf, another brother, Ray Kolinski, and Scott Arman, cousins of the bridegroom, and Kurt Puffpaff, cousin of the bride, and John Chmniak and Jeff Saari were groomsmen. Jim Edelman and Rob Musser served as ushers.

Organist Marilyn Ross and vocalist Dan Kujat provided music for the ceremony.

Mark and Dawn Peterson, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, hosted a reception at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Boyne City. The parents of the bridegroom hosted the rehearsal dinner in the parlors of the church.

Following a wedding trip to Indiana, the newlyweds are now home.

The bridegroom, an electrical engineer, is employed by Midwest International in Charlevoix, and the bride is a nurse by profession.

New candy store on Bridge Street

They then gutted the interior of the downstairs and began to construct their "village." They spared little expense. The interior glows with rich oak woodwork and brass fixtures. An intricate tin ceiling high above has been preserved and repainted. Cedar shakes and floral wallpaper also contribute to the turn of the century mood.

"It turned out a lot more beautiful than I expected," Barbara says.

Both Paul and Barbara are experienced in the candy business, having worked at a candy and fudge operation in Mackinaw City for several years. The basement of their building has been refurbished to hold a large chocolate enrobing machine -- a device used to manufacture a variety of chocolates. Eventually, they hope to go into production to sell chocolates wholesale as well as through their shop.

Villager Candies, which currently employs 10, will be open seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 11 or 11:30 p.m. Barbara says the store will be open all year, but with shorter hours and a shorter work week in the winter months.

Tourism at record setting pace

Michigan tourism spending already on a record-setting pace due to a lower inflation rate and reduced gasoline prices from last year plus increased interest in domestic travel - should be bolstered by a 6 percent rise in Fourth of July holiday business, reports AAA Michigan.

"This increase is based on a survey of major state tourism indicators," said AAA Michigan Travel Services Manager James Drury. "By the year's end, the State Travel Bureau expects tourism to pump $13.7 billion into Michigan's economy, up 9 percent from the record $12.6 billion produced in 1985."

Drury noted that July 4th is on Friday and that should prompt more holiday travelers to take extended three-day vacations. Last year, the holiday was on Thursday and many persons returned to work Friday.

The Michigan Department of Transportation estimates motorists should travel a record 810 million miles in Michigan during the 78-hour holiday, which officially begins at 6 p.m. Thursday, July 3, and ends at midnight, Sunday, July 6. Last year, an estimated 800 million miles were driven on state roads during the 102-hour July 4th holiday.

"The summer travel season was kicked off by a 7 percent increase in Memorial Day weekend business, and that upswing should continue this July 4th," said Drury, adding that a number of positive factors are influencing state tourism.

"First, motorists should find self-serve unleaded gasoline prices along main travel routes about 20 cents per gallon lower than a year ago," he noted. "In addition, the U.S. Consumer Price Index this year has a 2.7 percent inflation rate, compared to 3.6 percent at this time last year."

Drury also cited a renewed interest in domestic travel due to concern over possible terrorist activities abroad.

AAA Michigan travel routing requests are up 5 percent so far this year.

CROP walkers fight world hunger

For a new twist on a familiar project, the three cities of Charlevoix County will be joining forces to fight world hunger with a CROP walk covering on Ironton.

While CROP Walks have been held in the individual communities of Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan before, never has the effort been coordinated into a county-wide event.

Details are still being worked out but the general plan is to have CROP Walkers start out from each of the three cities on the morning of Saturday, September 13 and meet in Ironton for refreshments. The starting points for each city's troups of walkers will be placed so that each will walk a distance of a little over six miles.

Local chairpersons are Mary Glenna Malpass in East Jordan, Rev. Michael Conklin in Boyne City and Rev. Philip Schairbaum in Charlevoix. Several other individuals from all three communities have been named to the Coordinating Committee for the event.

Participants in the CROP Walk will gather contributions from sponsors with proceeds from the project going toward the battle to end world hunger. Anyone interested in helping organize this unique, three-city project may contact one of the local chairpersons for more information.

Mapping out routes to converge on Ironton for the three-city CROP Walk to be held in September are, from left, Rev. Philip Schairbaum of Charlevoix, Mary Glenna Malpass of East Jordan and Michael Conklin of Boyne City. The three are local chairpersons for the first Charlevoix County-wide walk to fight hunger.

Child care help asked

1985, out-of-home care has decreased, and "projecting the year to its conclusion, we should decrease to 28,000 days of care, a decrease of 4,000 days."

Campbell added that he believes the In-Home Care Program is quite successful and has kept over 75 percent of children it has dealt with out of care. He also pleaded for the reactivation of the Youth Diversionary Program, which would provide services to pre-delinquents.

Later last week, the County announced the hiring of Tim Calloway of Harbor Springs as a Youth Diversionary worker. He has several years of experience working with young people, including coordinating the Youth Employment and Training Program out of the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, working with Volunteers in Probation, and serving as a teacher's aide in the learning center of the Petoskey High School. He also is a professional photographer.

Members of the County Board are awaiting a reply from Ms. Mansour in the hope that she will be able to add her knowledge and prestige to the efforts already begun.

Judge upholds Peaine Township Board of Review

The Michigan Tax Commission does not have jurisdiction to review actions of a local taxing unit's Board of Review.

Judge Thomas L. Brown of Ingham County Circuit Court recently rendered this decision in the case of Peaine Township against the Michigan Tax Commission.

In November, 1984, the Tax Commission investigated the actions of the Peaine Township Board of Review and took action to correct what it said was "an illegal or fraudulent assessment role". It was necessary to do this, the Tax Commission insisted, because the Michigan Tax Tribunal had failed to correct the situation.

"Neither the defendant, nor any other body, has authority, under our laws, to usurp the function of the Tax Tribunal merely because of perceived errors or inadequacies in the performance of the Tribunal's review function", the decision concludes.

Sunshine Club picks new director, applications for fall now being accepted

Applications are now being accepted for participation in the Sunshine Club, an organization designed to provide a low cost child care after school for children of working parents, Jan Boss, youth director at the Community Reformed Church and president of the Sunshine Board of Directors, has announced.

The club will provide safe, healthy and supervised child care Boss said. It will emphasize helpful, positive adult relationships with the children and an open, accepting atmosphere where Christ's love is communicated, Boss continued.

It was also announced that Julie Smith of Charlevoix, teacher and occupational therapist, has been hired as director of the Sunshine Club.

Smith has lived in Charlevoix for 2½ years and during that time has served as substitute teacher in the Charlevoix and other area schools.

She is a graduate of Western Michigan University with a master's degree in occupational therapy. She was associated with a Children's Rehabilitation Center in Memphis, Tenn., prior to returning to Michigan where she taught in the Moline Elementary School and the Bear Lake School system.

Enrollment in the Sunshine Club will be limited to 35 children in the kindergarten through the fifth grade with priority being given to those in kindergarten through the third grade.

Attendance will be selected on an individual basis at the discretion of the director. Factors taken into consideration will include type of household (working single parent, working two-parent, etc.) financial need, child care availability, and families of present enrollees.

The Sunshine Club will be held at the Community Reformed Church. It will operate 3:30-5:30 every day that school is in session all day. Transportation to the site will be arranged. Parents must pick up their children at 5:30 p.m.

The rates will be $5 per week or $1.50 per day payable in advance.

The Sunshine Club will operate under a set of guidelines given to parents when application is made.

A program of supervised games, television viewing, snacks and other facilities will be available to those attending.

Smith said that application forms had been distributed to all local churches and are also available at the Community Reformed Church on Petoskey Avenue at Meech Street. The applications will be reviewed at the next meeting of the board of directors scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 5. Applications should be in prior to that date.

Members of the board of directors are: Boss, president; Ronald Moore, vice president; Diane Coolman, secretary-treasurer; Garrett Miller, in charge of fundraising; and Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum, Ronald Williams and Pat Carland, publicity.

Further information regarding the Sunshine Club and its purpose may be obtained by calling Boss at 547-9482.

How A Small Community Came To See The Light At The End Of The Tunnel.

A few years back, the roof practically caved in on the people of this small mining community.

The mine had been shut down. Putting half the town out of work.

And taking away a livelihood that had been a way of life here for decades.

Considering that miners all across America were struggling with all the same kind of problems, there did not seem to be even the slightest ray of hope left to the town.

Problem was, just like the miners could not afford to go much longer without work, the company could not afford to reopen the mine. Much less run it profitably enough to keep it up and running, as it had before.

But when the state of Michigan got the miners and the mining company together, people saw things in an entirely different light.

So when they figured out a way to reopen the mine, we pitched in to help figure out a way to finance it.

Today, the mine is open again.

The miners have gone back and reclaimed their jobs.

And even though there's still some hard work ahead for everyone concerned, the entire town is beginning to see a much brighter future for itself.

At First of America Bank, we take special pride in what this one small community achieved just by digging deep inside themselves for answers.

Not just because we're bankers.

But because, more importantly, we're part of the community, too.

FIRST OF AMERICA
We're Community Banks First.

Horton Bay's offbeat parade set to roll

by PEG OHLE

"Good things just don't happen; they're made to happen".

If Ben Franklin didn't say this, he should have, because it is a truism more evident than many other adages of this wise old man.

Real proof that good things just don't happen is the Horton Bay Fourth of July Parade, which will entertain several thousand northern Michigan residents and visitors again this year.

Horton Bay is just a handful of houses on the road between Charlevoix and Boyne City, and nobody knows its population because it has no boundary lines. Perhaps 50 is about right.

Then how is it possible for Horton Bay to produce a parade spectacular of 100 entries, all with original, home-grown themes and costumes? A few hard-working Bay Township residents and nearby friends make it happen.

Last February, parade co-chairmen Jon Hartwell and Kathy Roloff and Jan Eggers of the Horton Bay General Store began talking, making notes of parade jobs to be filled, and finding persons to fill them. Many of the jobs were filled by volunteers from years past; others were given to enthusiastic newcomers.

All during the spring months, Jon and Kathy met with their committee members to cover the many details of parade production:

Set the time for the parade, arrange for closing the road along the parade route, advise the Sheriff's Department of need for road patrol, order ribbons for parade entrants and winners, layout and order entry flyers to be hand-delivered throughout Bay Township, order restroom facilities, arrange for local farmers to run tractor-and-wagon taxis from both east and west barricaded areas, set up raffle for donated hand-made quilt, invite all previous parade entries to participate again, contact celebrities who live nearby or who have personal interest in the area, name parade judges, coordinate food service at the General Store and one place along the parade route, keep publicity committee regularly advised of planning progress, be sure loud-speaker system is installed on store porch, and other details, on and on.

Last week, the Horton Bay Fourth of July Parade committee held its last meeting to "wrap up" plans for the 1986 parade, titled, "We Do It Our Way". Jon's great grandfather, James Fox, and Kathy's great grandfather, Jim Dilworth, both Horton Bay pioneers, would have been proud of their "kids". Everything was in order – or about to be.

Entries will line up on the Horton Bay North Road at 12 noon. Scott and Kevin Dietze will be on hand to check each entry and assign a number for parade placement. Judges (Ken Winter, Sunny Hemingway Miller and Bill Ohle) will review the entries as they are lining up. They will be driven back and forth in a convertible by Dr. Walter Webber.

Shortly thereafter, as the parade gets ready to roll, the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road will be closed off from Pincherry Road on the west to Sumner Road on the east. Members of the Sheriff's Patrol will be on hand to direct motorists to the detour. The road will remain closed until the end of the parade.

Parade participants will proceed, in the order assigned, east from Horton Bay Road North along the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road to the Bay Township Hall, where the parade will disband. As they pass the General Store, they will be identified over the loud-speaker system by Elmer Braun, whose voice was trained for volume when he served as top executive in the foundry division of General Motors. Parade entries will also be video-taped as they pass the store. The Harmeling Brothers musical group will provide entertainment from the store porch before the parade begins.

Persons who have viewed other Horton Bay Fourth of July Parades know the type of entries it draws: Funny, noisy, original, ageless, patriotic, non-political, non-commercial, and all in good taste. Some of this year's drawing cards are:

The Farmer's Wife and Three Blind Mice, Bonnie & Clyde Shoot-Out, Nuclear Queen and Her Court, Horton Bay Unicorn Polo Team, Horton Bay's Evil Knievel, Krista Knight's Marching Strings (last year's winners), Bill Stevens and his 1926 Allis Chalmers' tractor, Barnard Grange Hall Square Dancers, Terrorism Incorporated (a so-called Banana Republic group), Bag Man and Bag Woman, Sean Ryan (the precocious singing cowboy), Petitioners to Make Horton Bay the 51st State, Boyne City Barbershoppers, Jelly Roll Blues, and many more, including horses and riders, horses and buggies, ponies and buggies, covered wagons, bicycles, roller skaters, antique cars, and clowns, all adding up to 100 or more.

Long-time area residents will remember Carl Charon, Boyne City High School football great who later played with the Buffalo Bills. He will be back in town to do a TV commercial spoof with Norm Cash of baseball fame, who has a summer home in the area. Another sports celebrity participating will be Jimmie Paul, world lightweight boxing champion.

But perhaps the most noted celebrity on hand will not be in the parade. As noted above, one of the judges will be Sunny Hemingway Miller, sister of the late Ernest Hemingway, who spent much of her youth in the Horton Bay area, as did her famous brother.

Floral shop opens on south side

"Country Blossom" is the name of a new floral and antique shop on the south side of town.

Charlevoix native Sue Smith has put her love of flowers and old things to work in building and furnishing an old-fashioned cottage that serves as her shop.

Sue says that four years of experience working for other florists increased her love of flowers and other outdoor things and broadened her natural artistic talents. "I'm going to do everything myself", she explained. "All my customers will have my personal attention".

Country Blossom is located one-quarter mile past the airport on the first road to the right. Signs show the way to the shop. Country Blossom specializes in arrangements of fresh and everlasting flowers and Sue will create bouquets for all types of weddings.

Right now, she is busy getting ready to display her talents at the Charlevoix Hobby Show. She will also decorate one of the homes in the Charlevoix Home Tour.

Sue Smith plants some flowers outside her new Country Blossom shop.

Submarine vets complete convention

A memorial at the monument honoring the U.S.S. Escolar, one of the 52 American submarines lost during World War II climaxed the annual three-day convention of the Michigan Chapter of U.S. Submarine Veterans of World War II held at the Weathervane Terrace over the weekend.

Officiating at the service were Thomas Lampley of Ravenna, past commander, and Joseph Shindorf of Belding, chaplain of the Michigan chapter.

Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson of Grand Rapids, Gold Star parents, whose son, J.G. Johnson, Mo. M.M.3-c, was a member of the crew of the Escolar which was lost on its first patrol. Two other sons and their wives accompanied the couple.

Each of the 52 states was assigned a memorial to a submarine following the organization of the U.S. Submarine Veterans of World War II. Charlevoix was selected as the site of the Michigan's Chapter's vessel, the Escolar.

Forty-five members of the Michigan chapter met in Charlevoix for the convention. At the business meeting held Saturday, Everett Houk of Garden City was elected commander to succeed Lampley. George Konen, Jr., of Kalkaska was named vice commander and Bell John Brooks of Southfield, secretary-treasurer.

The slate of officers of the group's auxiliary were re-elected. They are: Vivian Vallas of Temperance, president; Gloria Simpson of Temperance, vice president; Frances Cross of Grand Rapids, secretary; and Maxine Gallagher of Maple Rapids, treasurer.

The organization voted to return to Charlevoix for its 1987 convention.

The convention opened with a round of golf and a potluck supper Friday evening; business meetings for both organizations Saturday afternoon, a banquet attended by 75 members and guests at Duffy's Saturday night and the memorial service on Sunday.

Capt. David McClintock, U.S. Navy (Ret.) of Marquette was a guest at the convention. While in the U.S. Navy, he was closely associated with the submarine service.

Benjamin S. Gill, assisted by Mrs. Gill, was convention host and made all local arrangements.

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on July 21, 1986, at 7:30 o'clock p.m. at Charlevoix High School the Board of Education of Charlevoix Public Schools will hold a public hearing to consider the levying in 1986 of an additional proposed millage rate of .30825 mills for operating purposes pursuant to Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982.

The Board of Education has the complete authority to establish that 26.10 mills be levied in 1986 from within its present authorized millage rate. The additional proposed millage rate would increase revenues for operating purposes from ad valorem property tax levies in 1986, by one and twenty-one hundreths per cent (1.20).

The increase restores the millage rate to the amount authorized by the voters on June 9, 1986.

The purpose of the hearing is to receive testimony and discuss the levy of an additional millage rate. Not less than seven (7) days following the public hearing the Board of Education may approve the levy of all or any portion of the proposed additional millage rate.

This notice is given by order of the Board of Education.

Northern Great Lakes beach sites closed to protect piping plovers

Outdoor goers bound for this state's northern beaches along lakes Michigan and Superior including a section of Beaver Island, are urged to heed closure signs being posted to protect endangered piping plovers on their sandy-gravel nesting sites during the birds' crucial summer season for rearing young.

The off-limits order, issued recently by the Department of Natural Resources, is one of several management measures taken this year to safeguard the beleaguered little shorebirds whose numbers in Michigan were down to 19 breeding pairs in 1985. Only 10 young plovers were fledged from last summer's small nesting population.

Growing concern over the birds' scant numbers was underscored early in 1986 when the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service designated the piping plover as a federal endangered species in the Great Lakes region. Although Michigan's population is down to a precious few, its northern beach areas account for most of the piping plovers which nest in this part of the country.

Under the DNR's order, which remains in effect through August 15, state wildlife biologists are putting up "Unlawful to Enter" signs along small sections of public Great Lakes beachlands pinpointed by surveys as active nesting sites for piping plovers.

This summer's posting effort results largely from field work carried out in 1985 under the Nongame Wildlife Fund, which identified these key areas.

The new closure covers the Beaver Island Wildlife Research Area in northern Lake Michigan.

Also on the northern Lake Michigan front, the posted sites include state-owned lands Waugoshance Point, in Wilderness State Park, plus Lake Michigan uplands known as Sturgeon Bay, and the Cathead Bay sector of Leelanau State Park.

Besides being closed to the public, the Waugoshance Point area is also off limit to dogs. When left to run free, dogs pose a major threat to the nesting success of piping plovers for forcing parent birds off their nests or away from their young. The same problems are stirred up by the use of off-the-road vehicles which also come under these restrictions.

Federal authorities have matched the spirit and purpose of the DNR restriction by barring public entry to a portion of North Manitou Island within the Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore.

Along the eastern shoreline of Lake Superior, the protective measure applies to public lands within Lake Superior, and Mackinaw state forests.

For their nesting habitat, the attractive shorebirds favor sandy-gravel beaches near the water's edge, which during the summer are heavily used by recreationists for sunbathing, picnicking, and other outdoor activities. Even in normal years, this combination of factors places the birds under a good deal of people pressures.

In recent years, this "squeeze" on the birds has intensified as Great Lakes water levels have risen to all-time highs to significantly reduce their available nesting territory. The current closures anticipate that those levels may hit new high-water marks in 1986 to increase the potential loss of nests and young.

At the Waugoshance Point area, the DNR has hired a summer work-naturalist under the Nongame Wildlife Fund top watch over three nesting pairs of plovers and to guard them against human intrusions.

KCB elects new board

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc., elected new board members and officers at its annual meeting Saturday, June 28.

Elected to the board were Dave Knight, Dave Strawbridge and Jean Hater, for two-year terms, and Rusty Coolman for a one-year term.

Re-elected as officers were Bruce MacArthur, president, and Vel Kammerman treasurer. New officers are Don Dannecker, vice president, and Doris Lundteigen, secretary.

Dr. Jeff Porter presented the Downtown Development Authority recommendations for downtown Charlevoix to the over 40 people attending the meeting.

Sue Fowler reported on an update of businesses that have complied with the Charlevoix sign ordinance. Forty-two businesses have erected quality hand-carved signs since the ordinance took effect four years ago, she said. An additional 13 businesses had wooden signs when the ordinance took effect.

Fowler noted that 10 wooden signs were in place at other establishments including Pine River Place, the Charlevoix Historical Museum, the Charlevoix Area Hospital and several condominiums. She said the favorable trend in signs was also evidenced by the removal of two non-complying signs recently and the 14 attractive canopies in town.

Watershed Council initiates wetlands stewardship program

Gail Gruenwald, wetland program coordinator for the Watershed Council, examines a typical northern Michigan wetland.

The Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council has begun a new program - the Wetland Stewardship Program - which promotes protection of Northern Michigan's wetlands through voluntary agreements with private landowners.

"The program is designed to educate landowners about the importance and need for wetland protection and to encourage them to protect their wetlands," said Gail Gruenwald, wetland program coordinator for the Watershed Council.

"The Watershed Council believes that landowners who recognize the importance of their wetland property will support protection of wetlands regionwide. That is our hope," Gruenwald added.

Private wetland owners can become stewards by signing nonbinding, non-contractual agreements which state that the landowner will not drain, dredge, fill or in any way destroy their wetland. Wetland stewards receive a certificate of appreciation for participation in the program, as well as the satisfaction and pride which comes from knowing they have helped protect Michigan's wetlands.

In addition, the Watershed Council will provide assistance to the wetland stewards regarding land management and advice on other protection measures.

"I think this is one of the Watershed Council's most exciting new programs," said Carol Magee, the Watershed Council Executive Director. "We have enrolled one wetland steward in this first month of the program, and we hope to enroll many more in the months to come."

There is a great need for the Wetland Stewardship Program in this area, according to the Watershed Council. Small wetlands, especially those on lake frontage, are being filled and drained for housing at a rapid pace. "We want to slow that pace by encouraging landowners to protect their wetlands," Gruenwald commented.

"Wetlands provide this area with important values, such as fish and wildlife habitat, water purification, shoreline stabilization, flood damage prevention, among others. The Watershed Council's Wetland Stewardship Program will help to protect these wetland values for our community in the years to come."

The idea for the stewardship program came from the Michigan Natural Areas Registry, which is a program of The Nature Conservancy in Lansing. The Registry targets unusual natural communities and habitats for rare, threatened or endangered plants and animals. "Our program is similar in operation, but we have targeted all wetlands, not just the most significant," states Gruenwald.

In addition to non-binding stewardship agreements, there are several options available to private landowners to permanently protect wetlands. "The Watershed Council can provide basic information on such protection devices as conservation easements, donations, donations with a reserved life estate, bargain sales, etc.," stated Gruenwald. "We can also refer interested landowners to a land trust or conservancy, such as Northern Michigan's Little Traverse Conservancy, for assistance regarding implementing land protection mechanisms."

Please contact the Watershed Council at (616) 347-1181 if you own wetland property and are interested in becoming a wetland steward.

DNR reviews environmental site assessment program

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources is undertaking a review of its Site Assessment System model which is used to prioritize environmental contamination sites in Michigan.

The DNR extensive review and possible revision of the system will be done by a technical review committee which will include representatives of the general public.

In addition, members of the public are encouraged to comment on the existing model which may be obtained by contacting the Department at: Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Groundwater Quality Division, attention SAS Review Process, P.O. Box 30028, Lansing, 48909.

Marybeth Wallich, Charlevoix librarian, displays a cake which reads "Celebrate liberty ... read" prior to last week's kickoff party for the summer reading program. Shown with Wallich are some of the children who signed up for the program and enjoyed the cake and Disney movies.

Solid waste training planned

The Michigan State University Cooperation Extension Service (CES) will offer a series of training programs around the state to inform community leaders about solid waste disposal options.

The training sessions, offered through Extension's Natural Resources and Public Policy Programs, will begin in the spring of 1987. They are being underwritten through a $30,000 contract with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources Clean Michigan Fund.

The CES will conduct eight training sessions in the state, including two in the Upper Peninsula. Dates and locations are to be determined.

"Our goal is to provide a statewide education and assistance program for handling what is rapidly becoming a serious environmental and economic problem in many communities," says Cynthia Fridgen, MSU Extension program leader for solid and hazardous waste management.

The training sessions are intended for local government officials, private industry representatives and civic leaders. They will provide information about solid waste composting, recycling and incineration programs.

Participants will receive trainer's manuals, implementation guides and promotional materials. Extension is also developing curriculum and audio-visual materials for use at the local level.

The Extension program is one of several Clean Michigan Fund projects aimed at increasing solid waste recycling and composting at the community level.

Details about the Extension training sessions can be obtained by contacting Fridgen or Cathy Chown at (517) 353-0288.

Attorney General asks to enter Hayes lawsuit

by PEG OHLE

Attorney General Frank J. Kelley has filed a petition to appear in the State Court of Appeals hearing in the case of Fox & Associates against Hayes Township, to file an amicus curiae brief on the part of the People of the State of Michigan.

Amicus curiae is described as a person who assists a court in some matter of law. Attorney General Kelley's petition was filed through Assistant Attorney General Thomas J. Emery, who is in charge of Natural Resources and Military Affairs matters in his office. Among other duties, Emery is charged with the public trust of protecting the State's natural resources, including riparian rights to navigable waters.

Fox & Associates vs. Hayes Township has been in the courts for over a year. It concerns the right of Hayes Township, through its zoning ordinance, to regulate the number of boats which may be kept at moorings, slips, or docks on the waters and shoreline of Lake Charlevoix, and to limit the use of the waters and shoreline of the lake by non-riparians.

Fox, who owns 338 acres of property with 2,800 feet of frontage on Lake Charlevoix in Hayes Township, is seeking to build 126 condominium units with 56 boat slips on his property. However, the Hayes Township zoning ordinance permits only one living unit with lake access and one boat slip for each 100 feet of lake frontage in the type of development Fox plans. Therefore, with 2,800 feet of shoreline, Fox's development would be limited to 28 living units with lake access and docking for 28 boats.

Last January, Cheboygan Circuit Court Judge Robert C. Livo, in a preliminary motion, ruled that the Township Zoning Act does authorize townships to zone lakeshore density and lake access.

In May of this year, Fox & Associates asked to appeal the ruling in the Court of Appeals and requested that Judge Livo proceed with the full trial in Circuit Court. Fox and his attorneys are now awaiting leave to appeal and have asked for immediate consideration of the case.

Seberon Litzenburger of Petoskey, one of Fox's attorneys, says he considers Attorney General Kelley's request to enter the case a plus for their side. He notes that Kelley wrote the opinion on which Fox's case is based:

Opinion No. 6070, dated May 25, 1982, signed by Kelley as Attorney General, reads, "It is my opinion, therefore, that a township may not, by ordinance, require riparian owners to first obtain a township permit before granting easements, rights-of-way, or licenses to non-riparian owners across riparian lands for purposes of obtaining access to natural watercourses".

William R. McTaggart of Boyne City, and attorney for Hayes Township, told the Courier he did not want to comment on the case at this time, especially since there is no assurance it will be appealed.

Lake residents call for tighter land use controls

by PEG OHLE

Some 31 percent of property owners on or near Lake Charlevoix who were recently surveyed believe the water quality of the lake has deteriorated in recent years. And to help protect the lake from further deterioration, they favor greater land use restrictions around the lake.

This latter statement is probably the most noteworthy information to be gleaned from the Lake Charlevoix Attitude Survey conducted by the County Planning Commission and the Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Committee, according to Extension Director Rod Cortright, who worked on the survey.

The Altitude Survey reflects the opinions of 1,414 full-time and part-time residents of the cities of Charlevoix, East Jordan, and Boyne City, as well as the townships of Charlevoix, Hayes, Bay, Evangeline, Wilson, Eveline, South Arm, and Marion. The 1,414 returned questionnaires represent 48 percent of the 2,900 sent out last fall.

While those surveyed are not overly concerned about present water quality (39 percent consider it "good" and 12 percent consider it "very good"), most of them believe that people-oriented factors such as septic systems, lawn fertilizers, boating, disturbance of wetlands, and single and multiple family dwellings are having negative effects on Lake Charlevoix water.

These negative factors could be improved, survey respondents believe, by uniform setback-greenbelt requirements for the entire shore of Lake Charlevoix, as well as rivers, creeks, and streams in the county; uniform setback-greenbelts from wetlands that do not border Lake Charlevoix; a single zoning ordinance to regulate land use within the Lake Charlevoix watershed; a single ordinance to regulate the use of the water in Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix; more holding tank pumpout facilities; more fish cleaning stations; and other similar environmental tools.

Last weekend's holiday activities included the inimitable Horton Bay parade (above) which clearly proves that Horton Bay residents do, indeed, do it their way.

Also on tap for the weekend was the annual St. Mary's Parish Festival (right) where Bill Dreyer may just have had the coolest, if not the dryest, seat in town. Festival organizers said the event was again a big success.

Police put brakes on Bridge Street speeders

by DOUG TRUAX

Police Chief Jack Mol told city council Monday his department is responding to recent complaints about speeders and reckless drivers on south Bridge Street by setting speed traps and issuing an increasing number of citations.

He said that between June 23 and July 2 city police issued 69 traffic tickets in the area. They wrote another 72 in Charlevoix over the July Fourth holiday, most of them on Bridge Street and Petoskey Avenue.

Angry residents and businessmen of the south Bridge Street area appeared before council at a working session two weeks ago and demanded something be done to curb the speeders. The group presented a petition with 50 signatures and called on the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department to step in to help with the problem.

In a memorandum to City Manager Michael Wiesner, Chief Mol said, "Officers of this department have been instructed to spend as much time as complaints allow, enforcing traffic laws in this area."

Mol said the sheriff's department had lent the city police a radar unit because the city's was broken.

RON GATES, operator of the Shell service station on Bridge Street, told council the recent police actions "were a good example of the squeaky wheel gets the grease." He claimed that in the 17 months prior to the complaints the police issued only 279 tickets for speeding, compared to some 141 in the last two weeks.

Gates said part of the problem was groups of young people who congregate in areas like Oleson's Plaza parking lot, drink beer and then speed through town. He said city council should give the police the authority to deal with them.

Rhonda Siwarga of Hampton Street joined the protest over the speeding and "drag racing. She presented a petition from 84 persons in the Third Ward who also "want an end to reckless driving on May Street."

Siwarga said she and her family take evening walks on the south side and "we were appalled at the amount of just plain crazy driving going on through town and also what seems to be the absence of or disinterest of law enforcers."

The problem in the May Street area is not new, she said, and the high school is the major source of careless drivers.

IN OTHER ACTION, council unanimously approved two site plans for the renovation of the buildings housing the Town House bar and Carey's Boot Shop, contingent on the construction being within the property lines.

The owners of the two properties have discovered they own an additional 3 feet and 10 inches at the front of their buildings, architect Jack

Tug sinks, four rescued from Lake Michigan

by FRAN MARTIN

Four Beaver Island residents were rescued from Lake Michigan late Wednesday evening when their 42-foot fishing tug, the Hazel W., was swamped in heavy seas and sank within minutes in 250 feet of water approximately five miles northwest of Charlevoix.

The four were Michael Martin, 32, his stepson, Robert McPhearson, 14, James Martin in his 40s and Clifford Napont, 50, all of St. James.

The four were pulled from the water by Charlevoix County Sheriff's Marine Officer Allen Mumu who responded to the crew's Mayday message relayed to the sheriff's department because both Coast Guard patrol boats were on other emergency calls.

The men clung to pieces of lumber that had floated free and were in the water approximately one hour before being rescued.

The men told Mumu and the U.S. Coast Guard at the Charlevoix lifeboat station that they were enroute to Beaver Island with a load of lumber when they encountered seas of six to 10 feet and decided to return to Charlevoix. As they attempted to reverse their course, the vessel was swamped and sank. They barely had time to send the Mayday message when they were thrown into the 52 degree water. The message was picked up by the Charlevoix Coast Guard and the Sheriff's patrol dispatched to the scene.

They were returned to the Coast Guard station where they were given blankets and hot coffee but refused further treatment.

Michael Martin said he had borrowed his brother Ernest Martin's boat to come to Charlevoix to pick up lumber, including windows for a new

Charlevoix Yesterday

The former logging town of Phelps, six miles south of Charlevoix, once boasted 150 people and two sawmills. Cooper's mill (shown at the top of the picture) processed hardwood, another mill on the south side of Phelps Road handled mainly hemlock. Today Phelps is occupied by only a few homes and the railroad track has been abondoned.

Last week Charlevoix County began repairs on Phelps Road in the area pictured here. In the process of digging up the roadbed, work crews removed many of the timbers placed there for the old corduroy road.

Begrow told council.

He said the renovations would include new facades for both buildings and the addition of a second floor apartment over Carey's Boot Shop. An existing apartment above the Town House would be redone. The second floors would be built to the lot line.

The Town House is owned by Ron and Helen Weistlik; Carey's by Mildred Campbell.

Two styles of architecture are being considered for the renovation and addition: Victorian and modern, Begrow said. The Downtown Development Authority and city planner have pushed for the Victorian approach to blend with other plans for the downtown area.

City councilman Norm Probert also endorsed the Victorian style. "This puts some life in the downtown," said councilman Shirley Roloff, who stated the style should be solely the choice of the owner.

ALSO APPROVED by council were:

– A change in zoning from single family (R-1) to two family residential (R-2A) for property owned by Joyce and Bob Kern. They plan to develop four two-family duplexes on the nearly two acres of land at 105 Crabtree Lane, located between Stover Road and E. Carpenter Avenue.

– An on-premise liquor license for Great Lakes Whitefish and Chips, Ltd. at 411 Bridge Street. The resort class C license would be used both by the fish and chips restaurant and Terry's Place on Antrim Street. Attorney David Campbell, representing the owners, said the license was intended for serving alchohol with dinner and would not to create another bar or saloon in town. There are 26 resort class C licenses available in the state and over 600 applicants, Campbell added.

– A request from Richard Lepman, president of G.S. Sports, Inc. to hold the sixth annual North American Sailboard Championships at Ferry Avenue beach from Aug. 1 through Aug. 3.

A RESOLUTION of abandonment was also approved by council for property in the city owned right-of-ways on Newman Street.

Eleanor Carson to lead Venetian parade

by FRAN MARTIN

Eleanor Carson, well-known educator and long-time public servant, has been named marshal of the 1986 Grand Venetian Street Parade at noon, Saturday, July 26, Georgia LaBlance and Sheilah Bogart, street parade co-chairmen, have announced.

Carson, in accepting the invitation, said she looks on life in a community such as Charlevoix as a poem and feels that everyone, in one way or another, should contribute something to the pages of that "book that never ends."

Since coming to Charlevoix with her late husband, Kit Carson, in 1937, Mrs. Carson has contributed many pages to the book that is Charlevoix. She served on the board of directors of the Charlevoix Area Hospital for 15 years and as fund-raiser and interior decorator when the present hospital was constructed.

She was also a member of the Charlevoix Board of Education because she feels that people should do this when their children are in school; a den mother for 11 cub scouts when her son, Kit Jr., volunteered her services for three years; a member for many years and chairperson for one year of Charlevoix's Waterfront Art Fair; and neighborhood chairperson for numerous fund drives.

She has always had the interest of the native Americans at heart and has assisted many of them in various ways through the years.

Her days as an educator began after her graduation from Western Michigan University. She taught in the elementary grades in Kalamazoo and, following her marriage, kindergarten in the East Jordan schools for seven years. Her interest in education has continued through her support of schools.

"I look upon serving as parade marshal as another page in Charlevoix's book," she said.

Carson, the former Eleanor McBride, was born in Hamilton, Ont., and, at the age of three years, came to DeWard, a lumbering community in northern Michigan, with her parents. She worked in banks and businesses as a bookkeeper to earn money for college.

The parade that Mrs. Carson will head as parade marshal promises to be one of the biggest in recent years. At the present time, the Chamber of Commerce reports 30 entries which is expected to increase prior to the deadline on July 21.

Among the entries are 10 bands and numerous area queens on their colorful floats.

LaBlance and Bogard are chairing the street parade committee for the second year. Members of her committee are Terri D'Angelo, Kay Fiedorek, Sulane Hamilton, Marell Harrod, Claudia Kenifeck, Colleen LaBlance, Sandie LaVoie, Debbie McDowell, Carrie Richardson and Diane Novotny.

The parade on Saturday, July 26, will begin at noon, an hour later than in the past, from the American Legion Post Home on Garfield and will follow a parade route to Bridge Street north to Clinton Street and west to State Street where it will disperse.

The parade is a part of the Venetian Festival sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Hobbycrafters will show wares in East Park

East Park, overlooking Round Lake, will be the site of the 18th annual Lakeside Hobbycraft Fair sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce on Saturday, July 12.

One hundred sixty displaying a wide variety of hobbies will be set up on the rolling terraces at the lakefront site with a host of pleasure craft berthed along the Round Lake shoreline forming a backdrop for the fair.

"We limited the number of entries to the first 160 of the more than 400 who applied and have what we feel will be a select group of exhibitors who will offer fair-goers a wide selection of hobbies to choose from," Claudia Kenifeck, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, said.

She went onto say that there would be entries from Tuscon, Ariz., Clayton, Mo. and Racine, Wisc., as well as communities and length and breadth of Michigan.

Among the goods for sale will be quilted items, glass enamel on metal and fused glass, dolls of every description, doll clothes, crocheted, knitted and macrame wear, floral arrangements, stained glass, baskets, jewelry, country painting, home furnishings, clothing and woodworking, Kenifeck said.

"There are numerous other types of hobbies represented, but this will give you an idea of the extent of the varied interests among the hobbyists entered," she added.

The hours of the fair will be from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. though exhibitors may remain in the park later if they wish.

Aging group to meet

The annual Commission on Aging Picnic will be held Wednesday, July 16, at Whiting Park.

Beginning at noon, the picnic will feature barbecued chicken, entertainment, and door prizes. Tickets are available at Commission on Aging meal sites in Charlevoix, East Jordan, and Boyne City, or may be purchased at the door.

The picnic will replace the regular Commission on Aging meal that day.

Transportation to Whiting Park will be available by Charlevoix County Transit if reservations are made in advance. Phone 582-4990.

house he planned to build. The entire cargo and the tug, formerly owned by the late Jake White, Charlevoix commercial fisherman, were lost in the accident.

On Tuesday, they enlisted the assistance of Ralph Cross, Jr., and his fishing tug in an attempt to salvage some of the lumber that had floated to the surface.

An Island Airways plane, piloted by Mark Welke, assisted in the rescue by circling the area until Muma arrived to pull the four from the water into the 18-foot patrol boat.

Wanted: Petunia auction donations

Wondering what to do with that heirloom chest you no longer have room for?

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful has just the place for it at its Petunia Auction slated Saturday, Aug. 2 in East Park.

This is the fourth year the fundraiser has been organized to provide funds to purchase the 50,000 petunias that are planted along the main road each year by the organization.

Kate Burlew, auction co-chair, said she is hoping to exceed last year's proceeds of $9,000. The money is needed because of labor costs to remove weeds have exceeded more than $500 this year despite use of weed control products.

Registration begins at noon in the park and the auction at 1 p.m. Contact co-chair Paul Burlew at 547-5675 to arrange for pick up of donated items.

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on July 21, 1986, at 7:30 o'clock p.m. at Charlevoix High School the Board of Education of Charlevoix Public Schools will hold a public hearing to consider the levying in 1986 of an additional proposed millage rate of .30825 mills for operating purposes pursuant to Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982.

The Board of Education has the complete authority to establish that 26.10 mills be levied in 1986 from within its present authorized millage rate. The additional proposed millage rate would increase revenues for operating purposes from ad valorem property tax levies in 1986, by one and twenty one hundreths per cent (1.20).

The increase restores the millage rate to the amount authorized by the voters on June 9, 1986.

The purpose of the hearing is to receive testimony and discuss the levy of an additional millage rate. Not less than seven (7) days following the public hearing the Board of Education may approve the levy of all or any portion of the proposed additional millage rate.

This notice is given by order of the Board of Education.

Waterfront zoning actions welcomed

Marion Township's ongoing effort to protect wetlands and waterfront property from excessive development through changes in its zoning ordinance is an important step for the township and the county as a whole.

Unlike other townships where the threat of a major development has forced local officials to examine their zoning during the heat of battle, Marion is exploring waterfront protection before the controversy has erupted.

That should give the planning and zoning board time to carefully consider all the alternatives and to study other successful zoning ordinances which have dealt with this issue.

For some time the Courier has been urging a careful review of lakefront zoning in Charlevoix County and has argued that we need special provisions to protect the most fragile and important areas in northern Michigan.

The recent survey of property owners on or near Lake Charlevoix (reported on page one of this issue) shows that the people of the region are concerned with this issue as well.

It is also encouraging to see Charlevoix Township working to protect its lakefront areas through zoning changes – a move that resulted from the recent mediation of the Water's Edge development.

We must have tough zoning, carefully constructed, or the north country will not long possess the qualities that brought most of us here. Inadequate, lax zoning will also inevitably lead to endless lawsuits and challenges, costing the people of northern Michigan money and time that could better be spent elsewhere.

SEVERAL YEARS AGO I went through all our old books and records and hauled them down to the Charlevoix Public Library for the annual book sale. (Boy, did I feel good disposing of all that clutter!) I even told my nephew to go to the book sale - that he'd be sure to find some interesting material for his shelves.

You can't believe what happened next. My nephew returned with the records we had given away and said, "Here. I bought these for you. I thought you'd like them!" I never had the heart to tell him the truth.

Now, it's that time of year again. Time to take those art and travel magazines, records and books to the library to be sold on August 8 and 9 for the benefit of various service projects of the Charlevoix Women's Club. If you'd like to have your donation picked up, call Lucy Witthoeft at 547-6916.

CHARLEVOIX SWEATSHIRTS. You see them everywhere this summer. People tell me they've seen them in London on the street; unfortunately, the traffic was such there was no "hello" possible. However, in California on a river trip, two people reached out and touched each other with Charlevoix reminiscenses, thanks to a sweatshirt. What remote corner of the world have YOU seen a Charlevoix Sweatshirt? Please write the Courier and tell us - we'll believe it or not.

EVERYBODY KNOWS the price of oil has gone down, but I certainly was surprised when I drove into what used to be called Tidy Car on U.S. 31 South and I learned that the price of all their services has gone way down, too. I asked the owner, Kirk Heckendorn, how come? It seems his business is no longer a franchise, a new sign will soon announce the Auto Appearance Center, instead. If you've never pampered your car with an inside-outside cleaning with a Q-tip, check it out. It's very special.

MUSIC LOVERS there's a fine program this summer at Interlochen Music Camp. Two of the most delightful evenings I've spent in previous years has been listening to the Canadian Brass - they'll play Tuesday, July 15 and the Van Cliburn Benefit Concert is on Saturday, July 19. The United States Air Force Band and the Singing Sergeants are giving a free concert on Wednesday July 30. And my favorite, Pete Fountain and his jazz group, will play Thursday, July 31. I can't resist telling you that Sarah Vaughn will appear on Tuesday, August 5, and finally, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra on Tuesday, August 12. Call 1-616-276-9221 for tickets. It's a beautiful drive to Interlochen.

ONE OF THE PLACES I always take out-of-town visitors is the Norman Brumm Studio. Here they may meet one of our most talented raised-in-Charlevoix artists whose work is known throughout the country. My favorite San Francisco store, Gumps, once had a whole window filled with Norm's enamelled birds and flowers. But Norm is onto something new and he was delighted to show me the thrust of his latest work - enamelled plates with Michigan landscapes, and they are beautiful! He hopes to have some to show at the Waterfront Art Fair.

Norm is not only an artist, but a collector extraordinaire. He wants every man, woman, and child who comes to his studio to find something to their liking - something to touch, like a 25 cent polished stone, or a shiny sheet of Michigan copper from the upper Peninsula, or a rough piece of coral or a soft mohair sweater from South America.

His taste and love for beautiful objects is eclectic and that's the reason his studio is bursting at the seams. So when the Health and Fitness Center next door closed, Norm decided to expand. The new place is called Studio 2. Go "browse." You won't know what you want, until you see something you like.

Letters to the Editor:

Dissidents offer no positive world plan

Dear Editor:

American socialist patsies are sounding-off again with their usual complaints regarding the administration's concern about adequate military defense for our nation as well as support for the freedom fighters in Central America and Afghanistan.

From this we assume they never learned our colonial history: some 250 years ago we were the freedom fighters endeavoring to free ourselves from British royal tyranny. We were elated when France came to our rescue and it behooves us to return the favor toward world peace.

Shades of Eugene V. Debs, perennial candidate for the presidency from 1900 to 1920. Debs would be elated that he would have a socialistic following in the 1980s as he was a political "joker" in his day of political science and few if any took him seriously. But what was true in the 1920s as good for a laugh is presently a serious matter in the Reagan administration and has to be dealt with even with those at college level.

The communists send their most eloquent speakers to contaminate the minds of American youth in favor of communist tyranny, so we stand to come full circle from British to Soviet contamination. For the USA we do have an organization – American Youth for Freedom Foundation (YAF) who are working on the side of the patriots to stem the tide of communist infiltration of our schools.

But apparently it's too late to change the adults. They seem unwilling to allow the elephant to make it's own errors in judgments although they had no complaints when the donkey missed from Yalta to Bay of Pigs to the giveaway of the Panama Canal.

The dissidents let the world know where they stand on issues of the day by their complaints, but they still have not given us a blueprint of the kind of America they are trying to promote.

They have only complaints of the status quo with no direct plan for insuring and assuring the nation what they want.

Let's hear from them on a positive basis even though we may be appalled.

Charlevoix in state of near marshal law

Dear Editor:

As of late, I have been appalled by how unsafe our area roads are. They, however, are not perilous due to drunk drivers and speeders, but instead an overabundance of law enforcement officials.

It does not take much to come into a confrontation with the law. I can personally attest to this. A little over a month ago I was stopped. The officer asked me if I knew why I was pulled over. I honestly did not know, and he never enlightened me. Then, with great embarrassment to myself and my passengers, he threatened to search my car.

I was cited with two infractions, latter, with great inconvenience, I was found innocent of both counts. The law is no longer respected as a friendly upholder of justice, but instead it is regarded with a wary, paranoid respect. There comes a point when "to protect and serve" becomes "to bust and harass."

This situation is only worsened by overzealous concerned citizens airing their griefs on subjects such as drag racers and concert goers, often blowing the whole situation out of proportion. In Charlevoix, a near state of marshal law already exists. I realize some liberties must be sacrificed for society's well-being, but where is the line drawn?

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

For many pastors, a big source of illustrations and ideas is the church newsletter. Not their own but those that come from friends and fellow pastors across the country. This week, a story came in our newsletter that was in at least its third reprinting. It started in Ohio and it came to me from southern Michigan. Now I'd like to pass it on to you.

Have you ever watched a bird sleeping on its perch and never falling off? How does it manage to do this?

The secret is the tendons of the bird's legs. They are so constructed that when the leg is bent at the knee, the claws contract and grip like a steel trap. The claws refuse to let go until the knees are unbent again. The bended knee gives the bird the ability to hold on to his perch, so tightly.

Isn't this also the secret of the holding power of the Christian? Daniel found this to be true. Surrounded by a pagan environment, tempted to compromises with evil, urged to weaken his grip on God, he refused to let go. He held firm when others faltered because he was a man of prayer. He knew the power of the bended knee.

From sleeping birds we can learn the secret of holding things which are most precious to us – honesty, purity, thoughtfulness, honor, character. That secret is the knee bent in prayer, seeking to get a firmer grip on those values which make life worth living.

When we hold firmly to God in prayer, we can rest assured He will hold tightly to us!

Clockwise

Underwater

By Bob Clock

It's finally happened.

The blue waters of Round Lake are now lapping the green turf of East Park and ducks are swimming over what used to be the marina sidewalk.

The worst section is the middle of the yacht basin where the sidewalk is lowest. The north and south ends are still passable to foot traffic — but they won't be for long if the water keeps rising.

The city has constructed emergency bridges over the submerged sidewalk so that boaters can still reach their docks — but the situation is abominable at best.

Meteorologists continue to assure us that record high water levels have been caused by record amounts of precipitation in recent years.

But I can't help but wonder if the long-threatened "greenhouse effect" isn't beginning to be felt.

As you'll recall, scientists have claimed for years that mankind is sending so much carbon dioxide into the atmosphere through the burning of fossil fuels that earth's vapor envelop gradually is beginning to warm, melting icecaps, glaciers, permafrost and other natural means of keeping water from engulfing the earth.

Some even have gone so far as to predict that America's coastal cities, such as Boston, Providence, New York, Baltimore, and Miami, will one day be under water.

Such fears may be premature in 1986, but a stroll along the East Park waterfront gives you an inkling of what the world will be like if there is more fact than fiction to "greenhouse" theory.

And it's scary.

IF THE JULY 4 weekend is any indication, Charlevoix is in for a bell-ringer of a summer.

Although Charlevoix traditionally has kept a low profile on the Fourth out of deference to Petoskey, East Jordan and Boyne City, you would never have guessed it from the crowds on Bridge Street all weekend.

Charlevoix, of course, reserves its strength for the big Venetian Festival the last weekend in July. But our holiday weekend visitors didn't seem to care that we hadn't opened all the stops for them. Shops were jammed, you had to fight for a spot in Oleson's parking lot and the boat traffic on Pine River Channel was something to behold.

The weather couldn't have been better — hot days and cool nights, with just enough rain to lay the dust.

Although Lake Michigan is still on the chilly side, even the beaches were jammed.

I sometimes wonder on such a weekend what our visitors would think if we suddenly jumped ahead six months to January. I can see it now: The thermometer on the County Bank standing at 15 below, snow swirling between high banks along Bridge Street, a few hardy pedestrians, bundled up from head to toe, leaning into a full gale, shop signs creaking eerily in the wind.

Enjoy, enjoy. Charlevoix's summer is all too brief.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifeck
Executive Director

Employed at the Chamber this season are three counter girls sponsored by the Michigan Youth Corp Program and the Michigan Indian Employment and Training Program. Sue Annis, 18, daughter of well-known artist Jim Annis, is back for her second year with us. Sue's pleasant manner and confidence make her a real asset at the Chamber.

Pam Cloud, 14, was born in Chicago, but has lived here with her family for three years. Her shy manner is offset by her good working knowledge of the area. We're glad to have her with us.

Welcome aboard to Lisa Hilton, 19. Her ability to complete special projects has been of great benefit to us here at the Chamber. If she doesn't know the answer to a question, she will find one.

All three girls are specially trained to help vacationers find their way to hotels, restaurants, beaches, and the like. We couldn't handle the volume of mail and walk-in traffic without them.

Harbormaster Del Terrill and his dock crew have been working hard all week giving a new look to the Chamber-Harbormaster building. Thanks of your help and for giving us a new coat of paint.

Venetian Festival plans are being finalized. Remember: The Venetian Grand Street Parade will begin at NOON this year. Immediately following the parade, Ronald McDonald will perform a 45-minute show in East Park for all the little ones. The carnival and rides will run Friday and Saturday, as will the booths and concessions in East Park.

Harsha House and the Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite will be open Venetian weekend from 1-4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday and the Charlevoix Air Buffs will fly their model airplanes on Sunday from 1-5 p.m. Complete details are available at the Chamber.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Desch

Curtis - Desch

Tracine Lee Curtis and Gordon E. Desch exchanged marriage vows on Saturday afternoon, June 21, at Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Curtis of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eberhardt Desch of Charlevoix and Port St. Lucie, Florida.

Vicar, David Spaeth officiated at the double-ring rites, in which the bride was given in marriage by her father. Approximately 100 guests witnessed the ceremony, which was conducted in front of arrangements of pink and white chrysantheums, white gladioli, and ferns.

The bride's gown was fashioned of Charmeuse with an off-the-shoulder bodice accented with beaded silk Venise lace, a Basque waist, and semi-cathedral train accented with silk Venise lace. Her finger-tip veil had scallped edges with silk Venise trim, and she carried a bouquet of rose, pink, and white silk roses, accented with lace and pearls.

Kathrine Curtis served her sister as maid of honor, and Evelyn Cattaneo, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. They wore satin off-the-shoulder gowns trimmed with layers of white lace ruffles at the hemlines. The maid of honor's gown was rose satin, and the bridesmaid's gown was pink satin. They carried matching bouquets of rose, pink, and white roses, accented with lace, pearls and pink and white phlox.

Nicole DeYoung, cousin of the bride, assisted as flower girl. She wore a pink satin gown and carried a basket of pink rose petals and roses.

Justin Cattaneo, nephew of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

Russell Curtis, brother of the bride, assisted as best man, and James Cattaneo, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was groomsman. Timothy DeYoung, uncle of the bride, and Charles Robinson were ushers.

Music for the ceremony was provided by organist Linda Slater and vocalist Carol Spaeth, who offered, "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Wedding Song."

The bride's parents, assisted by her aunts Susan, Nadine, and Patti DeYoung, hosted the wedding reception at the American Legion hall. The rehearsal dinner was held at 218 Bridge Street, hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

Following a week's cruise on Lake Michigan aboard their boat, the newlyweds are at home at 5301 Americanan Lane, New Haven. The bridegroom is employed at General Motors in Detroit, and the bride is employed by Red Lobster in Utica. (Photography by Gary DeYoung).

Homes Tour shows off comfort and charm in houses ranging from an Earl Young design to a condo

by FRAN MARTIN

Circle Wednesday, July 16, on your calendar.

That's the date of the fifth annual Home Tour sponsored by Kappa Sigma sorority for the benefit of the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Five sites which give varied definitions to the words "comfort and charm," the theme of this year's tour, will be offered to the public from 1 until 5 p.m.

Four homes and a condominium will be featured in this year's Home Tour for which tickets may still be purchased at the Chamber of Commerce, Shop of the Gulls and the Apple Tree, according to Pam Newcomb and Sue Fowler, co-chairpersons.

A wide assortment of tastes in design and decorating can be seen in the homes open for the tour. The choice of colors and furnishings, and especially the use of accessories, reflect the personalities of the occupants.

The unusual use of native stone in the construction of the home designed by the late Earl A. Young will be a sharp contrast to the contemporary home overlooking Lake Charlevoix designed by architect Jack Begrow. The other homes are equally as different though four of the five are built to capture the ever-changing view from windows that look out on the community's lakes.

The loft at the Harbour Club condominium owned by the James Andersons offers a view of the living-dining area and the panoramic view of the Round Lake harbor.

This classic frame house on Prospect Avenue will also be on the Homes Tour.

Dr. and Mrs. Reed Freidinger have planned their new home on the south shore of Lake Charlevoix to utilize passive solar heat with the use of this attractive solarium.

The beautiful new home of Dr. Reed and Janet Friedinger off M-66 is set in a wooded area on the south shore of Lake Charlevoix and every room offers a view of the lake. Architect Begrow has designed this contemporary home as a perfect setting for family living.

The home features a sunken hot tub and a passive solar collector room designed to heat the home without use of fossil fuel. The room has glass on the south, a skylight, and a black tile floor and dark colors on the wall to absorb the heat which then disperses to the other rooms.

The unique Round Lake condominium of James and Pat Anderson in Phase II of the Harbour Club offers a panoramic view of Charlevoix's waterfront. Turrets and round windows, characteristics of Begrow's design, adorn this premiere condominum whose other features include a master bedroom suite in a loft overlooking the first floor and an enormous guest suite with a large striking bath area.

A blend of forest green carpeting and furnishings in pastel shades complete the picture. The condo offers an unexpected feeling of spaciousness since the couple has acquired the entire top level inthe Harbour Club, conceived by Douglas Bathey and developed by JAH Developers, M.C.

The spacious grounds at the home of Raymond and Jacqueline MacGillivray, designed by the late Earl E. Young, offers a view of spectacular Lake Michigan.

Inside the natural charm of the traditional furnishings and the beautiful interior invites one to relax and enjoy the view.

The focus of the room is the fireplace of large boulders native to the area.

Refreshments will be served at this home which, like the other homes on the tour, will be decorated with arrangements of flowers furnished by the Charlevoix Garden Club, Greenleaf Gradens, Expressions Unlimited, Charlevoix Floral and the Country Blossom.

The home of Tim and Pati Moore on the city's north side was once known as the Bluebird Cottage, tucked off main thoroughfares where once summer residents gathered.

Built in 1908, it lends itself to Pati's decorating flair as evidenced by her use of antiques such as the century-old ramparts from a Victorian home in Chicago, contemporary pieces and unusual art work. These are combined to create a warm and friendly environment.

Other features of the home are the fresh colors used throughout the house and the St. Charles kitchen.

The home of Dr. Derald and Sharon Rakotz on South Prospect Avenue, the fifth of those to be visited in the Home Tour, is another older home built among the pines on the crest of a hill overlooking Round Lake.

A feature of the house is its well lived-in look created by the use of bright colors, lively patterns and personal touches that have created a blend of comfort and charm for the family and their friends.

Tickets for the tour are available for $10. Proceeds from the tour will be used for the purchase of a volumé metric infusion pump for the hospital, Newcomb said.

The interesting use of native field stone in the construction of the Raymond MacGillivary home especially in the fireplace which dominates the living room, is its most outstanding feature. Stones are also utilized in the exterior and in a wall that surrounds the beautiful yard on the shore of Lake Michigan.

YOU'RE INVITED TO THE GOLF EVENT OF THE SUMMER.

Our Compliments To The Chef. And All The Staff Who Keep Meals On Wheels Rolling.

About two decades ago, a group of enterprising people first opened the doors to what has ever since been a favorite local eatery.

In that time, not a whole lot has changed in the way they run things.

The menu's simple. But the food is always hot, fresh and wholesome.

A lot of the staff works for free. And most provide their own cars and gas line so the operators can still offer home delivery.

And, as it's always been over the years, they've never once made a red cent to show for it all.

But they did manage to make firm believers out of us.

They're Meals on Wheels, after all.

So while it is not surprising that they are not in business to make a profit, they still have to pay their bills like everyone else to stay in business.

Otherwise, hundreds of home-bound senior citizens and hundreds more less-fortunate people might go hungry every day.

So when they fed us the facts on their cash-flow problem, we gave them the line of credit they needed to keep things rolling.

Not just because we're bankers.

But because, more importantly, we're part of the community.

You see, at First of America Bank we think non-profit organizations like Meals on Wheels, who make sure that those in need do not go hungry, are something everyone will eventually profit from some day.

Horton Bay Celebrates The Fourth

"Horton Bay today ... reality tomorrow" pretty well captures the spirit of the day.

It is ... well ... unusual, this annual or semiannual, depending on the year, parade held in the little village of Horton Bay.

Which is just the way the Horton Bay folks want it. Nearly 100 entries paraded through the main street on July Fourth delighting the thousands of onlookers.

The parade included everything from the from a new world Petoskey stone motorcycle jumping record to the Cocktail Party which advanced Horton Bay as the 51st state.

Judges Sunny Hemingway Miller, Bill Ohle and Ken Winter awarded ribbons to: Krista Knight's Marching Strings; the Nordic Bar float featuring Pyrl; a float with a Boyne City barbershop chorus; Sean Ryan, the singing cowboy; the Banana Republic's "Terrorism Incorporated" – a salute to the United States' support of despots; and the 51st state entry.

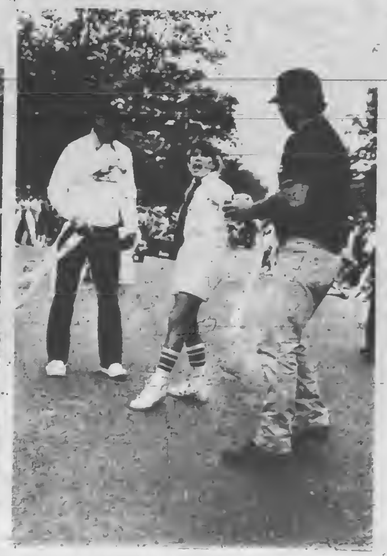
Former Tiger Norm Cash and football great Carl Charon entertained with a spoof on the Miller Lite commercials. Jelly Roll kept things lively with its musical entry. There was a beauty float of men in drag and myriad other floats touched by insanity and a taste for the bizarre.

In all, it was, as always, one of the north's most enjoyable public events.

Krista Knight's Marching Strings captured a ribbon for the second straight year.

What parade would be complete without a pizza eating goat.

This homespun entry advertises Horton Bay's primary cash crop – stones.



Sports greats Carl Charon and Norm Cash spooted the Miller Lite commercials.

... In A Style All Its Own

Horton Bay's own Evil Knieval (Brian Warner of Charlevoix) sets a new world record by jumping 175 Petoskey stones. Count 'em folks.

Street clowns entertained the crowd.

This formidable biker kept traffic and crowds under tight control.

These pretty young ladies took refuge from the brief rain showers.

The Banana Republic paid tribute to the many despots supported by the U.S.

Study emphasizes visual quality of lake

by PEG OHLE

As first results of the Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Committee Attitude Survey are being made known, another study of the lake area is being distributed.

Titled "Aesthetic Considerations for Residential Development on Lake Charlevoix", the study was made and written by Joan S. Hyde of the Department of Landscape Architecture of the University of Michigan. In many ways, it dovetails into the Lake Management survey. In her introduction, Ms. Hyde mentions that survey and adds, "...perhaps the effect of development on the visual character of the shoreline deserves more than an indirect treatment".

Which areas will be seen from the lake and opposite shore? "If development is to be regulated in order to preserve the present beauty of the lakeshore, it is important to know where development might and might not degrade the scenic quality". The creation of a special lakeshore zone would allow development to be regulated with special concern for the natural and scenic resources of the lake, Ms. Hyde suggests.

Does the type of zoning employed promote the desired effect? "Site development is guided mainly by the boundaries of the individual plot of land, and these rarely relate to the natural systems of the landscape".

Zoning ordinances which allow for or encourage clustering of development have several advantages over traditional zoning ordinances, according to Ms. Hyde.

Which areas are more appropriate for various intensities of development? "Because most of the land is privately owned, it is not realistic to try to prevent development along the lakeshore. But limiting development in specific areas can certainly be considered". Ms. Hyde notes that European lake frontages have long used contrasts between high density urban cores and adjacent agricultural and low density areas to maintain preservation of lakeshore areas.

Does the plan for management of growth encourage careful development rather than rapid, thoughtless development? Ms. Hyde says, "Care should be taken that whatever method is chosen encourages developers to design carefully and thoughtfully, with full consideration of the natural and visual lakeshore environment".

Ms. Hyde further notes that a large number of respondents to the county survey cited "viewing" as their most frequent use of Lake Charlevoix. So that their views may be aesthetically rewarding, Ms. Hyde cites several considerations for lake shore planning and management:

Further questions to ask in order to achieve the utmost in visual enjoyment, Ms. Hyde suggests, are:

Does the development interfere with the major definers of the landscape? "In the lakeshore region, the ridgeline and shoreline are major landscape definers; maintaining the natural flow of these edges will probably be important in preserving the scenic quality of the lakeshore".

How does the position and screening of the structures relate to their nature and scale? "Whether a residential development will blend harmoniously into the lakeshore setting or detract from it will be influenced by whether its design is complementary and subordinate to the site or not".

Is there a consideration shown for the natural features and systems of the environment? "Developments that are designed with the natural environment in mind not only help to keep environmental systems intact, but at least one study shows that people will accept development as aesthetic, provided that it is designed to complement the natural landscape".

Visual access and obstructions. "Views of the lake should be afforded to as many people as possible. Sometimes blocking a neighbor's view in unavoidable, but many times structures can be located in such a way that backlot owners can still see the lake. Even a glimpse of boats on the lake and spinnakers in full force could considerably enhance one's enjoyment of the scene".

To illustrate her thesis, Ms. Hyde had provided several sketches of good and bad shoreline development, as well as some maps indicating shoreline visibility in certain areas around Lake Charlevoix.

Lake controls wanted

While none of the above suggestions were approved by everybody returning the lake survey, they all received majority support, especially in the matters of uniform setback-greenbelt requirements and zoning ordinances to regulate land use within the Lake Charlevoix watershed and the use of the water in Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix.

Most people who presently own property on Lake Charlevoix or nearby would like to see the area developed with single family homes rather than condominium units, the survey reveals. They also favor public access marinas rather than condominium marinas and public access boat launching ramps and access sites.

In another category, most people don't want many more commercial or industrial developments. While "no" votes for commercial and industrial developments in the rural townships were overwhelming, those in favor of such developments thought they should be located in Charlevoix, East Jordan, and Boyne City.

There are many positive good things about the outdoors area surrounding Lake Charlevoix and the lake itself, those surveyed believe.

There are adequate beach, campground, boat launching, and park facilities; and generally good enforcement of ordinances pertaining to the environment.

He was a laboratory technician for the Pet Milk Company in Delta, Ohio, until 1961. From that time until he retired in 1974, he operated a Shell Service Station at Liberty Center, Ohio. In 1976 they came to Charlevoix to make their home. He had been a member of the United Methodist Church, and a former member of the Rotary Club and the Volunteer Fire Department, all of Liberty Center.

The Winchester Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Republicans host picnic

The Republican candidates for governor and Congressman Bob Davis and State Representative Ralph Ostling have all been invited to the Charlevoix County Republican Picnic, to be held Sunday afternoon, July 13, at Whiting Park.

According to Don Voison, Republican party chairman, Davis, Ostling, and Dick Chrysler have indicated they will be here, and gubernatorial candidate Bill Lucas has the picnic "on his schedule".

The picnic will feature barbecued chicken and door prizes and give local people a chance to talk with their representatives about state and national issues.

Tickets, at $5 each ($10 for the whole family), may be bought at the door.

Health screening offered

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging is offering three health screening clinics for senior citizens during the month of July.

The clinics, which are held at the East Jordan Family Health Center in East Jordan and conducted by personnel of District Health Department No. 3, are scheduled for July 10, 14, and 25.

The clinic tests will include, but will not be limited to: Blood pressure and pulse; hemoglobin or hematocrit; urinalysis; vision and hearing; weight and height, breast examination, stool guaiac, and complete physical examination. Since only 10 persons can be scheduled each day, reservations must be made in advance by calling the Senior Center at 536-7831.

The donation fee for the clinic is $5. Transportation to the clinic is available by Charlevoix County bus if reservations are made at least a day in advance.

Yachting Notes

The BIG Weekend is upon us! The first Annual George LaBlanc Memorial Cup Race, Saturday to St. James and return Sunday. Mandatory Skippers' Meeting Saturday, 7:30 a.m. at the CYC. Stop in at the Club, Friday 6-8 p.m. for informal planning, last minute registration and meet the Mouse and esteemed Ghost Mice). Josh Barnes and Gloria Norman will be hosts. Non-racers will want to stop in and coordinate plans for flying or cruising to Beaver.

Most yachtsmen remember George as being the key figure in starting the Charlevoix Yacht Club; I remember him best from one weekend when we both had our vessels docked at St. James. It seems there was the enormous articulated front-end loader just sitting there tempting, and one former Corps of Engineers sailor just being tempted.

After having a delightful time picking up the new arrivals in the bucket and dropping them gently on the steps of the Shamrock, said sailor decided to take a scenic jaunt out on the dock. George came running up on the foredeck, awakened by the gentle murmur of 50,000 horses powering 14 tons of bright yellow beauty out to within 8 feet of his bow. The old smoothie just said, "Josh, wouldn't you rather have a beer?" — I would.

We laughed about that for some good, but too few, years — I'll drink to you this weekend, George.

Sailors set to race to Beaver Island

Local yachts will make their first attempt at offshore racing next weekend in a two-day competition to Beaver Island and back.

Over 30 sailboats are expected to participate in the first annual George LaBlance Memorial Cup Race, James Stewart, race chairman, predicts.

The LaBlance Memorial Cup will originate west of the Charlevoix pierheads on Saturday, July 12, beginning at 10 a.m. The first leg of the race will be to St. James Harbor on Beaver Island. The boats will complete the race on Sunday, also beginning at 10 a.m., with a return run to Charlevoix.

Boats will race in four divisions with winners selected on the best corrected times for the two legs of the race. There will be three spinnaker fleets and a jib and main fleet.

Stewart says the finishing times for boats arriving in St. James will be telephoned to the mainland where handicapped scores will be calculated on computer and phoned back so that racers will know where they stand going into the final day of the race.

The LaBlance Trophy and division flags will be awarded at the Charlevoix Yacht Club Sunday one hour after the race has concluded. Entry fee for the race is $20 if received by Wednesday, July 9, or $25 after that date.

The Yacht Club will host a mandatory skippers' meeting at the club on Saturday, July 12, at 7:30 a.m.

The offshore race is named in memory of George LaBlance, one of the founders of the Charlevoix Yacht Club and its first Commodore. LaBlance, who died on his boat in 1972, was for many years a commercial fisherman in Charlevoix. His widow, Mrs. Edna Rankin, will present the trophy to the winner of the race.

Mrs. Edna Rankin, widow of George LaBlance, holds the trophy honoring her late husband which she will present to the winner of the first annual George LaBlance Memorial Cup Race scheduled for July 12 and 13. Mrs. Rankin is the only life member of the Charlevoix Yacht Club.

Rising lake level sets new record

The level of Lake Michigan is continuing to rise, setting new records as it goes, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers reports.

In June, the elevation of lakes Michigan and Huron, considered hydrologically to be one lake, was about two inches above the previous all-time June high recorded in 1973.

That makes Lake Michigan 62 inches above the record low for the month, set in June 1964.

The Corps says the rising lake level will continue for at least another month. At the end of July, it predicts, the water levels will be about one inch above June, at which time they are expected to complete their seasonal rise.

At the end of December, the Corps says, Lake Michigan will be some five inches below what it was at the same time in 1985 when an all-time high for December was recorded.

At the end of June the lake was about five inches above what it was one year ago and three inches above one month ago. The June lake level was at 581.20 feet above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec.

For mariners, the end of June level was 53 inches (135 cm) above chart datum.

The record high water levels have caused Round Lake to flood over the walkway in East Park and cover some of the lower boat docks. The ducks have found the situation just the thing.

Big Rock on line again after 11-day shutdown

The Big Rock Nuclear Plant was back in service over the weekend following an 11-day shutdown initiated by the plant's Reactor Protection System.

The plant went back on line at 7:34 a.m. Saturday, July 12.

The outage began July 1 when the Reactor Protection System automatically shut down the reactor.

The exact cause of the shutdown has not been determined, but company officials believe that it resulted from testing procedures being conducted at the time.

During the test, workers activated one of three "trip signals." The plant will shut down when two of these signals are activated.

Big Rock officials believe a second signal was activated at the same time by a source of power or noise from unknown origin.

The trip signals measure neutron flux in the reactor.

During the shutdown, repairs were made to the Reactor Protection System as well as to the turbine and a number of other plant systems.

Charles MacInnis, Big Rock public affairs director, said the plant is currently producing as much power as it was prior to the shutdown.

Racers battle elements

by A. NONY MOUSE

The Charlevoix Yacht Club took its first step into offshore racing Saturday, July 12, when twelve skippers caught a following wind and inaugurated the First Annual George LaBlance Memorial Cup Race, piloting the sloops through rain, fog, freighter traffic and a four-foot chop into St. James harbor on Beaver Island.

Bob and Lynn Haveman's Flying Machine led the fleet up the fog-enshrouded eastern side of the Island and with spinnakers flying broke through the fog, found the harbor entrance and finished the first leg of the two-day race.

The race was not without its interesting moments. Shortly after the start, Jack Begrow's Mint Julip had a gust deliver last rites to his heavy

Appeals Court to hear developer's case

by PEG OHLE

The Michigan Court of Appeals has agreed to hear the case involving Hayes Township and William R. Fox, a township land owner and developer.

In 1984, Fox presented several proposals to the Hayes Township Zoning Board for a condominium development on his 338 acres and 2,800 feet of Lake Charlevoix shoreline. All of them were turned down because they did not meet the requirements of the Township Zoning Ordinance.

Fox's final proposal was for 126 condominium units with 56 boat slips. Section 5.13 of the Zoning Ordinance permits only one dwelling unit with lake privileges and one mooring for a powered boat for each 100 feet of shoreline. In Fox's case, 28 condominium units and 28 boat slips).

In January, 1985, Fox filed suit in Charlevoix County Circuit Court claiming that Section 5.13 "limits and deprives the Plaintiff of its riparian rights in and to the navigable waters of Lake Charlevoix", and further, "it is not written under the provisions of the Township Rural Zoning Act of 1943, as amended, so does not apply".

The brief in the case also states that the restrictions imposed by Hayes Township are "unreasonable, arbitrary, and capricious" because they "deny equal protection of the law to residents of Hayes Township in comparison to the access to lake waters by other riparian owners in Charlevoix County". This latter statement refers to the fact that the zoning ordinances of other townships bordering Lake Charlevoix do not have as restrictive regulations.

Charlevoix County Circuit Judge Richard Pajtas disqualified himself from hearing the case and it was turned over to Judge Robert C. Livo of the Cheboygan County Circuit Court, who was asked to rule on the constitutionality of the Hayes Township Zoning Ordinance. In January of this year, Judge Livo rendered his opinion to the effect that the Rural Township Zoning Act does authorize townships to zone lakeshore density and lake access.

Shortly after this opinion was rendered, Fox & Associates asked for leave to appeal the case. This permission was granted last week, along with permission for Attorney General Frank J. Kelley to enter the case and file an amicus curiae brief on behalf of the People of Michigan.

Kelley's intervention in the case is considered important because he wrote an opinion in 1982 which Fox's attorneys have used as one of the bases for their case.

It is expected that Fox vs. Hayes Township will be heard in the near future in Lansing. The drawn-out lawsuit has been a drain on the finances of Hayes Township. A plea for financial help to "defend Hayes Township lakefront zoning" was made recently in a joint communication from Tip of the Mitt Watershed

Charlevoix is saturated with condos, candidate says after completing survey

by DOUG TRUAX

Charlevoix has reached the saturation point with condominiums, Ralph McRae concluded after recently commissioning a study of the number and value of condominiums and land associations in Charlevoix.

"The city authorities must discourage further building of condominiums in this area," said McRae, former city councilman and current candidate for mayor.

Charlevoix now has 388 condominium units, he added, more than twice the 181 units in Traverse City and considerably more than in Petoskey (150 units), Boyne City (136 units) or Harbor Springs (50 units).

According to the figures McRae has compiled, Charlevoix has more than half of all the condominiums in Charlevoix County.

McRae credited condominiums with adding substantially to the financial base of the city. "It might be noted that the state equalized value (SEV) for the condos and land associations amounts to 32 percent or $14,577,800 of the whole city's figure of $65 million."

McRae said he did the survey to get an objective evaluation of the effect of condominiums and land associations on the community as a whole.

HE COMPILED figures on the number of units per development, the total acreage, waterfrontage, assessed value, and taxes paid.

Much of the work for the study was done for McRae by Judy Clock and her daughter Allison using records made available by the county assessor's office.

In addition to the 388 condominiums in Charlevoix, the study noted another 50 units under construction and 65 more proposed, for a total of 503 condominiums. The survey did not include units outside the city limits.

Also noted were 109 units in the two land associations – the Chicago and Belvedere clubs – and 235 condominium boat docks.

County cuts employee pay schedule

by PEG OHLE

Employees of Charlevoix County recently began operating under a new pay schedule.

The most noticeable change in the pay schedule is the reduction in starting salaries for all hourly and salaried employees. A person now going to work for the county at the lowest grade, Grade 1, will receive the minimum wage of $3.35 an hour, compared with the previous starting salary in that grade of $5.83 an hour. Even the maximum wage an hourly or salaried employee could conceivably earn has been reduced – from $14.20 an hour to $12.12 an hour.

The new schedule replaces one that has been in use since 1979. It was researched and prepared by Health Shares Systems of Petoskey, a research and management group, with the assistance of four county employees: County Clerk Jane Brannon, Equalization Director Joan Blanchard, District Court Clerk Lynn Groves, and Prosecuting Attorney's Case Worker Mike Shell. County Commissioners Lee Moerland and Larry Matthew also served on the committee.

According to Mrs. Brannon, the pay schedule is based on a study of salaries being paid area-wide to employees in private industry, municipal offices, and professional organizations. Each county job was studied for employee responsibility, work load, education and training required, skills, and other factors, then each job was given a point value which was translated into a pay grade.

There are 13 pay grades in the schedule. An employee may move up in grade if his job description is changed by adding more responsibility or some other similar circumstance.

There are also seven levels in each pay grade. An employee may move from one level to another based on recommendation of his or her department head, length of employment, and similar factors. If the person hired in Grade I at the starting salary of $3.35 an hour remains in the same position with the same

Railroad moves to abandon Charlevoix - Bay View line

by PEG OHLE

The Michigan Department of Transportation is asking for suggestions for alternate uses of the railroad right-of-way between Charlevoix and Bay View.

The Department will hold a public hearing on the subject Thursday morning, July 24, at 10 a.m. in the Petoskey City Council chambers.

The Department of Transportation purchased the 16.5 miles of rail property in February, 1982, when the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad abandoned operation. There has been no service on the rail line since October, 1985.

Recently, high winds and storms have eroded the shoreline along some of the trackage, causing portions of the track to collapse, and it has been determined there is no cost-effective way to stabilize the ground and restore the track.

If the Department of Transportation decides to tear up the rails and make the right-of-way available for other purposes, it will signal the end of a service that has been a part of the growth and life of northern Michigan for almost 100 years.

As the accompanying train schedule indicates, there once were several trains a day running between Bay View, Petoskey, Charlevoix, and Bellaire, with stops at the intermediate stations of Bay Shore, the Belvedere Club, Phelps, Ellsworth, Central Lake, and Snowflake. The round trip fare (same day passage) between Charlevoix and Bay View was 25 cents.

Local firm makes bid on Industrial Park site

City Council received an offer of $10,000 for a lot in the new Industrial Park from Donald Hufford of CPI at its working session Monday night.

The offer, which would make CPI the first company in the park since improvements were made, was taken under advisement by council which expects to act on the offer at its meeting next week.

Hufford told council he wants to buy lot 10 in the park, at the corner of Ance and Taylor roads, to build an 8,000 square foot engineering and manufacturing building on the 284 by 246-foot property.

Hufford said he would retain nearly all the trees on the site and even add landscaping to the corner which houses a sewage lift station.

CPI, Hufford said, supplies automation components to the auto and related industries. Founded in 1982 and currently located on Stover Road, the company sales more than doubled last year, he said, and employment should increase fo some 60 employees in the next five years.

Hufford, with his brother Walter, established Hufford Industries in 1968. He sold his interest in the business in 1982 to start CPI which currently employs 10 people.

IN OTHER ACTION, council:

– Noted the Charlevoix Housing Commission's notice of intent to apply for a $250,000 housing rehabilitation grant.

– Granted permission for a Burns Street block party on July 19.

– Approved a request from Art Horst, pastor of the Charlevoix Baptist Church, to use Depot Beach and East Park at various times from July 29 to August 3 for a tent revival and music concerts.

– Authorized work order changes submitted by architect Jack Begrow for the new Public Safety Building. The changes, many of them resulting from poor soil conditions on the site, will increase the cost of the building some $7,000 to $354,591.

Watercolor show continues

The work of watercolorist Janis Glass of Charlevoix continues to be shown through this weekend in a limited engagement exhibition in the McCune Arts Center, Petoskey.

The show will appear in the Art Tree Sales Gallery through Sunday, July 20. The gallery is located in the historic former Methodist church at the corner of Mitchell and Division streets, downtown Petoskey. Hours are Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Glass is a Charlevoix native, and has taught art in the Charlevoix school system. She earned her art education degree from Central Michigan University and has done graduate work at Michigan State University.

Glass's work has been gaining in popularity as her style emerges into a light, free impressionistic realism. She encourages people to disregard labels and pigeonholes, however, and allow themselves to enjoy art that is purely pleasing.

Charlevoix nursing home gets initial approval

by PEG OHLE

The proposed nursing home for Charlevoix has been approved by the staff of Northern Michigan Health Services Agency and is being considered today by the Review Committee of the Agency.

A favorable decision is expected at today's hearing, following which the full Health Services Agency board will act on the application and send it to the State's Division of Health Facility Construction.

Ralph McRae of Charlevoix, local representative for Liberatore Health Care, Inc. of Columbus, Ohio, who will build the nursing home, is optimistic about getting construction under way early this fall.

Plans for the nursing home include 107 beds, 49 for skilled nursing patients and 58 for elderly persons who do not require regular medical attention.

The nursing home will be built on seven acres of land adjacent to the Charlevoix Area Hospital and the offices of several local physicians.

The land was rezoned last year from Agricultural to Professional Office use, so all land use permits have been ranted to Liberatore.

To be called "Charlevoix Health Care Center", the nursing home has had the attention of McRae for almost two years. He told the Courier that some time ago he foresaw the need for nursing home beds in the Charlevoix area and filed a Letter of Intent with the state in 1984 proposing to build a nursing home facility. At that time, McRae said he was proposing a 70 bed facility for which he would undertake raising funds and supervising construction. When his plans were published by the state, Liberatore Health Care contacted McRae with a proposal to build and run the facility. McRae approved of Liberatore's plans and agreed to be their local liaison person.

The nursing home will not only provide close-to-home nursing care for Charlevoix area residents, but will also pay about $20,000 in local taxes and generate 60 to 70 jobs, according to McRae.

'Round town

The Office

by Edith Gilbert

SOME OF US SIT in Charlevoix and admire the copper sunsets without ever realizing that major lifestyles are taking place right under our nose.

It all started with my hairdresser, Jo Angelo. While he vigorously composed my hair (talk about captive audience), he kept telling me how single week that his wife and a partner had opened The Office. Office, I thought. That's nice. Nice place to get a little typing done when one gets behind. Wrong.

The office is much more. Started by Jo Angelo and Kim Simpson when the owners ventured into a whole new field called "desktop publishing." What "their laser printer can do - and my printer can't - is print graphics, change fonts, reduce and enlarge. Plus, their printer prints photos and drawings with ease. The service they provide includes making catalogues, newsletters, menus; they print charts, graphs, reports, overhead transparancies, all in their own shop.

HOW DO THEY run The Office? If you call Terri on the north side of Charlevoix, and she isn't home, your call is automatically transferred to Kim who lives on the south side of Charlevoix. If Kim isn't home, the answering machine takes your message. All bases covered. Both will pick up and deliver the job.

When I visited Kim in her hilltop office-home on Barnard Rd., with the most gorgeous view overlooking the lush, rolling countryside, I thought this is the life. Her two cute little kids were happily playing nearby with the dog. No long commute during rush hour traffic here. The only hassle they face is waiting for the bridge.

Kim graduated from Grand Valley with a degree in English and was a legal secretary for 10 years. Terri was an executive secretary at General Motors before moving north. They both had computer experience before plunging into this little service in Northern Michigan.

"But, snowed in?" I asked.

"We live on a milk route and the snowplow always gets through. Well almost always."

For they have been swamped with work. Business has come by word of mouth and, of course, because of jazz was jass. So now you know.

THOSE OF YOU who have already been to Terry's Place on Antrim Street will be delighted to know that the city fathers have approved the liquor license for this fine restaurant. Soon you may be able to enjoy a glass of wine with your dinner. And what a dinner! Chicken with morels and a delicate sauce, for example. Or fish. Local boy, Terry Left, has the touch. He is executive chef of Cafe Chauveron in Miami Beach during the winter, but can't stay away from Charlevoix during the summer. If you have a yearning for a heavenly, individual souffle for dessert, call ahead and it can be arranged. But don't tell him I told you.

DECISIONS, DECISIONS, decisions. Dance ensembles, classical, pop and jazz concerts all within four days of each other. On Tuesday, July 22, Northwood Symphony has scheduled Phillipe Bianconi, pianist and winner of the 1985 Van Cliburn silver medal to perform. Beethoven Concerto No. 4 However, this concert, at the Virginia McCune Arts Center is sold out. A repeat performance is scheduled on July 24. For tickets, call 347-4337.

If Beethoven is not your bag, how about the Black dance group from New York, the Alvin Ailey Repertory ensemble, performing July 22 and 23 at Interlochen. My spies tell me this is an exciting, artistic group of modern dancers with gorgeous costumes. If you don't dig dance, what about the Tokyo String Quartet on the 24th at Interlochen?

If you like to be outdoors and smell the hay, sit under a tent, and listen to one of Northwood's pop concerts, go to Black Forest Hall in Harbor Springs and hear a performance of the Summer American Bandstand on Friday, July 25 at 7 p.m.

IF YOU'RE MAD for jazz, Chet Bogan's Wolverine Jass Band will also play on Friday, July 25, at the Virginia McCune Arts Center in Petoskey. Tickets are $10. Dr. Bogan is a Grosse Pointe dentist who has a double career in music. His group travels to Chicago, New Orleans, St. Louis and the West Coast. Vocalist, Dixie Belle, belts out her songs - Big Butter and Egg Man - to the accompaniment of a six-piece traditional jass group.

(For those of you who like to correct my spelling, the original spelling of jazz was jass. So now you know.)

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

One of the special moments of ministry we pastors share is to be available for you in times of urgent need. Just such a moment took place recently as I waited and prayed with a family during a difficult surgery for their child. Such a moment of ministry need not belong exclusively to pastors. We all can share our love and care.

The punk lady who watched over the surgical waiting room answering the phone that day sure cared. She made the time pass swiftly and gave us all reason to smile.

She told the story of a family where the mother came in for surgery leaving dad and the kids to hold down the fort at home. Dad, being the organized fellow he was, assigned each of his children a responsibility. The youngest boy got the job of answering the telephone.

Do you know how it is when someone you know is sick? You call and ask if there's anything you can do to help.

To make a long story short, when Mom got home from the hospital, she found her freezer filled to overflowing with cookies. "Why?" asked Mom. Because everytime somebody called to ask "what can I do to help?", the little boy answered, "bring cookies."

Whether you have thought of it this way before or not, think of it now. The very nature of the christian faith means that all of us are to be engaged in some form of caring ministry. The Bible reminds us that "we are laborers together with God."

How do you show you care? Have you fixed cookies for someone lately? Have you called that family that's been missing a few Sundays? Have you sent a birthday, anniversary or friendship card to say I care?

Just as you welcome that friendship and support in times of trial, others need it too. The only hands and feet the Lord has to use today belong to me and you.

Bird calls

By Bob Clock

This is fair warning to all the birds who frequent the 200 block of East Dixon Avenue:

I have a cat that does bird calls.

So don't come swooping down to investigate that strange black "bird" with four legs, a long tail and a come-hither look. She also has sharp claws and a hearty appetite.

The first time I heard Rotunda imitating a crow I thought she had something stuck in her throat. She was lounging on the back porch, idly peering through the screen door into the backyard.

"Caw, caw, caw," she cried plaintively as a crow alighted in the flowering crab.

When I investigated, there was nothing wrong with Rotunda's throat. Diverted by my unsolicited attention, however, she followed me into the kitchen and demanded shrimp scampi for lunch, using a very normal "meow" to place her order.

A few mornings later I was awakened by the clatter of crows and bluejays outside the open bedroom window. Then suddenly a sound closer at hand made me sit bolt upright.

Rotunda was lolling on the windowsill, talking to the birds in their own language. "Caw, caw, caw."

The next day I heard her on the front porch, chattering away like a magpie.

Now if I were the only one who had heard her I wouldn't tell anybody but my psychiatrist. But everyone in the house has heard her perform at one time or another.

She simply enjoys doing bird calls and is very good at it. If I could get her to do them on demand, I'd put her on television. But she apparently only pretends to be a bird when she's in the mood for a little fun. Or whenever she's a little hungry.

OF COURSE, I've always been fascinated by animal communication. I have never actually encountered a talking dog, but my father used to tell me about a dog — an Irish setter — which lived in Detroit's old Corktown neighborhood. The dog's vocabulary was limited but it could say one sentence with perfect clarity and with a delightful Irish brogue: "Is that a rat?"

Whenever my dad took his own little dog for a walk on a leash, the talking dog would inquire politely from its front porch: "Is that a rat?"

Dad thought the talking dog not only was impertinent but very dumb. Who ever heard of anyone taking a rat for a walk on a leash?

MY LATE GREAT uncle, Jim Winter of Windsor, Ontario, thought goldfish had a lot of communication potential, particularly in the field entertainment.

I remember him telling me how he once tried to train a goldfish to whistle. He didn't think it would be very difficult, since a fish's lips are naturally pursed.

However, in order to get Goldie to whistle he had to train it to breathe out of water. Every day, he would take the fish out of its bowl for longer periods of time until Goldie became accustomed to fresh air.

While the fish was out of its bowl, Uncle Jim would whistle sea chanties and other songs which he thought might appeal to underwater creatures, such as "Row, Row, Row Your Boat" and "Red Sails in the Sunset." The little creature tried hard and was just beginning to make a few faint wheezing sounds when a terrible thing happened.

One evening Uncle Jim was interrupted by a caller during Goldie's bedtime whistling lesson and he forgot to put his protege back in the bowl.

It wasn't until the next morning that Uncle Jim discovered his oversight and immediately returned the fish to water. The poor thing gasped for air and drowned.

At least that was Uncle Jim's story.

I wish he were still around to hear my cat who does bird calls.

Letters to the Editor:

Parking tickets dampen spirits of visitors

Residents of Charlevoix

Requiring visitors to pay parking tickets certainly dampens the spirits following an exhilarating afternoon in one of the most beautiful communities I know throughout much of the western world. I grew up in Michigan and have spent time and money in Charlevoix annually for 30 plus years. I would be happy to support Charlevoix's parking lots, parks, and maintenance of citizens who need jobs, or any reasonable straightforward request for a couple of dollars.

I do not enjoy having punitive action taken against me to which I must plead "guilty" when I am five minutes late after spending $200 in Charlevoix. Surely there is a way to manage the parking situation, and promote a world of respect and dignity by honoring the goodwill of most people. Our attitudes contribute to either breaking people's spirits or uplifting them.

As examples, some Danish towns have an interesting honor system using cardboard clocks behind their windshields to limit their own time. A Swedish-owned IKEA furniture store in Toronto has a simple lunch cafeteria at the end of which is a little box with a slit on top and a list of prices - no "guards". It has worked for about ten years. You should see the looks on people's faces when they reach the end of that line for the first time.

It is a poor example to our youth to use power of authority and trivial punitive means to "trick a living" rather than "earn a living" words of R. Buckminster Fuller, Grunch of Giants. Surely Charlevoix has the leadership and creativity to devise a system representing a quality of life as beautiful as Charlevoix, and as promising as our children's future. Let's set our sights higher - on liberty and responsibility, in the pursuit of happiness.

Kindness appreciated

Dear Editor

I wish to publicly offer my thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Russell, proprietors of the Airport Motel, for the kind hospitality extended to us during our recent stay in Charlevoix.

We had driven all day and didn't arrive until after 2 a.m. Mrs. Russell then welcomed us with a warm smile and kindly showed us to our room. The room was immaculate, charming and very comfortable - quite a welcome sight after the long drive.

The next day, while preparing to attend a wedding, we discovered, much to our dismay, that we had forgotten to pack an iron and a blow-dryer. I hurried to the office to call a friend who lived in the area. Mrs. Russell heard me describe the desperate situation and - before I had finished the call - had retrieved her own iron and blow-dryer and offered them to me to use. Her kindness saved the day and to mention my hair and outfit!

I moved away from the area over three years ago, and had forgotten the kindness of "northern Michiganders" toward strangers. I want to thank Mr. and Mrs. Russell for reminding me, again and again, during our stay.

Congratulations to Sue Annis, winner of the 1986 Venetian T-shirt Design Contest. Shirts will be available to purchase the week of Venetian at the Chamber of Commerce.

The newly organized Merchant Group, an arm of the Chamber, has met regularly for the last several months. Any retailer who is a member of the Charlevoix Chamber is welcome to come and be a part of this group. Block captains have been designated, and through phone calls and personal contact, a direct line of communications has been established.

This network can be utilized for warning against suspected shoplifters, bad check writers, and the like, as well as to announce meetings.

Special thanks to the following volunteers who serve as block captains: Don Dannecker, Mayfair of Charlevoix; Lee Schnackenberg, North Country Kids; Mike Greeley, Wharf Side Market; Rod Robertson, The Clothing Company; Ken Gray, 7-Eleven; Barb Kluczynski, Barb's Hallmark Harbor.

The 18th Annual Charlevoix Hobbycraft Show last weekend was a big success because of the weather. Throngs of people lined East Park instead of opting for the beach. Thanks to all the crafters who made the day enjoyable.

Out of the Blue

I miss Imelda badly,
Her shopping sprees were news-
Now I wander sadly...
Who will ever fill her shoes?

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Carter

Willits-Carter

The First United Methodist Church of Ann Arbor was the setting for the June 14 afternoon wedding of DeLynn Marie Willits and Guy Wayne Carter.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Willits of Ann Arbor, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Carter of Charlevoix.

Dr. Donald Strobe officiated at the double-ring rites before an altar decorated with floral bouquets. Approximately 350 guests watched as the bride's father gave her in marriage. Her gown was fashioned of sheer white fabric over taffeta. It was appliqued with lace and featured a lace and pearl decal on the bodice. Her veil was cap-style fingertip length, with floral appliques around the edges. She carried a cascading bouquet of roses, carnations, and baby's breath.

Sheryl Danci, the bride's sister, served as matron of honor, and Marilyn Willits, her sister-in-law, Marcia Carter, another sister-in-law, and Sue Swope and Cece Eloff were bridesmaids. The matron of honor's gown was light yellow with an ivory lace overlay on the bodice and sleeves. The bridesmaids' gowns were light peach in the same style.

Angie Willits, niece of the bride, served as flower girl. Her dress was yellow in the same style as that of the other attendants. Corey Hull, nephew of the bridegroom, served as ringbearer.

Peter Hooper assisted the bridegroom as best man. Dave Carter, the bridegroom's brother, Gary Willits, his brother-in-law, and Jim Elzinga and Tom Jones were groomsmen and ushers.

Music for the ceremony was provided by organist Mary Stubbins and vocalist Lynn Duncanson, who offered the theme song from "Love Story".

The bride's parents hosted a reception at their cottage on Bass Lake following the wedding ceremony. They were assisted by other members of the bride's family.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's family at the Holiday Inn West in Ann Arbor.

Following a wedding trip to San Francisco and Hawaii, the newlyweds are now at home in Ann Arbor, where the bridegroom is a carpenter and the bride is manager-owner of a restaurant.

I care about the needs of our Community

I care about the effects of high taxes on our retired citizens and the working families.

Voters have no control over assessment increases. It is an endless circle: larger budgets, increased assessments and higher taxes. Within five years my own taxes increased 44 per cent.

I care about some people paying more taxes because other people pay less.

The True Cash Value of our city is now almost 200 million dollars (including the city's investment in its utility systems). Only the most qualified person should be elected to the office of Mayor.

I care about our city. It is a big business and getting bigger. Long range planning is now needed.

Our city police force is often criticized. But is the only one we have. It has all the qualities to become better. I would encourage it to be the best there is.

Condominiums are now reaching the seturetion point. Our own citizens heve less and less access to our lake frontages. Future condominiums should be denied direct water site developments.

If given the opportunity I would work very hard to make Charlevoix a better place for every one.

I need your votes. Ask a friend to go to the polls with you on August 5th.

Building a home? -- here's what to do

by PEG OHLE

Charlevoix County is in the midst of a busy construction year. Since the first of January, the Department of Building Inspection has issued over 250 permits for construction of all kinds, from condominium units to storage sheds.

Many persons have their construction plans well pinned down by the time they seek a building permit. Others have not fully investigated the many ramifications and pitfalls that can develop during construction of any kind.

The Michigan State Department of Licensing and Regulation, which licenses building contracts and Howard Carson, head of Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection, have some suggestions about what to do before, during and after a residential building project.

Carson emphasizes that no project should be started before obtaining building permits from his office. The application for permits requires information on building specs. It also requires that the builder obtain a septic system and well permit (where applicable) from the Health Department, and a zoning permit from the city or township in which the residence will be located.

The Department of Licensing and Regulation suggests that it is a good idea to select a building contractor carefully. "Get the names of contractors from friends or neighbors who have had satisfactory work done, from people at local home improvements centers, from builders' shows or open houses, or from your local utility company. The Yellow Pages also list licensed builders who do business in your community. The local home builders association will be a good source of information," the Department advises.

Prospective home builders should be aware that all contractors offering to do work which totals over $600 for labor and materials must have a state license. A Residential Builder's license allows a contractor to build a complete structure and also do maintenance or alteration (remodeling) work. Maintenance and Alteration license indicates that the holder has met requirements for specific trades or crafts: basement waterproofing, carpentry, concrete excavation, house wrecking, insulation, masonry, painting and decorating, roofing, etc.

"You should get at least three estimates from different contractors to compare costs," the Department of Licensing cautions. "Beware of bids which are too low or unreasonably out of line with other bids. Be sure the estimates specify the total price and the method of payment, the kind of quality of materials to be used, and the estimated length of time it will take to complete the work. The contractor should also have current liability insurance and Workers Compensation coverage in case of accidents on the job.

When you have finally selected a contractor, make sure that all agreements are in writing, the Department further advises. This will make sure there are no misunderstanding about the work or the terms of the contract. Among items that should be covered are:

Names, address and phone number of contractors's company, full name and contractor's license number, name of contact person, detailed job specifications, starting and completion dates, statement that all required building permits and variances will be obtained by the contractor before work is begun, statement of liability insurance and worker's compensation coverage, statement of warranty on the work, specification that cleanup will be done by the contractor, provision for credits and refunds since you should not have to pay for any materials not used, a "right to cancel" clause if the contractor solicited you at home, a statement that all changes or modifications to the contract must be dated and initialed by both parties, a schedule of payments which paces the payments to the work (do not put down more than 10 percent deposit).

Read all documents carefully, and if you think the occasion merits, have an attorney review the contract and any other forms before you sign them, especially if a large sum of money is involved.

Carson especially cautioned that final payment not be made to the building contractor until the contractor has received a certificate of occupancy from Carson's office. "We won't issue this certificate", Carson said, "until we have made all inspections -- construction, electrical, plumbing, and mechanical – and we issue it to the person who obtains the permit (usually the contractor)".

Carson adds that inspecting for this certificate of occupancy gives him a good handle on how the house is built. "If they don't let me know the house is finished and ready to be inspected, I can't issue this certificate. Also, now banks that make loans want to see it."

During the course of construction, contractors must call the Department of Building Code Inspection to make inspections after the footings are put in, after the rough-in, and after the job is finished.

If any problems arise between the contractor and the home owner, they should be resolved between them, if possible. If this fails, the home owner may take the problem to Small Claims Court (if his claim is small) but if all else fails, the home owner should contact the Michigan Department of Licensing and Regulation to file a complaint. The degree to which the Department can help you will depend on whether the contractor is licensed. If the home owner deals knowingly with an unlicensed contractor, he does so at his own risk.

Another important protection for homeowners is the "Construction Lien Recovery Fund." This fund helps homeowners faced with liens against their property by suppliers, subcontractors, or workmen for unpaid bills, even though they have already paid the contract. Contact the Department of Licensing and Regulation for more information about this consumer assistance program, or write for their booklet: Construction Lien Program, P.O. Box 30018, Lansing, Michigan 48909.

Sally Fogg and her children Matthew and Jennifer, from Holland, Mich., examine some of the wares at last weekend's Hobbycraft Fair.

Harsha House opens doors

The local museum at Harsha House operated by the Charlevoix Historical Society is now open four afternoons each week, Thursday through Sunday, for the benefit of visitors to the community.

The hours at the museum, located at 103 State St., a block from the business district, are 1 until 4 p.m. Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday of each week through Labor Day.

The family album library collection initiated recently is progressing well with the Paddock, Finucan and Durance family histories complete. The society furnished standard materials for use in family albums. Further information is available during the weekly open houses or by writing to the Charlevoix Historical Society, P.O. Box 525, Charlevoix, 49720.

It has been announced that metallic plaques, four different scenes of early Charlevoix, a project promoted by the late Bob Miles, are available at the museum at $20 each plus tax.

A number of items have been contributed to the museum recently.

Among them are the original safe from the Charlevoix Lumber Co. office donated by John Hisey; a beautiful old oak showcase from the Charlevoix County Bank, a World War I uniform given by Mrs. Michael Gibbons; a Navy uniform worn by the late Capt. H.E. Paddock, U.S.N. retired, donated by his daughter, Mrs. Mildred Richards and a full set of old Brittanica Encyclopedia given by John Gaskin.

New pastor named at Church of God

by PEG OHLE

When the new pastor accepted the call to the Charlevoix Church of God, he did so remembering the many happy days he had spent in northern Michigan as a child.

Although he was born in Ann Arbor, the Reverend William Elders, Jr. lived in the Vanderbilt-Wolverine area, where his father was employed. He later moved to Midland, where he graduated from high school, then to Cleveland, Tennessee, where he graduated from Lee College, which is run by the Church of God.

The Reverend Elders' first pastorate was in Alma, as assistant to his father. He later succeeded his father as pastor when the latter became ill.

Commenting on his new assignment in Charlevoix, the Reverend Elder told the Courier:

"Although we enjoy the fishing and the area is beautiful, what we really want to emphasize is that we are here to minister to the needs of people and to be a blessing to the community.

"We would like to let people know, young and old alike, that in a fast pace society, where many times there seems to be no "fast" answers, there is still hope in Jesus Christ.

"We at the Charlevoix Church of God are believing God for a city-wide revival and restoration that will change peoples' lives for eternity. We are expecting an out-pouring of the Holy Spirit.

"As my wife and I have had the opportunity to minister throughout the State of Michigan and several other states, we have had the privilege of watching Christ restore peoples' lives and satisfy the thirsting of their souls as only He can. We are convinced that He can and will do it again here in Charlevoix".

The Reverend Elders and his wife, Paula, have two children. James is two-and-a-half years old, and Kimberley is seven months old. Sunday Church of God services begin with Sunday School at 10 a.m., followed by morning worship at 11 a.m., and evening evangelistic services at 6 p.m. There is also a family training hour at 7 p.m. on Thursday.

the Church of God is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year, an occasion which will call for many special services and events.

Gospel rock show planned

The Gospel Rock Review, a multi-media presentation presenting over fifty of today's Christian artists, will be presented at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix Sunday evening, July 20 at 8 p.m. Some of the artists presented on record by Gerry and Sara Cocoran of Phoenix, Arizona during the program will be Amy Grant, Petra, Phil Keaggy, The Imperials, Degarmo and Key, and Sandi Patti.

The Cocorans have over 20 years experience in music, worship, leading and teaching in the church.

In addition to presenting cuts from over fifty record albums, Gerry and Sara will address some frequently asked questions about the place of music in the Christian faith and the relationship between contemporary music and the historical movement of Christian music. Gerry and Sara will share with the audience some of the devotional habits of the musicians involved in Christian contemporary music.

"Gospel Rock Review will be of interest to young people, to parents of young people, to pastors, youth directors, teachers, and to others who enjoy modern contemporary Christian music," organizers say. If you have any questions call Larry Grooters, pastor of Community Reformed Church.

State programs employ area youth

Thirty-seven Charlevoix County young people, aged 16 to 21, are employed this year under the Summer Youth Employment and Training Program and the Michigan Youth Corps.

The young people, all considered economically disadvantaged, have jobs in county and city departments and other non-profit organizations.

They are working 40 hours a week at minimum wage on both outdoor and indoor projects.

Funds for the program come from a combination of state and federal sources. The amount of money allocated to each county is based on the unemployment rate in the county. Through a complicated formula using Charlevoix County's 1985 unemployment rate of 13.1 percent, the county was allocated 37 youth jobs this summer. They are being filled as follows:

Charlevoix Public Schools, two; City of Charlevoix, one; Char-Em School District, two; Charlevoix County Humane Society, one; Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, two; Char-Em Auto Project, three; Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection, one; Chip Counseling Center, one; Charlevoix County Senior Center, one; Charlevoix County Youth Activities, one; Beaver Island Historical Society, one; Fisherman's Island State Park, one.

East Jordan Housing Commission, one; East Jordan Family Health Center, two; Grandview Medical Care Facility, two; East Jordan Chamber of Commerce, one; City of East Jordan, two.

Boyne Falls Public Schools one; Boyne City High School, two; Village of Boyne Falls, one; Boyne City Avalanche Park, three; Boyne City Parks Department, one; DNR Boyne City Field Office, one; Boyne City Department of Public Works, one; Boyne City Harbor, one; Young State Park, one.

Dave Kurzinski of the Job Training office in Traverse City and Steve Cooper of the local Char-Em office explained to the County Board of Commissioners last week that these jobs not only provide needed work for young people, but also present an opportunity for career training and counseling as well as educational counseling. They said they could have placed twice as many young people this summer if funds had been available.

New 4-H leader on the job

by PEG OHLE

Jane Regenmorter has been on the job as Charlevoix County 4-H Agent for only a few weeks, but she has already been initiated into several programs.

She has attended 4-H Exploration Days in East Lansing, participated in an overnight campout in Whiting Park, and spent much of her time planning the Beaver Island Campout to be held July 28 to 31.

Jane is particularly interested in the Beaver Island Campout, for boys and girls from age nine up. "They don't need to be 4-H members", she explained, "and they don't even have to live in Charlevoix County". This year, the campers will be housed in wooden buildings rather than in tents, and there will even be some Beaver Island kids in the camp, according to Jane.

Total cost of attending the Beaver Island camp is $38, including ferry fare from Charlevoix. As of this date, there may or may not be any vacancies. Interested persons should call 582-6232.

Looking forward to other activities during the year, Jane says she will concentrate on the 4-H clubs and try to provide the type of activities the members are interested in. "I'm going to ask them what they want", she explained, "and try to follow their suggestions, be it horseback riding, roller skating parties, or whatever. And I want to have activities for boys and girls together, not segregated like the Scouts and other such groups".

Jane came to Charlevoix County from Traverse City, where she was activities director for the Homestead Resort, coach of the Traverse City High School boys' swim team, and instructor at the Poseiden Swim Club for younger boys and girls. She has also held other recreational jobs, including one at the Park Place Hotel Health Club.

A graduate of Michigan State University with a degree in Natural Resources Management, Jane grew up in Grand Rapids and graduated from Creston High School. Her interests include sailboarding, horseback riding, camping, and traveling.

Alumni band to march in parade

The Charlevoix High School Alumni Band, being organized by Jeff Wellman to march in the Venetian Street Parade on Saturday, July 26, has become a reality according to Wellman.

For those interested or who missed the earlier announcement, there's still plenty of room, Wellman said.

The one and only rehearsal for the group is scheduled for 7 p.m. Wednesday, July 23 at the high school band room. Bring your instrument and join the fun, Wellman said in renewing the invitation.

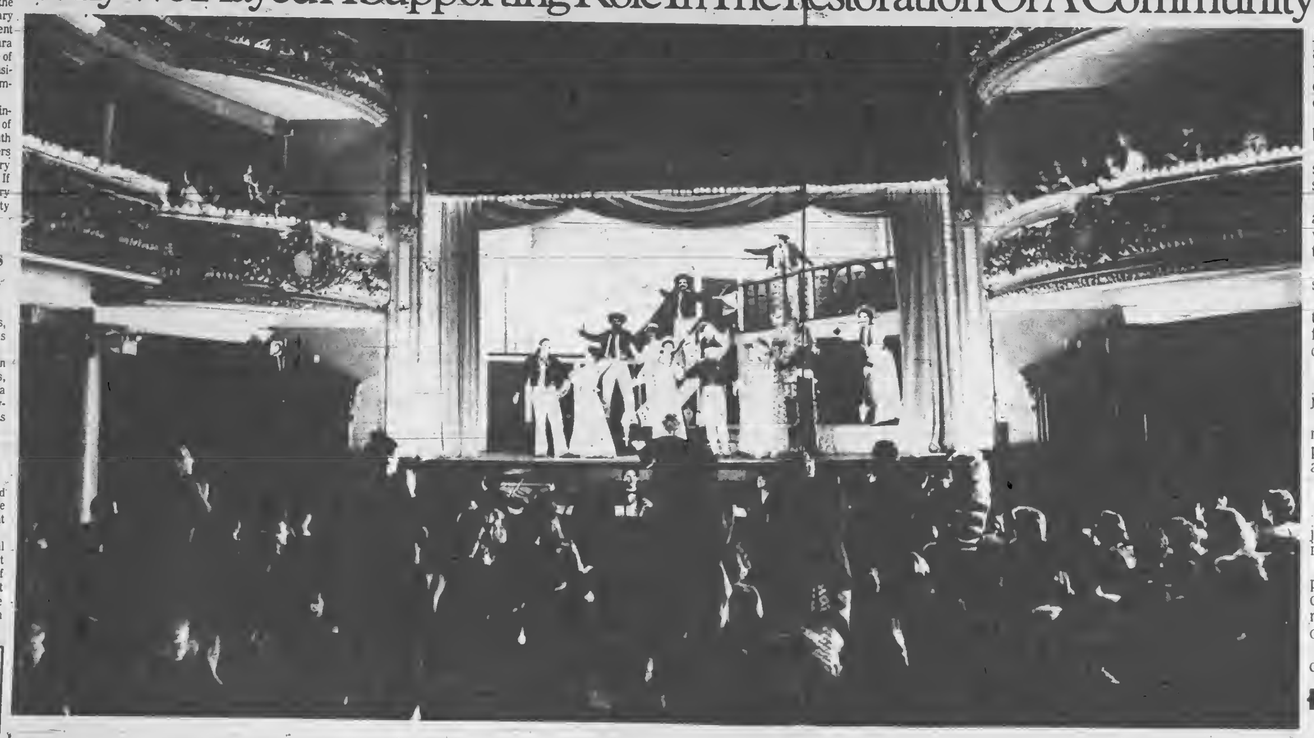
Some instruments are being furnished. You can sign up at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Traditional jass band appears

Chet Bogan and his Wolverine Traditional Jass Band featuring high-stepping song-belter Dixie Belle, will play a return concert engagement by popular demand, Friday, July 25 at 8 p.m. at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center.

This versatile group of musicians is well remembered in the Petoskey area for their exciting performances and repertoire, the many dates they have played in the community, and the several standing ovations they have received from enthusiastic audiences, here and abroad.

Why We Played A Supporting Role In The Restoration Of A Community Opera House.



Near the turn of the century, two-bits and a little bit of luck put you near the front of the standing room only crowds that were the hallmark of this opera house.

Mary Pickford, at the time just a blossoming star, graced its stage.

As did Annie Oakley's traveling show of six-guns and other assorted shootin' irons.

In fact, over the years, what with all the stars of vaudeville and theatre who performed here, you would have thought it was Broadway in New York.

Not a small midwest town's main street opera house.

Even talking movies couldn't do to the grand old place what a major fire, many years of neglect and then a condemnation notice would finally do.

Close its doors.

But to the townspeople, the show just had to go on.

So when private citizens and business people got together to restore this priceless landmark, a lot of our people asked what part they could play.

You see, we're not just bankers.

We're part of the community.

So we believe that sometimes it's just as important to lend a hand as it is to lend someone money.

At First of America Bank, we're proud we were part of the impressive community cast of characters that raised the money it took to bring the opera house back to life.

And we applaud the entire town's contribution to the performing arts.

We're Community Banks First.

Paul Burlew is shown with two early donations to the Petunie auction -- a large seagull from Gordon Neff and, in the background, a 16-foot Cape Cod sloop.

Petunia fundraiser doubles goal

The old petunia watering truck just isn't what it used to be. The 24-year-old vehicle, custom rigged to allow Dale and Marilyn Boss to water the petunias planted along U.S. 31, is getting a little unreliable, Boss says.

So Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc., which each year plants the nearly 50,000 petunias, is making plans for replacement of the truck. To do that, they hope to increase the proceeds from this year's petunia fundraising auction – to be held Saturday, Aug. 2 – from $9,000 last year to $18,000 this year.

The auction has already received many donations toward its ambitious goal, but Kate and Paul Burlew, chairpersons for the auction, say more is needed.

Among the items already received are a 16-foot sailboat with 3 h.p. Mercury motor, a large concrete seagull with a nearly four-foot wing span mounted on a piece of wood taken from the old railroad bridge, nine boat cruises, a case of Michelob, a sailboard, and a Kawasaki road bike.

This year there will also be a silent auction conducted the week before the main event is staged in East Park. Merchants will display silent auction items they have donated in their stores. Bidders simply write down their offer on a form which is displayed with the item. The silent auction will close as the live auction begins at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Anyone with items to donate to the auction or things to be picked up for storage should call Paul Burlew at Accents by Burlew, 547-5675.

Beaver Island history explored

The Beaver Island Historical Society is celebrating its seventh annual Museum Week this week. There was a tour on Tuesday of St. James residences which have a special significance to the culture of the island. On Friday there will be boat tours of historic sites in the harbor.

Once again noted Island quilters Gwen Marston and Joe Cunningham displayed and discussed quilts, their history and place in the world of art. Marston and Cunningham have just completed a quilt to be raffled off over a two-year period for the benefit of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

During the week, the Historical Society is sponsoring three lectures on island nature and culture both past and present. Wednesday evening Gary Dulin of CMU will talk about his studies of loons, their habits and habitats; Thursday evening, John McKinney of the Sea Grant Project, will discuss the high waters of the Great Lakes and shoreline erosion; and Friday evening, Angie Price, Protar historian, will give more insight into the life of the famous island hermit and legendary "doctor." All talks will be held at 8 p.m. in the Community School.

There will be a pet show on Thursday afternoon for the children and a dance Saturday evening for the adults.

Island artists and craftsmen will exhibit throughout the week and special exhibits are planned for both the Print Shop and Marine Museums. In addition, Protar's home will be open Wednesday afternoon.

Beaver Island can be reached by ferry boat daily from Charlevoix or by Island Airways from Traverse City, Harbor Springs, Pellston and Charlevoix. For more information call the Beaver Island tourist office, 448-2505.

Tag Day arrives Friday

Plans for the annual Tag Day, scheduled for Friday, July 18, were made at a recent meeting of the Grandvue Medical Care Facility Auxiliary held at the facility.

The event will be held throughout Charlevoix to raise funds toward the purchase of a Century Tub for use in the Supervised Residential Care Unit of the facility. This will be the third Century Tub purchased by the auxiliary for use at Grandvue.

A Century Tub is an automatic bathtub-whirlpool combination with an automatic chairlift attached.

Area chairpersons for Tag Day will be Mrs. Lucille Dolwick of Boyne City, Mrs. Leva Cole and Mrs. Glenna Malpass of East Jordan, Mrs. Mary Margaret Geiken of Charlevoix and Mrs. Jean LaFreniere and Mrs. Helen LaFreniere Pike of St. James, Beaver Island. Anyone wishing to assist may call the respective chairpersons to volunteer. In Charlevoix Mrs. Geiken's number is 547-6719.

The next meeting of the auxiliary scheduled for Thursday, July 10 will be the annual patio potluck luncheon. Election of officers for 1986-87 will be held during the business meeting.

The Fourth of July Celebration of 1908 was an event of double importance for Charlevoix, for the laying of the Bithulithic paving had just been completed. People came from far and wide, as much to see the clean new street as to enjoy the day-long fireworks. From Bob Miles' Charlevoix.

In the summer of 1908, Charlevoix County State Bank was already in its 24th year of working side by side with neighbors helping northern Michigan prosper by supporting the paving of streets, giving businesses and families their first start, and helping northern Michigan look to the future. Over 100 years of independent service. Northern Michigan people helping to build the Michigan dream.

Wanted: Grandmother volunteers

A Charlevoix grandmother who is separated from her grandchildren by hundreds of miles might bridge her lonesomeness for them by signing up with the local Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP).

Pat Graybiel, new coordinator for RSVP in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties, says she has a request from the Charlevoix Area Hospital for grandmotherly volunteers to rock and nurture babies, both newborn and older, who are in the hospital.

Among other organizations needing volunteers, according to Mrs. Graybiel, are CHIP Counseling Center, office help; Charlevoix County Humane Society, "taggers" for their upcoming tag day; and the Charlevoix High School, reading assistants and paper correctors.

Mrs. Graybiel expects requests from others in the near future.

Homebound senior citizens are also welcome in RSVP to assist with the many knitting, sewing, and other handicraft projects of non-profit organizations.

RSVP is part of ACTION, the federal agency for volunteer services. Volunteers, who must be at least 60 years old, work when and where they want. Each volunteer is covered by insurance while serving in a volunteer assignment, and if an assignment covers at least four hours and continues over a meal hour, the volunteer is reimbursed for the meal. Each volunteer is also reimbursed for cost of transportation or use of his own car to a volunteer assignment.

"There is no cost for the services of a RSVP volunteer or for joining the RSVP organization. More than half of the funding for the program comes from the federal government and the remainder comes from local sources---donations from individuals, local organizations, money-making projects, and the State of Michigan.

RSVP is really a social service program for older people, enabling them to become or remain active in the community by volunteering their talents and experiences. Locally, it is sponsored by Community Family and Children's Services. It is also a United Way organization.

Persons wishing to volunteer for RSVP services and organizations needing its assistance should contact the RSVP office at 3f6½ East Mitchell Street, Suite No, 5, Petoskey, or call 347-5070.

Northwood offers two series featuring pop and chamber music

A double series of concerts in Petoskey and Harbor Springs gives good music lovers a wide variety of "serious" and "popular" classics to enjoy this summer, as the Northwood Orchestra returns to the area for its seventh annual Festival of the Lakes.

Under the direction of conductor Don Th. Jaeger, the orchestra will perform a series of three chamber music concerts on Tuesday nights, beginning July 22 at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center. On Fridays beginning July 25, the orchestra will explore the lighter side of the classics in a series of pops concerts, to be held in the festival tent at Black Forest Hall, located at the corner of Hoyt and Quick roads north of Harbor Springs.

During his 30-year career as oboe soloist, conductor and music director, Jaeger has earned an international reputation for his refreshing approach to the classics and his creative programming.

He has conducted the Aspen Festival Orchestra, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, the Chattanooga Symphony, the Philharmonic Orchestra of Lisbon, the Oporto Symphony Orchestra in Portugal, the Antwerp Philharmonic in Belgium, and the State Orchestra of Thessolaniki in Greece.

Jaeger has been music director and conductor of the Northwood Orchestra since its founding in 1979. Four years later, the group made its Carnegie Hall debut under his baton, a concert he preview for his Petoskey audience.

This summer's dual programming of classics and pops, he says, is designed to include staples of the world's great music, as well as music for the people who want to grow musically.

"The difference between the chamber series and the pops is basically one of environment," Jaeger says. "The pops series is meant to be an environmental party, including literature that is familiar that everybody knows.

"The chamber series is not meant to be threatening, but is more concerned with challenging then with entertaining. It's more of an adventure," he says.

Music by Handel, Stravinsky, Copland and Beethoven is included in the season premier concert on July 22, which will feature Van Cliburn competition silver medalist Philippe Bianconi as piano soloist. An encore performance of this concert is planned for Thursday, July 24.

Strauss will be performed by orchestra and soloists Dennis Horton, trumpet; David D. Sprony, trombone; Frank Kowalsky, clarinet; and Seth Krimsky, bassoon.

The pops series is designed to be a "mini-tanglewood," with concertgoers bringing picnic suppers to enjoy in the shed before the performances. Concerts are themed to encompass the traditional summer bandstand staples, romantic compositions perfect for an old-fashioned prom, and the favorite works of nineteenth century Russian composer Tschaikowksy.

Philippe Bianconi (left) will appear as soloist in the first concert of the Northwood Orchestra's northern Michigan Festival of the Lakes, July 22. Pictured with Bianconi is orchestra music director and conductor Don Th. Jaeger.

On July 29, soprano Paulina Stark will sing arias and recitatives from Julius Caesar by Handel, and the marriage of Figaro by Mozart. Other works on the program include the Sinfonietta by Poulenc, Brahms' variations on a theme of Haydn, a selection from The Consul by Menotti and Ariadne auf Naxos by Richard Strauss.

August 5 is the final chamber concert, which will conclude with Beethoven's lyric pastorale, the Symphony No. 6 in F. Major, Op. 68. Aragaa's Los Esclavos Felices Overture will open the final concert, and works by Ole Schmidt and Richard Tickets for either of the series are $20 for adults, $12 students. For both series the prices are $38 adults, $22 students. Single concert ticket prices are $8 adults and $5 students.

The Tuesday concerts begin at 8 p.m. and the Friday concerts are at 7 p.m.

Tickets may be purchased from the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey, Hovey's Pharmacy in Harbor Springs and at the Apple Tree in Charlevoix. For concert information, call the McCune Arts Center at 347-4337.

Tennis outing benefits art center

Tom Todd and Nancy Schleunder won the B players' tournament from Walloon while MacArthur and Laur took the honors from Charlevoix. Laur is a student from Bordeaux, France who is staying with the Paul Kieswetters.

Hostesses for the event were (shown above) Joan MacGillivary (right) and Gina Lepman. The tournament and luncheon were held at the Loeb Farm this year with the finals played at the Little Traverse Racquet Club.

weather spinnaker. "I looked back and thought that he had taken down his chute," said Ginny Madaras of Ti-Gi, "but then f realized that some of it was still flying at the masthead." With ingenuity, bravado and tremendous crew work on the sheets, Begrow raised his light-air replacement within five minutes and resumed his position in the fleet.

Tom Bickersteth's 25-foot Santana, Mud Duck, took on a 600-foot lake freighter at mid-crossing. "Yes, it might have been interesting," said Bickersteth from his berth in the Shamrock, "but he made a small course change 1;000 yard in front of me and cleared me by 50. Tom (LaBlance) wasn't sure whether to stay topside or go below, but he hung with it and displayed considerable nerve for his first sailboat ride."

The Shamrock Bar in St. James played host as the reception committee for the mariners and the shore leave extended well into the dogwatch.

The return leg Sunday was run in mist, rain, intermittent brisk winds and the ever-present fog. Those yachts without Loran - electronic navigational equipment - either fell in with one that was known to have it, or took DR fixes every 15 to 30 minutes for the crossing.

For the overall finishing position, Ti-Gi captured the Jib and Main (JAM) flag, while Night Moves won the chute group.

Individual fleets positions were:

Fleet A: Ti-Gi; Apothecary

Fleet B: Mud Duck, Wildflower

Fleet C: Nulli Secundus; Blazen fff; Cygnus

Fleet D: Night Moves

Fleet E: Mint Julip: Slapshot: Flying Machine

Mrs. Edna LaBlance Rankin and her family presented the Memorial Cup Trophy at the post-race reception at the Charlevoix Yacht Club. Two members of her family, Georgia and Tom, had sailed with the fleet while she and her other children, Steve and Brendan, met the sailors at St. James.

In other CYC race activities, the Wednesday night series of July 9 finished as follows:

Fleet f: Charlie Brown, Kritter, Pygmalion, Plastic Fantastic, Gotcha, Flying Machine - Slapshot, Mint Julip.

Fleet If: Wing nut, Brass Tacks, Babe, Merry Hell, Flash, Bandit, Maranatha.

Fleet fff: Blazen, Sprectre, Tireless, Cygnus, San-Sue-She, Phoenicia, Nulli Secundus.

Fleet fV: Canusa, Mud Duck, Cheernaun, Apothecary, Sandpiper; Stalworth, Maureen, Ti-Gi, Cool Whip, Kittiwake, Carousel, Ribit.

County pay schedule revised after study responsibilities, he or she could receive $4.52 an hour at the end of five years by moving up to the top level.

There is another added consideration in the county's pay schedule, however. For the last several years, employees have been receiving annual "cost of living" salary increases averaging four percent.

In addition to the new pay schedule for hourly and salaried county employees, there is another new schedule for those in management positions. The Grade I starting salary for this group is $7.78 an hour, down from the old starting salary of $9 an hour.

Management employees' top salary possibilities have also gone down, from $21.46 an hour to $14.25 an hour.

Charlevoix County employees receive fringe benefits that would seem liberal to many other local wage earners. After one year of employment, they receive one week's paid vacation; after two years, two weeks; after five years, three weeks; and after 10 years, 20 days. After 11 years, they receive 20 days of vacation plus one day for each year of employment over 10, up to 30 days 8 year. Employees also receive 10 paid holidays a year.

Other fringe benefits include retirement benefits at age 60 after 10 years of employment or at age 55 after 15 years of employment; comprehensive Blue Cross-Blue Shield coverage, and dental care coverage.

Mrs. Brannon estimates that the fringe benefits for a man or woman supporting a family amount to about $1,500 a year.

Charlevoix condo growth documented

All told, these properties had a state equalized value of $21,077,200, he calculated, and paid just over $1 million in taxes during 1985.

"THE CONDOMINIUMS, because of their combined buying power, are able to buy the choicest locations," McRae said. "Consequently, the local homeowners are losing access to much of the water frontage. Much of Round Lake is becoming walled off to the general public."

McRae said that, if anything, Charlevoix "needs more moderately priced condos. This would allow retired people and one-person owners of large homes to live more conveniently and cheaper."

He was critical of the amount of taxes paid by the Belvedere and Chicago clubs. "They are due for a reappraisal of their true cash value," he added.

He also questioned the taxing of the land associations as combined entities. "The condominium owners all pay their individual taxes on each of their units. Not so with the land associations. The homes and land are usually lumped together in one large tax bill." He said in other land associations in northern Michigan – like Harbor Point, Bay View and Wequetonsing – the homes are assessed individually.

THE 288 CONDOMINIUMS now in Charlevoix occupy 20.65 acres, McRae found, and own 2,034.8 feet of water frontage. They paid $699,151 in total 1985 taxes to the city, schools and county.

The land associations accounted for 109 units on 121 acres and 7,200 feet of water frontage. They were assessed at $4,467,600 and paid $214,265 in total taxes in 1985.

Northwest Marine and the Harbor Club own the two condominium docks in the city. Northwest Marine includes 217 units on 20.09 acres of water and 644.16 feet of lakefront. The Harbor Club docks include 18 boat slips. Together the two condominium dock groups were assessed $2,131,800 in 1986 and paid $97,445 in taxes.

McRAE SAID he hopes to continue to compile statistics on the condominiums in town. He would like to get figures on the utility charges paid to the city, the cost of the city extending utilities to the condos, the effect of condos on city businesses and services and other relevant information.

Council and Hayes Township. The communication states that donations of $26,600 have been received to help pay for the lawsuit; that costs for legal counsel to date are $33,781; and that one-half of the time spent by the Watershed Council staff in "legal research, scientific research, education and fundraising" amounts to $8,471.

"The Watershed Council is donating half of its staff time expenses as an in-kind contribution to the Township because we feel the future of lake protection hinges on this suit", the communication adds.

Attorneys for both sides of the case have stated that the Appeals Court decision in the case could have far-reaching influence on land use, zoning, and development plans in northern Michigan.

Merchants ask for removal of street goods

by DOUG TRUAX

Battles over the use of the city sidewalks surfaced at City Council Monday night with the mayor asking for quick action to curb skateboarders and bicyclists and the Charlevoix Merchant Association calling for the removal of all signs and merchandise from the Bridge Street walkways.

Mayor Hal Hill, angry and indignant after receiving a call Monday from a woman who had been knocked down by a bicyclist on Bridge Street, charged that the city police with failing to enforce the city ordinance. He called the situation "a shame and a disgrace."

"I've seen the enforcement people down there and they don't do one damn thing," Hill said.

Council passed an amendment to the City Code which would prohibit the use of skateboards as well as bicycles (which are currently banned) on city sidewalks.

Hill, however, was not convinced the action would do much good. "We can sit up here and pass 15 ordinances and if none of them is enforced it's not going to do a bit of good," he said.

LOU METTLER, president of the Charlevoix Merchant Association, called on council to act quickly to eliminate merchandise from Bridge Street. In a letter to City Manager Michael Wiesner circulated to council, Mettler called for strict enforcement of the ordinances prohibiting retail goods on the sidewalks.

"The Merchant Association is asking that the city now begin enforcement of the ordinance pertaining to all city sidewalks." He said that future exemptions might allow tables and chairs, but that signs, shoe racks, baskets, clothing and hardware should be prohibited.

"Things are a mess down there right now," Mettler told council. "It's certainly not Charlevoix-the-Beautiful and it certainly is not good."

Salmon fever begins to grip Charlevoix

by DOUG TRUAX

The salmon bonanza predicted for the Charlevoix area is beginning shape up in the waters off the Charlevoix pierheads, area fisheries experts report.

It is still too early to tell just how good the late summer and fall runs of chinook salmon will be, but fishermen are beginning to bring back respectable catches of salmon averaging 15 to 18 pounds.

Myrl Keller, head of the Great Lakes Fishery Station in Charlevoix and an architect of the Michigan salmon program, is optimistic that the last four years of intensive salmon plants in the Charlevoix area are about to produce a silvery reward for the area's fishermen and merchants.

"Most boats are now reporting one to three fish caught per trip," Keller said. "These are beautiful fish and they have a lot of scrap in them."

Last year salmon fishing in Charlevoix contributed $3.7 million to the local economy, according to DNR fisheries biologist Gerald Rakoczy.

The adult fish concentrating in the Charlevoix area now, Keller added, are two-, three- and four-year-old fish. The four-year-old fish were planted in the Jordan river as fingerlings. Since that time, salmon have been planted in the small creek which flows out of the rock quarry at Medusa Cement Plant on South Point.

Salmon enter Lake Michigan after being planted where they grow to maturity. They return to the rivers in the fall of their fourth year to spawn. A few three-year-old or "jack" salmon also mature early and return to spawn.

Some area anglers are also catching occasional early season steelhead trout. On Friday, the Ward Brothers charter service picked up a Skamania steelhead, a species of summer-run steelhead recently introduced to the Great Lakes waters by the Department of Natural Resources.

Keller says the salmon moving into the Charlevoix area are still feeding heavily on alewives and other baitfish. "If you start marking alewives, you can generally find salmon in that area," Keller said.

The fish being caught now are found mainly in water from 30 to 90 feet deep, he added, depending on water temperature. Salmon generally prefer 55-degree water.

The fishing has been reported good anywhere between Fisherman's Island and Nine Mile Point. Excellent fishing has also been reported west of Leland toward the Manitou Islands and north of Harbor Springs.

Keller said the salmon will require that Charlevoix fishermen, many of whom are more accustomed to

Pied Piper leads pack into Mackinac

by DOUG TRUAX

Early Monday morning Dick Jennings and the crew of his new boat, Pied Piper, sailed into Mackinac Island, the first boat to finish the Port Huron to Mackinaw race.

With the Chicago boat owner sailed a little of the pride of Charlevoix where the 66-foot Santa Cruz 70 had completed commissioning at the Irish Boat Shop just days prior to the race.

Unofficially, the Pied Piper finished 12th overall and sixth in the IOR (International Offshore Rule) Class A.

Sailing with Jennings was Dan Drost, an 18-year-old Charlevoixan who has been under the tutelage of Jennings for the past year. The son of Patricia Drost and Jerry Drost, both of Charlevoix, Dan is a 1985 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

The Port Huron to Mackinac race was the first on water race for the custom-built boat. That trip went considerably faster than the cross-country journey the boat endured, traveling from Santa Cruz, California where it was built to Charlevoix.

That journey took three and one-half weeks and left Jennings wondering if the boat would be ready for the Mackinac challenge.

The first truck hired to bring the boat proved too small. Another was dispatched and after a variety of encounters with various highway patrols, the boat arrived in Charlevoix where the crew at Irish Boat Shop stepped the mast, put on the keel and rudder, and prepared the engine.

Jennings, 40, a racing friend of Dave Irish, owner of the boat shop, chose Charlevoix as the place to commission his boat because he had been pleased with earlier work done on his cabin cruiser.

"The guys are real good here, that's why we came," Jennings said in Charlevoix prior to leaving for the Port Huron to Mackinac race.

"If we'd have gone to any other boat yard, we'd still be trying to put it in the water," he added. "These guys are very accommodating."

Tourist season shows mixed results

by DOUG TRUAX

Has the much predicted boom in Michigan tourism materialized this year? Or has the has all the hoopla of the "Say yes to Michigan" campaign masked an otherwise uneventful season?

As the summer season approaches the midway point, merchants are beginning to assess the situation in Charlevoix this summer.

For some the season has been good, but less than spectacular. Others are singing a very happy tune.

Claudia Kenifeck, executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, is among those who say things are going smashingly. "The retailers are going crazy," she said. "The inclement weather in June has increased business a lot."

One trend, she added, is for Charlevoix to attract large crowds until late at night. "At 11 at night people are still walking up and down the streets and many stores are still open." No other stores in this area of the north are open that late, she said.

Jim Mabee, owner of the Clothing Company, said his business has been "pretty level" like the clothing business has been in most of the state. "I think there are more people on the streets, but I don't see them in the store," Mabee pointed out, reflecting a sentiment expressed by other merchants. "I think we are getting more tourists and not as many resorters."

Mabee said his new store, Charlevoix Wear, is taking up any slack he is experiencing in the other business.

Dana de Tar, owner of Brownwood's store on Bridge street, reported that moneywise 1986 seems the same as last year, her first year in business. The store has been open until 8 or 9 p.m. but will be staying open until 10 p.m. for the rest of the summer, she said. "You can always tell when the summer people are here," she commented. "They come in and buy cases of jam."

De Tar said she is also doing a surprising amount of business with local people, particularly during the lunch hour.

The state Travel Bureau's director of research, Dave Morris, said he is getting mixed results from the early indicators. "The preliminary numbers seem to be even or on the Lloyd Kuebler (left) receives the Donald M. Pierce Award from an official of the Michigan Water Pollution Control Association.

Kuebler receives state award

Lloyd Kuebler, Charlevoix wastewater treatment plant superintendent, has been presented the prestigious Donald M. Pierce Award by the Michigan Water Pollution Control Association (MWPCA) at their annual conference in June.

MWPCA is a non-profit organization working for the preservation and enhancement of Michigan's water resources. It is a member association of the Water Pollution Control Federation, an international organization that has a diversified membership composed of wastewater treatment plant operators, engineering consultants, equipment and chemical sales representatives, regulatory officials and others whose interest lies in water pollution control.

The Pierce Award is presented each year to a worthy recipient who has demonstrated the ability to do an outstanding job by producing a good effluent from a clean orderly municipal wastewater treatment facility, while interacting with his employees and other operators for the betterment of the profession.

Kuebler has been employed by the City of Charlevoix since 1953. He has been superintendent of the wastewater treatment facility since 1965. He is responsible for the operation and maintenance of the facility including budgeting and purchasing of all equipment and supplies.

Kuebler has held a Michigan Class B wastewater operators certification since 1968. While under his supervision, the Charlevoix facility was presented an Award of Excellence from the Federal Environmental Protection Agency.

Kuebler lives in Charlevoix with his wife Anna. They have two children, a son Douglas and daughter Geri.

Salmon fishing activity picks up targeting on lake trout, to adopt new techniques.

"Successful salmon fishermen use downriggers to target on the depths where the salmon are likely to be. Lures that imitate baitfish – like J-plugs, stingers, Northport nailers and various silver spoons – are attached to lines without the cowbells or attractors used in lake trout fishing.

Keller said trolling speeds should be faster than for lake trout – up to 3 miles per hour – with the lure some eight to 10 feet behind the downrigger.

"Fishermen without fish-finding graphs or other electronic equipment should check with other fishermen at the docks to learn the depths at which fish are being caught that day, Keller advised.

RAKOCZY SAID the financial bonanza for Charlevoix could be even greater this year than last, since more fish will be returning from the 1982 planting of chinook in the Jordan River.

That year the DNR planted some 300,000 chinook salmon which will reach sexual maturity this year. If all goes according to plan, large numbers of fish should concentrate in the waters off Charlevoix and home in on the Jordan in an attempt to spawn.

Since the initial plant in 1982, the DNR has planted 250,000 chinook annually at the Medusa Creek.

Open water anglers in Charlevoix landed some 10,375 chinook salmon in 1985, Rakoczy said based on analysis of a new creel census survey done by the DNR. Charlevoix fishermen took 68,236 fishing trips, according to the survey.

A Michigan State University study of the recreational fishery estimates that each fisherman spends $55 per fishing trip, hence the $3.7 million spent in Charlevoix by fishermen in 1985.

Fishermen spent over $94 million to fish for salmon in all of this state's Lake Michigan waters. Rakoczy added. They caught over 507,000 chinook salmon in the process.

Chinook have become the prime sport fishery on the lake," Rakoczy said, "that's what everybody's after."

Battle over street goods develops

ing in a positive direction."

City Attorney Jeffery VanTreese told council that because Bridge Street was a state trunkline it was controlled by the Uniform Traffic Code. There is no provision in the law now to enforce the code selectively. VanTreese said, so that if it were enforced everything would have to be removed.

He suggested devising an amendment which would allow certain items – like tables and chairs – and prohibit others.

Mettler pressed council to act on the situation. "It's against the law and we should be doing something about it," he said.

Linda Hoffman of Wildwood Innovations said she felt the tables and chairs added to the ambiance of the town but objected to the retail goods and trash on the street.

Bill Superman cautioned that "I don't think we should overreact to this minor problem." He questioned whether the Merchant Association represented a majority of Bridge Street businesses on the issue.

Nancy Burnsides said she was "one of the only merchants that feel all of this should be allowed."

Mayor Hill suggested that all interested parties – including all the merchants for and against the proposal – be encouraged to attend next Monday's council work session and discuss the issue. Council concurred and the issue was deferred until Monday.

After hearing all sides of the issue, Hill said, council would hold a special hearing and vote on enforcement of the ordinance. "We're going to settle it next Monday, one way or the other," he said.

IN OTHER ACTION, council voted to accept an offer Donald Hufford of CPI to pay $10,000 for $6,250 per acre, for a 1.6 acre lot in the new Charlevoix Industrial Park. City Manager Wiesner proposed a price of $9,000 an acre, noting that a similar sized lot in the Boyne City industrial park would cost $12,500 per acre.

Hill argued against the higher price. "Gentlemen, you've got to spend some money to make some money," he told council. "I don't go along with this $9,000 an acre."

Councilman Earl Muma said the higher price might deter business from locating in the park. "When we started (the park) it was to create jobs for people to live in this community," he said. Charging too much, he added, would cause the site to "sit there like a big white elephant."

I care about the effects of high taxes on our retired citizens and working families. (Some people pay more taxes because other people pay less.)

Voters have no control over assessment increases. It is a endless circle, larger budgets, increased assessments and higher taxes. The last five years saw my taxes increase 44 percent.

The true cash value of our town is now almost 200 million dollars, (including the city's utility systems and properties). It is big business and getting bigger. Only the most qualified person should be elected to the office of Mayor.

Our police force is critic zed often. It has all the qualities to become better. I would encourage it to be the best there is Future condominiums should be denied direct water site developments. Our citizens have less and less access to lake frontages. (Condos and the land associations pay 32% of our city taxes.)

If given the opportunity I would work hard to make Charlevoix a better place for every one.

I need your votes. Ask a friend to go to the polls with you on August the 5th.

School officials justify tax rate

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night in a truth in taxation hearing held during the regular meeting proposed a levy not to exceed 26.10 mills for operating purposes in 1986, including an additional tax rate of 1.20 for the calendar year.

At the hearing it was pointed out that the Charlevoix School District levies approximately 10 mills for operational purposes below the state average.

Paul Hoadley, Hayes Township supervisor, addressed the board during the hearing, advising that the SEV in his township had increased 7.9 percent as compared to 4.6 percent elsewhere in the district. He asked the board to stick to the inflation increase rather than the method used which is based on 50 percent of true cash value.

He was advised by Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren that the monies needed to operate the school is already committed because budgets have to be set early. VanWieren also said to meet curriculum demands, increased funds are necessary. He cited the new dyslexia program and the requests for smaller classes in the lower grades as examples. He also said that there could be a shortage of good teachers in the near future and that the district would have to be competitive if it was going to attract them.

Vincent Olach also spoke of funds that have been channeled to the Downtown Development Authority and tax increment financing which has meant a loss in revenue to the schools.

In other action, the board voted to hire Janyce Lyn Erxleben, a recent Central Michigan University graduate, as a seventh-grade English teacher. Miss Erxleben has a major in English and a minor in math and a degree in elementary education. She is a 1981 graduate of the Harbor Springs High School and attended North Central Michigan College for two years before transfering to Central Michigan University. She did her practice teaching in the Charlevoix schools.

- Approved the contract for the librarian for the Charlevoix Public Library, Marybeth Wallick.

- Heard an indepth report by Karen Pierce and Dennis Carr on a dyslexia workshop they had attended recently. They said many of the processes are similar to those already in the Chapter I program in the school system. Both said there were numerous uses for the knowledge they had gained and they would be introducing it into programs at the elementary and middle schools.

- Received a petition from Mrs. Ronald Siwarga, who lives in Hampton Village and 80 other area residents that the school do something about the reckless driving and traffic violations when students leave the parking lot at school. She said she had been advised by the police to contact the school administration regarding the problem. She was advised that the school has no jurisdiction over a student after he leaves the school property and that this is a problem that has plagued the school for years.

After some discussion, VanWieren suggested that Siwarga get a couple other people who had signed the petition and, with him and a board representative, meet with the police in an effort to solve the problem.

- Received a report on the progress of the renovation program of the sports complex at the high school.

Flower gardens are family affair

by PEG OHLE

Bonnie Webster says she has always loved flowers.

That love is reflected in the many floral arrangements, wreaths, and hanging baskets she has for sale at her shop at 805 State Street.

The adjoining gardens, where Bonnie grows the flowers she sells, are now in full bloom, with roses and perennials and annuals all vying for a place in the sun. In fact, the gardens are not unlike the public gardens seen in many European and some American cities.

The flower garden space was once devoted mostly to vegetables, but the only concession to edibles now are herbs, which grow among the flowers. Flower petals and herbs are mixed to make fragrant potpourri sachets, which Bonnie also sells.

Called "Bonnie's Country Spice", the shop and gardens are a family affair. Husband William, who is employed by Medusa Cement, prepares the gardens for planting and keeps them watered and weeded. They have found that by raising the beds and mulching them, this work is cut to a minumum.

William's mother, Kay Webster, is a ceramist and makes the many ornamental pieces on sale in the shop, and assists in other ways. Daughter Gina, 12, is a top salesperson for "Bonnie's Country Spice", her mother says, and daughter Jenny, four, helps pick the petals for potpourri. Son William Cody, six months, has not yet entered the family business.

The Websters came to Charlevoix about six years ago from Toledo. Although their little shop is new, they have sold flowers and potpourri from their gardens in past years. In her "spare" time, Bonnie has planted some residential gardens in the area and supplied flowers for a few weddings.

And Bonnie learned how to do all these things by reading!

Anderson campaigns for Congress

by PEG OHLE

Bob Anderson of Marquette, Democrat candidate for Congress from the 11th District, was in town last week, introducing himself to the press and meeting with party members and friends.

Bob Anderson, 38, will oppose incumbent Republican Bob Davis, 54, in the November General Election. (He says his Democrat friends call him "the better Bob").

Anderson is no newcomer to public service. He served in Washington as an attorney for the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, and as a private practice attorney on Urban Action Grants and Small Cities Grants, and was elected to two terms on the Detroit Board of Education when he was a law student in Detroit.

He has a broad education: Bachelors degree from the University of Michigan, Masters degree from Wayne State University, law degree from the Detroit College of Law, and Masters of Law in Taxation degree from Georgetown University in Washington. He spent his junior year at the University of Michigan studying in Paris and later was an American Field Service Exchange student in Bangkok, Thailand. He largely credits his experience in Thailand for his interest in public service. "I got an entirely new look at the world while I was there", he says.

Bob Anderson

Today, Anderson is on the other side of the teaching desk. He is a part-time instructor at both Northern Michigan University and Michigan Technological University.

After working in Washington for eight years, Anderson decided he wanted to return to his native state (he was born in Walled Lake) and found an opportunity in his profession of tax attorney in Marquette. He now represents several townships in Marquette County as well as many businesses and industries throughout the central and western Upper Peninsula.

Anderson says his close ties with the business community have made him aware of the hardships caused in the 11th District by unemployment, imported Canadian wood products and Brazilian iron ore, and lack of encouragement and development of small industries by the federal government. The April unemployment rate in the 11th District was 17.7 percent, the highest in Michigan, Anderson pointed out.

Anderson is a member of the Marquette County Commission on Aging and has become deeply concerned with the problems of senior citizens, especially the rising costs of health care.

Chamber Chatter

By Claudia Kenifeck
Executive Director

It's time once again for the Annual Venetian Festival in Charlevoix. This year marks the 56th year this tradition has been in progress, and all of the volunteer committees have been working diligently to make this event a continuing success. Our hats go off to the following people: Venetian Chairman, Dave Knight; Queens Pageant, Sue Annie Wiesner and Candy Smith; Footrace, Pete Spieles; Grand Parade, Georgia LaBlance; Boat Parade, John Ochs and Tom Hawley; Fastpitch Tournament, Ike Boss. Without such a talented group of community leaders, Venetian would not be possible.

This year's exclusive Venetian T-shirts are now available at the Chamber. Adult shirts are $8 and youth sizes are $6. Stop by and get yours before it's too late. The money raised through shirt sales helps defray the cost of the Venetian Festival. Now, let's hope for great weather.

Venetian signifies that summer is over half gone. Charlevoix activities continue, however. August 2 is the Petunia Auction, which raises money for Operation Petunia, sponsored by Keep Charlevoix Beautiful. Many of the items donated this year are geared for boaters and sports enthusiasts. Don't miss this.

August 9, the Annual Waterfront Art Fair will celebrate its 28th year. Conceived originally by the Chamber of Commerce as an event to draw people to Charlevoix, it is known today as one of the biggest single-day art shows in the state. Suzi Reis, committee chairman, and her committee of 12 have been working hard all year to guarantee another great show.

The Rotary Club of Charlevoix recently installed new officers for the 1986-87 year. Shown above, from left to right, are new board members Wes Dilworth and Bob White, incoming president Bob Kern, immediate past president Chuck Themm, board member Ray Wood and vice president Jim Marshall. Absent from the photo is secretary treasurer Bob Hoffman. The club is now meeting at noon on Thursday at the Weathervane Restaurant.

Opinion

'Round town

Emergency room blues

by Edith Gilbert

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD! The best Charlevoix story ever was told to me by Kit Carson himself. And I hope his dear wife, Eleanor, won't mind having it repeated. (She's the Grand Dame of our town who is being honored to lead the Venetian Parade this Saturday as our Grand Marshal.)

The Carsons lived on the corner of Dixon and Michigan Avenue for a great many years. I think it was during the 40s that Kit was mowing the beautiful, green lawn in front of their home. A great big black chauffeur-driven limousine pulled up to the curb and a white-gloved had motioned Kit over. "My good man," a woman's voice spoke. "What do you charge to mow the lawn?"

Without missing a beat, Kit replied, "Well, you see that blonde sitting on the porch? She lets me sleep with her, so I don't charge her anything."

TOM HAWLEY, CO-CHAIRPERSON of the Venetian Festival boat parade thinks it would be neat if more of the home owners around Round Lake would enter into the spirit of the occasion and decorate their decks with Christmas tree lights. Good idea, don't you think so too?

THEY SAY IMITATION is the greatest form of flattery. Therefore, the petunia people, Dale and Marilyn Boss, ought to be extremely flattered. Coming around the turn by LaSenorita in Petoskey, for a minute I thought I was in Charlevoix. There was a gorgeous border of petunias completely circling the curve by the restaurant.

Our Charlevoix petunias have never looked better either, thanks to a lot of intensely dedicated people. Saturday, August 2, is the day of the Petunia Auction in East Park, between 1-3 p.m. Now you have three choices. You can donate an item for the auction; or you can bid at the auction; or you can donate AND bid at the auction.

One of the special items you might consider bidding on is a gourmet dinner for three couples, served and prepared by Dr. and Mrs. Reed Freidinger. People are still talking about last year's affair, when the good doctor donned his tuxedo and poured the wine just like those English butlers in the movies.

THIS IS A STORY of contrasts. My California nephew, Peter, refers to Charlevoix as Never-Never Land, a kind of Utopia. After hearing what happened to a young friend of mine at a downstate metropolitan hospital, which shall remain nameless, I'm inclined to agree with him.

My friend Nancy, had chest pains and went to the emergency room at 10:15 on a Thursday evening. She was shown into the waiting room, which was filled with people moaning, bleeding, vomiting and groaning. Some had been slashed with a knife and some had been bit by bricks. Some had dealt blows to others and injured themselves. Whatever.

In comes a young man being pushed in a wheelchair by a friend. Both are extremely hostile and the police arrive and ask them to wait outside. They refuse. Now this part sounds like a combination of Benny Hill and The Three Stooges. There is a tussle, and the police push the fellow in the wheelchair, while he pulls. He ends up on the floor, and there he lay unattended for 15 minutes.

At this point, my wide-eyed friend almost forgot about her chest, but finally she is seen by a doctor. No she doesn't have a broken rib. She is sent home at 3 a.m., five hours after she arrived, completely traumatized by witnessing this curious slice of inner-city life.

The next night still in pain, she is taken to the emergency room at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. It is clean, it is quiet, it is efficient. Dr. Plagge diagnoses pleurisy and prescribes medication. Tears of relief flood her eyes. Nurses Jeanie Seymour and David Priest comfort her, and she is released in 30 minutes. My friend is very impressed.

I hear from doctors, nurses and patients that the new 'round-the-clock, on-site physician coverage and After Hours Clinic at the Charlevoix Hospital is a big success. Just think, there were 60 people seen over a 24 hour period last Saturday. Very impressive.

Clockwise

Fuzzy thinking

By Bob Clock

I am coming to a slow boil over Congress' committment to send $70 million in military assistance and $30 million in humanitarian aid to Nicaragua's Contras, a rag-tag band of dissidents whose only aim in life is to overthrow the legitimate government in Managua.

My problem is that I refuse to believe that the august government of the United States has sunk so low or that such fuzzy thinking holds sway in the halls of Congress.

For months I have tried to convince myself that President Reagan's request of assistance for the Contras was simply a ploy to satisfy his rabid right-wing supporters. I never dreamed that any rational member of Congress could be duped into going along with such high-handed shenanigans. And I don't think the president did either.

And yet it has happened, and our own Congressman Rep. Robert Davis went along with the crowd, claiming he voted the funds in order to give Reagan "the benefit of the doubt."

Congress has voted to give the money to a group of people who have no legitimate standing in the eyes of any nation in the world. Buttressed by members of the old Somoza regime, the Contras have no business receiving a dime in any kind of aid from anyone.

Of course, the World Court has condemned the United States for voting the money, a condemnation the federal government has chosen to ignore.

It's fun to contemplate how indignant and self-righteous the federal bureaucrats would be if Russia had voted money for the Contras and then chose to ignore a similar indictment by the World Court.

I GET EVEN madder when I think of all the places the American people could spend $100 million for their own betterment — not to the mention the billions of dollars being plowed into redundant defense systems by the Reagan administration.

One hundred million dollars, for example, could buy approximately 100 swimming pools for communities like Charlevoix and Petoskey which have been struggling for years to come up with the wherewithal for such facilities. Swimming pools and swimming instruction are not frills in communities where children spend a great deal of their time playing around water.

But what if they are frills? The $100 million Congress plans to ship to the Nicaraguan rebels will come out of your pocket and mine. Should we be denied some of life's little amenities just so the federal government can bankroll bloodshed in Latin America?

If not swimming pools, why not roads? Boyne City recently had to scratch special assessments for badly needed road work when a number of citizens complained that the cost was beyond their means. The city is now looking at an income tax.

It's not easy to support a war in Nicaragua and keep up your own property at the same time.

For years, Charlevoix has tried to work money for street resurfacing into its annual budget, without a great deal of success. Instead, we tar and chip, patch and mend — and end up with streets so bumpy they rattle your teeth.

How many miles of roadway could we resurface for $100 million? Ask your friendly local contractor — who would put local people to work if he won the contract.

It pains me to have my tax dollars spent recklessly; it hurts even worse to have them spent to kill and maim innocent people, which certainly will be their primary role once they fall into the hands of the Contras.

The U.S. Congress has never in its long history acted so foolishly or with such a callous disregard for human life.

Letters to the Editor:

Marion Township lake zoning proposal questioned

Dear Editor:

Your editorial regarding the Marion Township's Planning Commission and their attempt to control unreasonable lakefront development before the heat of battle over some undesirable plan was right on. That is what planning is supposed to be all about, as opposed to reacting.

I am glad they seem to want to take the time to look at all the angles before they pass the original proposal, because it contains (contained) some aspects that really worry me.

It appears they are trying to prevent over-intensive use of lake front property. But it looks to me like the original approach, anyway, was to list some undesirable aspects of high density condo developments, and proceed to outlaw them. At first glance, a sensible approach, maybe.

But a problem develops that in doing so, they also outlaw some perfectly reasonable, ordinary, and common things that should be OK to do.

The first is prohibiting building within 100 feet of any lake. Everyone would agree that cheek-to-jowl buildings hanging over the lake as on Round Lake in Charlevoix are too intense a usage for Marion Township. But their provision would also prohibit the owner of several acres from building a new house 50 or 75 feet from a lake, which would not harm anything.

Another potential problem is the "average distance" provision, which established the minimum setback from a lake as the average setback of all existing houses on the lake. This is a very arbitrary provision and could bring about the strange circumstance where one person could have a house a long distance from a lake, and bring the average up so high no one else could build at all. Besides being illogical, this provision is so arbitrary that it would probably never stand a court challenge.

The provision limiting the number of moored boats to two per dwelling unit could also be modified to allow low density use to have more than two boats, but to prohibit excessive boat storage by tying it to total amount of shoreline, not number per dwelling unit.

I also think a lot of the inequity for individuals attempting to build a single home on a nice large parcel could be eliminated if some of the provisions aimed at controlling high-density condo-type development were put in the R-4 section of the zoning commissioner's imagination, my dinance rather than in the general provisions as originally proposed. That would be more like aiming it at the target, rather than shooting wildly and hitting the good along with the bad.

I am personally concerned because I own lakefront property in Marion Township and plan to build my retirement home there in the next few years. I own two acres and 200 feet of frontage on a small lake, and I cannot see how, in any planplan to build a house 65 feet from the lake on a nice high and clear site can harm Marion Township, its lakes, or its citizens. I think it would be an irresponsible act of government to pass an ordinance prohibiting it.

I hope the commissioners have the sense and take the time to write an ordinance does the job they want it to, but is fair and allows reasonable people to develop their property in a reasonable way.

Speeders disregard law

Dear Editor:

I would like to comment on your article last week "Police put Brakes on Bridge Street Speeders." Wonderful isn't it! Isn't it time the police actually do something about the people driving down Bridge Street with no regard for property or life on that street?

For many years now people have just about driven any speed they so desire down Bridge Street and through town. The speed limit is 25 miles per hour and if a car actually attempts to go this speed it is almost pushed from behind. We are talking about cars going down a street at speeds of 45 to 75 mph. This shows total disrespect for the laws of the city, and it is high time our police did something about it.

As far as M. John Steele's comments about overzealous concerned citizens making matters worse: I think he had better slow down and stop along Bridge Street some day (any time day or night) and see if we are blowing things out of proportion. It is quite apparent he does not live on this street.

Is there any other street in town where the people want the dragsters? The people on Bridge Street got together and made our concerns known to council and the Police Department because a very real problem does exist and up until now our complaints were totally ignored.

The people along this street fear for their precious children and for older people trying to cross the street for groceries or going to church. We have tried to get signs to alert motorists that children were playing and were told nobody would pay attention to them anyway.

Things are getting pretty bad when the people can say what signs or laws they are going to pay attention to, which again strongly supports my statement saying there is a total disrespect for the speed limit and police in Charlevoix. I don't think the people on Bridge or State or May streets need to live in constant fear of being run over.

We have had several cars hit the utility pole in the front of the house. If the pole had not been there they would have driven into our living room. One time in the middle of the night a drunk driver hit the snow bank on the side of our house or he would have been sitting in our house also. Just last week two dragsters were racing down the alley by the high school behind Bridge Street and came right on our lawn.. my children were playing there and could have been run over. We are voicing our concerns now before a tragedy occurs.

If Charlevoix wants to make Bridge Street an expressway, then say so. But instead of planting petunias, they should make crosses because danger lurks on Bridge Street. The police should be there to protect us. I don't see any citizens being threatened if they are within the law. The people crying about the increase in tickets are the ones thinking they may be next.

P.S. Thank you sheriff for offering your assistance.

Townies and people

Dear Editor:

My sister, Cynthia Postmus, sent me an article about Charlevoix in which the local residents were referred to as "townies." I tried to think back to my years of being raised in Charlevoix, and I don't recall ever hearing that expression. I remember thinking of myself as being "local" or maybe even a "native", and in my teen years as being a "year rounder," but never a "townie."

Growing up around my grandparents' summer resort on Michigan Avenue, I remember my mother admonishing us to be quiet and stay out of the way of "the PEOPLE" - summer guests at the boarding house. I often laugh about that expression now as I wonder if resorters were PEOPLE, what did that make us?

Recently I kept hearing a local radio station advertising a Howard Miller grandfather clock and I wondered if they might be mispronouncing the name of the particular clock on sale. I finally called the store and they told me they were indeed advertising a clock spelled "C-h-a-r-l-e-v-o-i-x."

My husband, a Wisconsin native, teases me saying, "People who were born in Charlevoix have never cut the umbilical cord." He's probably right, because I never seem to get back often enough.

Beacons of Blessing

A devotional column prepared by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

Do you know where your real home is? If you think in terms of the place you were born, then that would make Philadelphia, Pennsylvania home for me. If you think in terms of where you were raised, then that would make Orlando, Florida home for me. If you think in terms of where you are living right now, then there is no doubt that Charlevoix-the-Beautiful is home. Or is it?

Knowing the title and purpose of this column, you might be thinking one step ahead of me. Do you know where your real home is? If you are God's child, then you know it isn't Philadelphia, Orlando, or Charlevoix. You know that heaven is your real home.

This world of ours can make that hard to remember sometimes. Take time to read and remember the parable of the prodigal son as recorded in Luke 15. That boy got so fascinated and caught up in the attractions of the world that he insisted on receiving his inheritance early from his Dad. The amazing thing is that his Dad gave it to him.

Sometimes you don't realize what you have had until you lose it. The son found out in a hurry that what passes for fun is expensive and friends can't be bought. His crowd disappeared when his money ran out.

Reduced to slopping hogs for food, the Bible says "he came to his senses." He realized that things weren't as bad or as boring at home as he thought. He decided to go home and asked to become his father's servant, never even thinking he would be forgiven. He even made up a speech. Didn't you do that when you really blew it and had to face up to it?

His Dad really does amaze me. His prodigal son was still just a silhouette on the horizon when he recognized him and ran out to meet him. The boy never got the whole speech out. Dad called for robes, a ring and shoes, for the son he feared was dead was alive and home once more.

Do you know where your real home is? You see the Dad in this parable is our heavenly Father and we are the prodigal sons and daughters. Our Father has a perfect will for us but He loves us so much, He won't go against our own hearts. It is my prayer for you that it won't take your hitting bottom to realize which way your life is headed. We should all "come to our senses" and head towards home and the fullness of our Father's love.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Way

Drury - Way

Pamela Jean Drury and Scott Douglas Way exchanged marriage vows on Saturday afternoon, June 28, at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church.

The Reverend Robert Way, uncle of the bridegroom, officiated at the double-ring rites in which the bride was given in marriage by her parents. Approximately 200 guests sat in front of an altar decorated with white wicker baskets of white gladiolus, white carnations, baby's breath, and trailing ivy. The aisles were decorated with white hurricane lamps tied with white bows and ivy.

The bride wore a gown of white satin trimmed with silk Venise lace and beaded Chantilly lace, styled with a cathedral train of Chantilly ruffles, Juliet sleeves of Chantilly lace and a high neckline yoked by English net. Her headpiece was a Derby-styled white satin hat trimmed with lace and pearls and pouffed veiling with seeded pearls. Her bouquet was made up of phalaenopais orchids, white sweetheart roses, white stephanotis, and baby's breath with trailing ivy.

Juli Way, sister of the bridegroom, served as maid of honor, and Carrie Richardson and Shelley Stevens were bridesmaids. They wore dresses of royal blue with a lace overlay, scalloped at the hemline, and royal blue satin cummerbunds tied at the back with candy box bows. Their cascading bouquets contained blue cornflowers, hot pink mini carnations, white freesia, yellow mini roses, and baby's breath.

Annie and Megan Boss were flower girls. They wore white dresses with a lace overlay, scalloped at the hemline, and royal blue satin cummerbunds tied with candy box bows. Annie carried a white wicker basket of rose petals, and Megan carried a white wicker basket of hot pink carnations, white freesia, yellow mini roses, and baby's breath. Jeremy Boss, cousin of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

Sara Cummings baked the wedding cake, which was served by Linda Richardson and Sandy Boss. Lisa Boss attended the guest book.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Gabriel

Jerry Lyn McKenney and Mark Bernard Gabriel were married Saturday, June 28, at St. Mary's Church in Traverse City. The Reverend Tom Smith, assisted by Deacon Jim Gery and his wife, Terri, officated at the double-ring rites.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry McKenney of East Jordan, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Gabriel of St. Clair Shores.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a Victorian-styled gown with a yoke of English netting. It was trimmed with silk Venise lace and re-embroidered Alencon lace, seed pearls, and sequins. The gown featured Elizabethan style sleeves and a cathedral-length train. The bride's matching veil was attached to a wreath of seed pearls and sequins and her bouquet featured red and white roses and white carnations surrounding a deep rose-colored orchid.

Julia McKenney, the bride's sister, was maid of honor, and Amy Gabriel, Debra Ehehalt, and Karen Anderson were bridesmaids. They wore dresses of pink lace over satin and carried bouquets of pink and white roses and carnations.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moses of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Fritsch of Manitowoc, Wisconsin.

White and lavender chrysanthemums decorated the altar before which the bride's father gave her in marriage and the Reverend Casimir Zawacki officiated at the double-ring rites.

The bride wore a gown of chiffonet decorated with Roschel lace and Schiffli embroidery and fashioned with a ruffled bodice, melon sleeves, a waistline sashed in satin, and a chapel-length train. Her headpiece was a wide-brimmed hat peppered with seed pearls, with attached veil. Her bouquet was composed of white carnations and pink roses with baby's breath and attached ribbons.

Rita Brodin assisted her sister as matron of honor. She wore a royal blue gown and carried two blue roses and white carnations with attached matching ribbons.

Tom Fritsch, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man, and Wayne Peebles was usher.

Jeanie Lignell provided music for the ceremony. The reception was held at the Grey Gables Inn, with music provided by Radio Station KHQ. Barb Peebles, sister of the bride, cut and served the cake and Jacqui Hable attended the guest book. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at Ricciardi's Inn of Charlevoix. It was followed by a display of fireworks.

WATCH presents $1,000 scholarship for student's Lake Charlevoix essay

Scott Winhusen, a 1986 graduate of Boyne Falls High School, was awarded a $1,000 college scholarship this past Saturday by the directors of Water and Air Team Charlevoix (WATCH), a local conservation group.

Winhusen won the award through an essay contest sponsored by WATCH for the first time this year. The contest was open to all graduating seniors in the Lake Charlevoix area -- including students in the Charlevoix, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, and East Jordan schools.

Contestants were asked to write a 1,000 word or less essay on the topic "Lake Charlevoix: How to allow healthy growth while maintaining lake viability."

Michelle Rick-Biddick, scholarship program director, administered the essay contest for WATCH.

Winhusen will use the scholarship in attending the University of Michigan this fall. The valedictorian at Boyne Falls, he also received a $1,000 Regents scholarship to the U-M and a $500 scholarship from the Boyne City Polish Festival.

Rick-Biddick said the Boyne Fal, schools will also receive a $100 participation award which can be used to buy environmental books and periodicals.

Winhusen's essay, entitled "Lake Charlevoix and Water Pollution," detailed ways to minimize the pollution of Lake Charlevoix. "It is easier to combat pollution before it gets a firm grip on Lake Charlevoix than later on when more drastic measures may need to be taken," he wrote.

He noted several potential causes of pollution, including the Jordan River fish hatchery, the Boyne City waste water treatment plant, lawn fertilization, septic systems, littering, boats and construction.

Winhusen pointed out ways each type of pollution could be minimized.

His essay stated that "the current overall water quality of Lake Charlevoix is not as good as it has been. Between 1977 and 1981, the transparency measurement of the lake dropped from 16.2 feet to 13.8 feet. On the South Arm of the lake, the water quality is poorer. It has an average transparency level of only ten feet."

Rick-Biddick said WATCH hopes to run the scholarship program again next year and will be contacting schools in the fall with details.

Coast Guard ready to help pick up items for petunia auction

The crew of the U.S.C.G. Cutter Mesquite has again volunteered to pick up large items donated to the 5th annual petunia auction, according to Bruce MacArthur, president of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc.

Anyone with an item too large to be transported personally to petunia headquarters at Accents by Burlew, 1207 Bridge St., should call Paul Burlew, 547-5675. He will arrange for a Coast Guard pickup.

Meanwhile, Coast Guard wives, headed by Brenda Kyvik, are preparing to hold their petunia "yard sale" at the same time as the petunia auction, scheduled from 1-3 p.m. Saturday Aug. 2, in East Park.

Auction co-chair Kate Burlew says merchandise with a retail value of about $8,000 already has been donated.

Since the auction brings in considerably less than retail value, Burlew is shooting for about $30,000 worth of items (retail) in order to realize a profit of $18,000.

The money will be earmarked for major repairs to the watering truck and for next year's Project Petunia, a community-wide effort to plant petunias along U.S. 31 from city limits to city limits.

Among gifts pledged to date are a seagull affixed to a piling from the old C&O railroad bridge by Gordon Neff and a gourmet dinner for six from Tom's Mom's Cafe. The dinner will be served aboard Jack Begrow's Mint Julep.

All gifts to the petunia auction are tax deductible. The necessary forms are available at petunia headquarters, Accents, or from the Chamber of Commerce.

Pat McKeown will assist Carl Miller, professional auctioneer, with the petunia auction.

Rocking Horse Toy Co. comes to town

by DOUG TRUAX

Life takes some interesting turns.

Ask Andy and Kathy Bultman. In 1981 they gave up their careers as teachers to come north and start a toy store. They quit their jobs, sold the house, and were gone. Simple as that. "Totally out of the blue," Andy says.

Today, five years later, they are running a string of three successful toy stores, called the Rocking Horse Toy Company, in Charlevoix, Harbor Springs and Petoskey.

Andy says there was no compelling reason to start a toy store "other than romanticism" and his own desire to get out of teaching.

Part of the impetus came also from a toy rocking horse he built for their daughter, Sara, who was two years old at the time. Sara is eight now and a regular on the family toy store circuit.

"I wanted to get her a rocking horse and couldn't find one," Bultman remembers. "I ordered one out of a catalog but it didn't come so I built one myself. People liked it and I built one for them."

The wooden rocking horse became a staple in the Bultman's first store in Harbor Springs, along with other wooden toys he built. Since then the line has expanded to include everything from kites to adult toys.

The couple opened their second store in Petoskey one and a half years ago, and this spring inaugurated the Charlevoix store on Bridge Street.

They first heard about the Charlevoix location from Chuck and Nancy Kousky who own the art gallery next door. They were in the building on June 2, gutted it and by June 20 had completed renovations and were open for business.

The kites are something of a personal interest for the Bultmans, since they both fly them when they have the time. The Rocking Horse Toy Company, one of the largest kite distributors in northern Michigan, offers a wide variety of them, from a $132 model to one that costs around three bucks.

The stores still stock a variety of wooden toys, including Brio trains, but the inventory now includes everything from children's books and tapes to radio controlled boats.

Despite the Bultman's experience as educators, they do not limit themselves to "educational" toys. "We look for things that are just plain fun," Andy says.

He also still builds the rocking horse, when he gets time. Although the couple float between the three stores on a schedule which seldom finds them both in the same place at the same time, they are enjoying the experience. "It's fun ... we're having a good time," Andy concludes simply.

The Bultmans are helped in the Charlevoix store during the summer by local schoolteacher Jeanne Seymour. They are open seven days a week through Labor Day: from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sundays. They will be open at least through Christmas, but are unsure of their off-season schedule.

Ken Gray displays some of the remote control airplanes which will be demonstrated at the air show on Sunday.

Remote control buffs stage air show

The Charlevoix Area Buffs, a group of remote control airplane enthusiasts, will hold their annual air show on Sunday, July 27 from 1-5 p.m. at the club's field on the corner of Sequanota and Saunders roads, near the county landfill.

This year's show will feature, in addition to the many remote control airplanes, a special demonstration of models designed and distributed by Aero Drome Models of Saginaw.

There will also be dog fights, one-quarter scale planes and open fun flying.

Charles Scherping will give a demonstration in a full size Pitts airplane at 2 p.m.

The charge is $1 per person to participate and visitors and onlookers are welcome.

The Charlevoix Area Buffs was organized in 1978 with about 40 members and currently consists of 22 members. They have been flying at the present site for seven years and in 1986 10 members formed a non-profit group and purchased the flying site.

At present they fly the remote control airplanes there, but future plans call for a remote control car course and a boat group.

The Charlevoix Area Buffs each year participate in the Venetian Parade and also undertake such activities as College for Kids and a special aviation class at East Jordan where more than 150 students construct gliders.

Anyone seeking more information on the club and its activities can call Ken Gray at 547-5824. He says the club is eager to have new members join the ranks.

Historic preservation grants available

Local units of government interested in historic preservation of their area may be eligible for federal funds made available through the National Park Service and administered by the Michigan Department of State.

Called Historic Preservation grants, the funds may be used for projects such as inventorying historic sites, nominating sites to the National Register of Historic Places, and planning for the protection of significant properties, according to Martha Bigelow, State Historic Preservation Officer.

Preliminary application forms for these grants may be obtained from Ms. Bigelow at the Michigan Department of State, 208 North Capitol Avenue, Lansing 48918, phone 517-373-0510.

Those units of government which already have active local historic preservation programs may be eligible for a grant to augment present activities. These Certified Local Government program grants may be used to fund the same types of activities noted above. Preliminary application forms are available from Ms. Bigelow.

The deadline for submitting grant applications for both programs is September 30.

How A Small Community Came To See The Light At The End Of The Tunnel.

A few years back, the roof practically caved in on the people who lived in this small mining community.

The mine had been shut down.

Putting half the town out of work.

And taking away a livelihood that had been a way of life here for decades.

Considering that miners all across America were struggling with all the same kind of problems, there did not seem to be even the slightest ray of hope left to the town.

Problem was, just like the miners could not afford to go much longer without work, the company could not afford to reopen the mine. Much less run it profitably enough to keep it up and running, as it had before.

But when the State of Michigan got the miners and the mining company together, people began to see things in an entirely different light.

So when they figured out a way to reopen the mine, we pitched in to help figure out a way to finance it.

Today, the mine is open again.

The miners have gone back and reclaimed their jobs.

And even though there's still some hard work ahead for everyone concerned, the entire town is beginning to see a much brighter future for itself.

At First of America Bank, we all take special pride in what this small community achieved just by digging deep inside themselves for answers.

Not just because we're bankers.

But because, more importantly, we're part of the community, too.

FIRST OF AMERICA.
We're Community Banks First.

Kipke Field renovations begun

The renovation of the outdoor sports facilities at the Charlevoix High School is underway with the removal of the lights and the 10 poles on which they were mounted along with the fence that surrounded the football field.

This week the curb around the track will be removed, the spectator bleachers disassembled and readied for resetting on the west side of Kipke Field after a new concrete pad has been laid.

The pressbox and refreshment stand and toilet facilities will also be relocated and some trees at the north end of the present track removed prior to the construction of the new eight-lane all-weather track.

High jump, pole vault and long jump pits will be built inside the track. Facilities for the discus will be in the parking lot area.

The present lighting system will be replaced with updated banks of light mounted on four steel poles which will offer a more efficient system.

"We got a good start Saturday and I think the work will move right along," Vincent Olach, business manager at the school said. Saturday more than 250 steel posts were pulled along with the 10 60 foot light poles. This work was done by volunteer John Pearl with the use of an all-terrain crane and the help of a crew of volunteers.

Specifications for the lights, construction of the track and related facilities have been prepared and made available to bidders. John Ferguson, who has contributed his services as the engineer on the project, has the stakes set in preparation for the work now being done.

Bids for the construction of the track and lighting system will be opened shortly. All bidders have given assurance that the facility will be in readiness for the first football game of the season on Sept. 5.

Work on the football field itself will be done following the close of the season.

The renovation of the field has been made possible by the 1.25 mill tax levy for one year approved by the voters of the school district on the June election. Volunteer help in the form of labor and materials will be utilized in order to keep costs down, Olach said.

The new track will replace a cinder track built more than 50 years ago with W.P.A. labor and finances.

A crew of volunteers, headed by John Pearl and his all-terrain crane, toppled the 10 60-foot light poles, removed more than 250 steel posts and did other preliminery work at Kipke Field Saturday in preparation for other work to follow, a major part of it by volunteers. Assisting Saturday were Bob Drenth, Max Novak, John Pearl Jr., Hal Evans, Vince Olach and Darren Olach.

Round Lake Lodge downs favored Legion

Major League

A make-up game played Monday night saw underdog Round Lake Lodge edge league-leading American Legion 2-1 and send the Legion into a title game against Oleson's Food. The date for the title game has not been set at this time.

In Monday's game, a solid double by Travis Levengood in the top of the sixth inning brought Jesse Beattie, who had gotten on base on a walk, home with the winning run. The remainder of the game was a defensive one for the Lodge as the team protected its slim lead.

Travis Blissett, the winning pitcher, allowed two hits and had 10 strikeouts. Wayne Joy, who took the loss, also gave up two hits.

Blissett also had the Lodge's second hit. Dan Avery and Paul Cunningham had singles for the Legion.

Library Notes

by Marybeth Wallick

The Charlevoix Public Library has been busy getting new books out for the summer onslaught. We have new fiction that will entertain, stand your hair on end, or educate.

Barbara Taylor Bradford, who wrote Woman of Substance and other favorites of past summers this year is offering An Act of Will. Set in the glittering worlds of art and haute couture, the book takes the reader from 1926 to the present through the extraordinary odyssey of its heroines - mother, daughter and granddaughter - from rags to riches.

Our ladies are familiar with Janet Dailey's many books, the Calder series and the Pride of Hannah Wade among many others. Her lastest best seller is The Great Alone. A tale set in Alaska spanning two hundred years of rich history and seven generations of a dynastic family. Included are Russina Cossacks, a British sea captain, the Aleuts, an American lawyer plying the China trade, gold prospecting and defining the territory in WWII. The tale finally sees Alaska through to statehood in 1958.

The Good Motherby Sue Miller is a first novel for the author. It is a contemporary novel of a mother torn between her love for her daughter and her lover, as her former husband attempts to act against her. Her divided loyalties produce anger, confusion, fear and grief, and eventually her own growing strength as well.

Margaret Truman has gained her own recognition in recent years with a series of murder mysteries set in various places in Washington, D.C. - the White House, Capitol Hill, the Supreme Court, Embassy Row and now Murder in Georgetown. Mrs. Truman has given us her inimitable insider's view of Washington.

The season bash, a grand party on the C&O canal on a mule-pulled barge takes a sudden turn when a corpse is found floating alongside. The young woman, a senator's daughter and a fiercely competitive broadcast journalist leaves a very tangled web to untie. That job falls to Joe Potamos who knows where all of the skeletons are hidden in which closets and he can untangle the web if he can stay alive long enough.

There are new books about our state susquencentennial coming out all the time, some are current and entertaining and some are historical.

One of the best of the new books is Bridging the Straits by Lawrence A. Rubin. Rubin was executive secretary of the Mackinac Bridge Authority from its creation in 1950 until he retired in 1983. From this position he was privy to the behind-the-scenes maneuvering, politics, and legislative and financial troubles.

We have two of the up-to-date travel and dining guides, the Detroit News Guide to Michigan Dining and Michigan's Town & Country Inns. The guide to dining lists restaurants by area, ethnic specialty, and a top ten rating. The Rowe Inn and the Tapawingo of Ellsworth both were included. Other local restaurants mentioned were Tom's Cafe, Parkside Dining, Great Lakes Whitefish & Chips, and Juilleret's.

Michigan's Town & Country Inns is also divided geographically. In our Land of Little Bays area they list the Jordan Inn in East Jordan and Stafford's Bay View Inn in Petoskey among others in this vicinity.

For those who like to smell the flowers along the way we have two books on backpacking and hiking in Michigan. Michigan Hiking Opportunities lists trails with maps and Backpacking in Michigan by Pat Allen in addition to trails, give information on equipment, clothing, first aid supplies, compasses and maps.

Yachting Notes

by A. NONY MOUSE

A very busy 10 days at CYC. It all started with a fine evening with the "Mice" (great hors d'oeuvres by Gloria) on the 11th, the LaBlanc Memorial that weekend, Wednesday night at the Races, another fine Friday hosted by Terry and Judy Edger and wound up with the Irish Cup fielding five fleets, two spinnaker classes racing about 16 miles for one Irish Cup Overall Trophy, the three Jib and Main Fleets covering eight miles for the other.

Fleet 1: 1st Gotcha (4:23:04), 2nd Plastic Fantastic (4:24:45), 3rd Flying Machine (4:29:42).

Fleet 2: 1st Babe (4:24:18), 2nd Merry Hell (4:24:31), 3rd Deuce Coupe (4:25:33).

Overall: Gotcha, Babe, Merry Hell, Plastic and Deuce.

Fleet 3: 1st Slapshot (2:49:08), 2nd Varmint (2:52:29), 3rd Mint Julep (3:01:17).

Fleet 4: 1st Maia (2:51:31), 2nd Shoo Fly (2:59:32), 3rd Victoria (3:01:29).

Fleet 5: 1st Maureen (3:01:21), 2nd Cheemaun (3:02:27), 3rd Sandpiper (3:03:56).

Overall: Slapshot, Maia, Varmint, Shoo Fly, Mint J.

A Nony and regular crew had a ball driving Gotcha for their first flag and a place on the Irish Cup - Deuce Coupe, the new Gleason and Tallberg J-22 was in the money on her first ride. Slapshot had two and a half minutes over Maia for the other Irish Cup, but the top five in the 16-mile race were all within that time span!

Fearless Flyer award goes to Flash Gordon for starting an opposite tack luffing match with Blasen - who just happened on the starboard. Forty-five yachts started in the spooky air and all but 2 finished. Thanks to Irish Boat Shop, Horizon Credit, Radio WKPK, Northern Lights Litho and Budweiser for sponsoring and Phil Ombert for another great job of starting and finishing a major regatta.

Last Wednesday, July 19 with Jib and Main split into two fleets:

Fleet 1: 1st Charlie Brown (1:53:18), 2nd Slapshot (1:53:50), 3rd Plastic Fantastic then Kritter, Gotcha and Flying Machine.

Fleet 2: 1st Wingnut (2:08:48), 2nd Bandit (2:08:52), 3rd Brass Tacks (2:12:16) followed by Mery Hell, Babe and Flash.

Fleet 3: 1st Nelli-Secundus (2:15:19), 2nd Spectre (2:16:03) 3rd Cygnus (2:18:17) trailed by Blasen, Tireless and Phoenicia.

Fleet 4: 1st Ribit (2:07:33), 2nd Mud Duck (2:16:07), 3rd Kittiwake (2:28:09) and Canusa.

Fleet 5: 1st Cheemaun (2:19:46), 2nd Ti-Gi (2:25:04), 3rd Maureen (2.27:24) and Apothecary.

Overall: C'Brown, S'Shot, Plastic, Kritter, Ribit, W'Nut, Bandit, Gotcha, F'Machine and B'Tacks. Only two within first five minutes.

Tourist season results mixed

plus side," he said, noting that last year was the best year on record for tourism in the state.

Bad weekend weather in June put something of a damper on travel, he added, but good July and August weekends could easily make up the difference since activity is much greater in those months.

The state has budgeted $11.8 million for the Travel Bureau, Morris said, with $4.5 million going to advertising. Outstate promotion and the effects of last year's national convention of travel writers should have a long-term effect. The state's toll-free travel information number just went nationwide, Morris noted, which should also pay dividends eventually.

Jackie Krutch, office assistant at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, has had many visitors from outstate, particularly from St. Louis, Mo. and Ohio. "I've talked to a lot of first-time visitors," she commented. "A lot of people are saying they are looking for a place to rent for next year."

Glassblowers at McCune Arts Center

Glassblowers Harry and Kathleen Boyer of Harbor Springs will be featured artists in a week-long Limited Engagement Exhibition at the Art Tree Sales Gallery in Petoskey beginning Sunday, July 20.

Beginning Monday, July 21, Alpena painter Edward Hoover will exhibit his acrylics, following close on the heels of a showing of his work at the Jesse Besser Museum.

The three artists are among 20 Michigan producers of fine and functional art to be presented in "Ltd. Series" at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center this summer, according to gallery coordinator Audrey Collins.

Harry Boyers's glass has been exhibited in the "Americans in Glass" national tour, co-sponsored by the Cooper-Hewitt Museum in New York and the Krannert Art Museum in Champagne, Illinois; in the Glass '84 exhibition in Toledo; the Ohio Designer Craftsmen Show in Columbus; the Bergstrom-Mahler Museum in Neenah, Wisconsin, and the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Hoover's paintings are new to the western side of the state, but early this year his work attracted the attention of the Jesse Besser Museum and he has been the subject of a popular extended exhibition there.

His work is highly stylized, and although it sometimes reflects an oriental simplicity and sometimes a compelling complexity, his painstaking brushwork and rainbow pallette are characteristic of a vision inspired by fantasy.

The Boyers will be present at an opening reception in the sales gallery, from noon to 2:30 p.m. Sunday, July 20. Hoover plans to meet the public at the reception the following Sunday, July 27, when Harbor Springs potter Suzanne Hoppe and Grand Rapids watercolorist Margaret Vega unveil their limited engagement exhibitions.

The Art Tree Sales Gallery is located in the McCune Arts Center, housed in the historic former Methodist church at the corner of Mitchell and Division streets, downtown Petoskey. Gallery hours are Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Researchers explore plastic recycling

What happens to the 650 million pounds of plastic milk jugs made in the United State-each year?

A few are recycled, but the rest of the polyethylene containers are buried in landfills, where it will take centuries for even minor breakdown of the polyethylene to occur, says Michigan State University packaging engineer Susal Selke.

Selke is involved in a three-year research program to identify uses for recycled polyethylene and ways to encourage recycling.

The research, involving scientists from packaging, engineering and fisheries and wildlife, is funded by the Plastics Recycling Foundation and the state's Research Excellence and Economic Development fund.

At seven one-gallon jugs or 10 half-gallon jugs per pound, the 650 million pounds of plastic jugs translate into between 4.5 billion and 6.8 billion individual containers going into American dumps every year. And the annual count is likely to increase.

Some voluntary recycling of milk jugs takes place in Michigan now, Selke says. Jugs are collected by a Grand Rapids firm, sold to an Ohio company, ground up and turned into agricultural drainage pipe.

One of the dilemmas facing the MSU researchers is that potential users of recycled polyethylene avoid its use because there isn't a dependable supply.

Suppliers, on the other hand, don't provide the recycled jugs because there is no guaranteed market. The researchers' goal is to provide the information that will break the deadlock.

They are investigating the costs and success rates of various ways to persuade consumers to return the jugs, and thus ensure a dependable supply. Such methods could include a deposit system like that used for pop bottles, payment for voluntary returns or mandatory separation of household trash into recyclable and non-recyclable categories.

The researchers are also looking at other uses for the recycled polyethylene beside agricultural pipe, which has a limited demand, Selke says. One of the uses being considered is non-food storage containers, such as plastic detergent bottles.

At the end of their useful life, Selke says the jugs are better burned than stuck in landfills.

Pied Piper leads pack

Drost continued his formal education and his sailing tutelege in Chicago, staying with Jennings aboard his boat last summer and attending Triton College during the year.

The next challenge for the Pied Piper will be the Chicago to Mackinac race held this weekend, where the crew will be hoping for some of the offwind breeze that should make the light craft really fly.

Jehnings said the new sailboat, only the fifth Santa Cruz 70 ever built, takes a crew of 13 to 16 and weighs a remarkably light 26,000 pounds. It is the only Santa Cruz 70 on the Great Lakes.

A veteran sailboat racer who took his first steps on a boat, Jennings has placed in the top three in his class in the last three or four Port Huron to Mackinac races and has several times won the Chicago to Mackinac race. In 1975 he won the world one-ton championship and the North American one-ton championship.

Industrial Park ready for customers

The City of Charlevoix, after much time, money and controversy, finally has an industrial park with which it can hope to attract new industry to the area.

City Council approved the sale of the first parcel of the nearly completed park at its meeting Monday. The new tenant will be CPI, a company currently located on the south side of town which manufactures components for the automobile industry. CPI will purchase a lot on the corner of Taylor and Ance roads.

The city has eight other lots for sale in the industrial park which totals 22 acres. A small cities grant from the State of Michigan for $307,000 and the city's contribution of $100,000, plus another $25-30,000 borrowed from the city sewer fund, made the park a reality.

Construction included the building of surface drainage along the roadways, graveling the roads and construction of some 4,800 feet of sanitary sewer, 1,500 feet of forced main sewer and 1,500 feet of water main.

Only minor work on the lift station in the park remains to be done.

Taylor Road was improved in the park from Mercer Ave. on the west to Martin Road on the east. Ance Road from U.S. 31 to Taylor was also upgraded.

City Manager Michael Wiesner said the goal of the park is to increase year-round jobs for Charlevoix. He said the total cost of the project will eventually total some $25-80,000 per acre, but the eventual benefits to Charlevoix from taxes and jobs should prove greater.

Wiesner added that the first priority, as with the CPI sale, will be to give existing industry the opportunity to expand. "Our first step is to let existing industry know we're here and we'd liek to help them."

Wiesner said the park will also be marketed eventually by the Charlevoix-Antrim County Growth Alliance.

City Manager Michael Wiesner surveys the work done on Taylor Road for the new Charlevoix Industrial Perk.

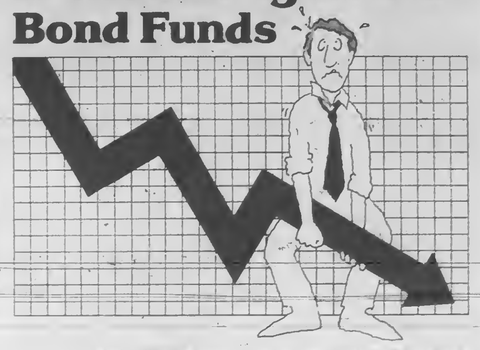
You can lose money in those "High Yield" Bond Funds



BOND FUNDS ARE SUBJECT TO MARKET RISKS! Many of the so called 'high yield' investments these days -- even those involving government bonds or "backed by" a government related agency — carry more risk than you'd think.

Not only can you lose interest, you could lose some of your capital as well! The value of any bond fund fluctuates on what market interest rates in general are doing. Simply put, when market rates rise, bond values decline. Fund values could even decline when rates fall.

WATCH FOR FEES AND COMMISSIONS Your real return can also be lost to substantial management fees and commissions.

This in no way compares with the INSURED SAFETY of Family Federal investment accounts. You get attractive earnings and there are NO management fees or commissions to pay.

COME TO THE MONEY PLACE® So why not relax knowing how much your money will earn at Family Federal, instead of how much you could lose somewhere else?

Hospital session focuses on breast cancer detection

Adult women in the Charlevoix area are invited to a special educational session on early detection of breast cancer at 7 p.m. Thursday, July 31, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Forty thousand women die annually from breast cancer, the leading cancer killer of women since the 1940s. According to the American Medical Association, patients with tumors detected at one centimeter in size have a 90 percent ten-year survival rate whereas those diagnosed with cancers five centimeters or larger have only a 10 to 20 percent survival rate.

In the first portion of the July 31 session, nurse practitioner Sue Killam, R.N., of District Health Department No. 3 will hold a discussion self breast examination. She will cover such issues as who should be practicing regular self examination and how often. Included will be video presentations on the technique of self examination and how a mammogram is taken.

Killam is a certified OB-GYN nurse practitioner who received her R.N. at the Royal Victoria Hospital School of Nursing in Montreal and her B.S.N. at the University of Michigan. She received her training as a family nurse practitioner at Case Western Reserve University and has been employed by the Health Department in Charlevoix for seven years.

She will hand out material on the subject available for all participants and will answer any questions.

Following the discussion portion of the session to be held in the hospital classroom, there will be a tour of the radiology department where participants will be shown the dedicated mammography unit recently acquired by the hospital.

A "dedicated" unit means that the equipment is designed for mammography only as opposed to other x-ray equipment which can image several areas of the body. Terry Bremmeyr, chief x-ray technician, will explain how the unit functions and why it is safer and more accuate for mammography than standard x-ray equipment.

All women over 35 are at risk of developing breast cancer. Women over 50 are at greater risk and are recommended to have a mammogram done annually.

The July 31 program is sponsored by the Community Education Department of Charlevoix Area Hospital and is free. For more information call the hospital at 547-4024.

Venetian Festival highlights summer season

It was in the summer of 1930 that a group of Charlevoix boaters decided to mount an event that is said to have originated in the canals of Venice, Italy.

At Charlevoix's first Venetian Festival 56 years ago, boats were decorated with lighted candles, assembled together and paraded around the perimeter of Round Lake just after sunset.

The Venetian boat parade eventually became a popular summer tradition in Charlevoix, drawing not only boaters but also vacationists and residents of the community who gathered in East Park and other spots around the lake to enjoy the colorful, candle-lighted boats.

Over the years, the boat parade was augmented with several other events. In its modern form, the Venetian Festival is a four-day, fun-filled weekend of activities held on the last weekend of July each year.

The 1986 edition will be launched at 8 p.m. Thursday, July 24 at the Charlevoix High School auditorium with the Miss Charlevoix Pageant and Coronation. Four young women, Kris Cramer, Tara McLeod, Lesa Wilson and Bridget Sexton, all seniors at the high school, will vie for the title.

Following the pageant, talented vocalists and dancers will perform. The 1985 queen, Mary Camilleri, will be on hand to crown the winner. Plenty of musical entertainment is planned to liven up the evening as well.

Coordinating the event are Sue Wiesner, general chairman, and Candy Smith.

On Friday, July 25, action gets underway in the parking lot adjoining East Park where the Leisure Amusements carnival rides start in the morning. The rides will be operating all Friday and Saturday during the festival.

At 6:30 p.m. Friday, the 16th annual Charlevoix Fastpitch Softball Tournament begins at the municipal diamonds on Carpenter Street. The tournament will feature many good teams from in and out of the area. Dwight Boss, Charlevoix recreation director, will be overseeing the tournament which is sponsored by the city Recreation Department.

Softball action continues through the weekend with the finals scheduled for Sunday afternoon.

At 7 p.m. Friday the focus will be on the East Park stage for a "Night of Music." Back by popular demand this year is the band Iowa Rose along with the Dance All Night cloggers.

Iowa Rose, featuring Mary Sue Wilkerson, Dave Raffenaud, Jeff Rose and Mark Shrock, plays a toe-tapping blend of traditional, country swing and bluegrass music. They are based in Brethren, Michigan.

Dance All Night, composed of Patricia Reeser and Daniel Gorno of Traverse City, will amaze concert-goers with their sometimes acrobatic clogging routines.

This free concert will last until 11 p.m. and is partially funded by a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts.

Saturday's full day of activities begin with the Venetian Footrace at 9:30 a.m. at the Charlevoix Elementary School. Registration is open at 8:30 a.m. for entries in the 1 mile, 5-kilometer and 10-kilometer events.

Pete Spieles is organizing the race which will feature prizes for several age categories and both sexes.

At noon, one hour later than previous years, the Grand Venetian Street Parade will start making its way north on Bridge Street from the Garfield intersection. The later starting time will enable poeple to take part in the Footrace and have plenty of time to get downtown for the parade.

Mrs. Eleanor Carson is the honored parade marshal this year. She will lead the colorful assortment of bands, floats, queens, clowns and other surprises through the downtown area where judges will assess entries for various prizes.

Georgia LaBlance heads the Street Parade committee which has been working hard for several months to ensure this year's parade as one of the best ever.

All Saturday afternoon in East Park there will be entertainment, food booths, games and, of course the carnival. Ronald McDonald, the clown familiar to children around the world, will lead off the entertainment on the park stage with his "Red Shoe Revue" at 1:30 p.m.

At 6 p.m. the very popular Epsilon Jass Band takes the stage for a rousing dixieland concert leading up to the boat parade.

At 9 p.m., as the sun gets closer to the Lake Michigan horizon, boats will start assembling for the Venetian Boat Parade. Categories for the judging will include classics, boats under sail and decorated, lighted boats.

The big boats with generators and many lights are the grand finale which occurs as darkness falls.

Among the entries of visiting queens representing their respective communities, a host of floats, politicians running for office and other entries will be Ronald McDonald, and visiting bands including the Newman Navy League of Sault Ste. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite open for tours

As a good ambassador, the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite will be one of the special features of the 56th annual Venetian Festival.

During the Mesquite's visit to the port, it will be open to tours so that the public may see what a Coast Guard vessel looks like.

The ship is berthed at the Charlevoix municipal dock where visitors will be welcomed and escorted on tours of the vessel from 1-4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, July 26-27.

Known as the workhorse of the Coast Guard fleet, the Mesquite is one of five ships in its class stationed in the Great Lakes. The ship's main duty is maintaining all aids to navigation in northern Lake Michigan, the Straits of Mackinac, northern Lake Huron and the St. Mary's River. However, in the spring of 1986, with two of the five out of commission for various reasons, the Mesquite was charged with maintaining all the aids in Lake Michigan plus its own and some in Lake Huron, for a total of more than 400.

In addition to this major duty, the ship is also called upon for search and rescue, ice breaking in the winter months and fisheries management. Each year the ship assists in stocking Lake Michigan with thousands of fingerling trout.

The buoys in the ship's care are large lighted buoys which must be set on station each spring and withdrawn in late fall before the rigors of winter hit the area. The smaller lighted buoys remain on station year round but must be inspected each spring to insure that they have remained on station and are ready for another navigation season.

The ship presently has seven officers: Lt. Cdr. Thomas F. Conton, commanding officer; Lt. Joseph Bodenstedt, executive officer; Ens. Jeffrey Robertson, operations officer; Ens. Michael Stalker, communications officer; Ens. Steven Truhler, administrative assistant; CWO 3 Lonnie Jones, engineering officer; and CWO 3 Robert Lefean, boatswain.

There are also four chief petty officers and a crew of 36 enlisted men.

The ship has an illustrious history. It was constructed at the Marine Iron and Shipbuilding Company in Duluth and commissioned in August 1943.

Its first assignment took the ship to the Pacific during World War II. It was returned to the Great Lakes in 1947. The Mesquite has called Charlevoix its homeport since 1975 when it changed homeports with the USCGC Sundew which had been stationed here since June 1968.

The ship underwent extensive renovation at the Coast Guard Yards in Baltimore, Md., in 1975. At that time the main engines were overhauled, new ship's service generators were installed, new heating and air conditioning systems were added and galley and berthing facilities updated. Berthing is available for eight officers, four CPO's and 14 enlisted personnel.

More recently the ship was deployed at Grenada in November 1984 and in February 1985 to the 7th Coast Guard District in Florida where the ship searched for drug smugglers off the coast and elsewhere in the Caribbean. The ship returned to Charlevoix in April 1985.

The other ships in the class of the Mesquite are the Sundew now stationed at Duluth, Acacia at Grand Haven, Bramble at Port Huron and Manitou at Detroit.

Foot race contestants run for records ... fun

The Venetian Festival Footrace continues to be one of the most popular events of the annual Venetian Festival with more than 300 entries recorded in the three categories each year.

This will mark the eighth year for the footrace headquartered at the Charlevoix Elementary School on Division Avenue.

The race offers three categories one mile, five kilometer and 10 kilometer.

Trophies are awarded to the first place winners in each of the three races. Medals are given to the top three winners, both men and women, in all three races and all entries are awarded ribbons. Pete Spieles, coach of the sponsoring Charlevoix High School cross country team, said. The first 100 persons to register for the event are given T-shirts.

The entry fee for the races is $3 until July 21, $5 after that date. There is also a $5 family rate for the one-mile race.

The record for the 10 kilometer men's division is 30.24 set by the late Jeff Drenth and 37.51 (women's division) set by Carol Schenk of Davison. In the 5-kilometer event the record is 14.08 also set by Drenth and 18.19 set by Debbie Roße of Traverse City.

In the 10-kilometer race there are six divisions for men - from 18 years and under to 50 and over - and in the women's division - 19 and under through 40 and over. In the 5-kilometer, the ages start at 13 years and under and to through 50 and over for men and 40 and over for women.

The one mile race starts at 13 years and younger and goes through 30 years and over, a total of four divisions, for both men and women.

Trophies, medals and ribbons will be awarded immediately following the races.

There will be post-race refreshments provided by Charlevoix merchants for all entries and an aid station for 10-kilometer runners.

On the day of the race, registrations will be accepted from 8:30-9:30 a.m. at the race site. Registration blanks are also available at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Starting time will be 9:20 a.m. for the one-mile race and 10 a.m. for the 5-kilometer and the 10-kilometer.

Inquiries may be directed to Pete Spieles, 800 Park Avenue, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

East Park will be alive with music... and more

Music folk, western swing, classic country, blue grass and old-time will launch the 56th annual Venetian Festival in East Park at 7 p.m. Friday, July 25.

The instruments providing this music will be guitar, mandolin, piano, fiddle, bass, accordion and harmonica.

Those performing this toe-tapping music are Iowa Rose, a band that will present a "Night of Music." Featured with them will be the Dance All Night Cloggers. Both groups were such an attraction when they appeared briefly last year that they were invited to present a four-hour free concert this year.

The Dance All Night Cloggers is a dance team wearing special shoes and dancing on a special surface presenting a program of unusual dances in the Old World tradition.

Iowa Rose is a veteran of many festivals and concert halls throughout the Midwest and Canada. The band has been featured on National Public Radio and the Nashville national television show "Fire on the Mountain." They have also made two albums.

Members are Sue Wilkinson, David Raffenaud, Mark Schrock and Jeff Rose. All reside in western Michigan.

These four hours of entertainment plus the many booths offering a variety of foods and entertainment in the park and the Leisure Time Amusement rides in the adjacent parking lot, offers a full evening of entertainment fo the entire family.

Iowa Rose will entertain in East Park.
